WILL ASK COURTS TO STOP VIOLENCE BY MILK STRIKERS

HUCKSTER SYSTEM PLANNED

LABOR BOARD PROPOSED

Employers, Employes and Public to Be Represented—Copeland Charges Profiteering.

Counsel for the New York Milk Conference Board, it was announced, has prepared papers and is ready to begin injunction proceedings against the striking drivers to prevent their interference with deliveries and intimidation of employes, as soon as the situation warrants. This action, it was said, was not likely to be taken until after Wednesday, when the first retail wagons will begin house-to-house deliveries.

Three of the big distributing companies—Borden's, Sheffield and the Keystone—it was announced, will begin injunction proceedings before a Vice-Chancellor's Court in Hoboken today to restrain the strikers in five New Jersey counties.

The only serious disorder yesterday in connection with the strike occurred on the northbound platform of the Third Avenue "L" station at Fifty-ninth Street, where John Hengerle, 30 years old, of 319 East Eighty-ninth Street, a striking employe of the Sheffield Farms Company, was shot in the left shoulder during an altercation with two alleged strikebreakers.

Hengerle and a friend, whose name was not learned, according to the police, followed the two strikebreakers from a Sheffield depot in Fifty-seventh Street, between Tenth and Eleventh Avenues to the elevated station. The strikebreakers were not working at the time. While they were waiting for a train a quarrel broke out among the four men, and one of the strikebreakers, it is alleged, drew a pistol and fired two shots at Hengerle. One penetrated Hengerle's left shoulder. The other went wild.

As the shots were fired a northbound train was pulling into the station and its rumble muffled the revolver reports. The two strikebreakers boarded the train and disappeared. Hengerle, whose friend disappeared after the firing of the shots, staggered to a bench, and after sitting there a few minutes got up unaided and walked to the Roosevelt Hospital. Detective Clark of the East Sixty-seventh Street police station, later interviewed Hengerle, who was able to give only a meagre description of the two strikebreakers.

A mob of strikers gathered at 165th Street and Webster Avenue last night and hooted and stoned a number of strikebreakers leaving the Sheffield plant in automobiles. Police who dispersed the crowd, arrested Frank Jetulo, 20, of 255 East 150th Street, and Joseph Bellin, 29, of 237 East 150th Street, on charges of disorderly conduct. Both Jetulo and Bellin denied participating in the trouble. They said one of the strikebreakers had provoked the disturbance by hurling an empty milk bottle at the union men, who lined the sidewalk.

Copeland on Milk Supply.

While the New York Milk Conference Board was discussing tentative plans for forming an Industrial Conference Board to prevent further strikes in the milk industry, Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland last night in a statement attacked the board for attempting to "influence the public" by giving out figures to the effect that the city was receiving from 70 to 75 per cent. of its normal milk supply.

"This is a gross exaggeration," said the Health Commissioner. "My office informs me that the total sold is about 55 per cent. of the normal for the season of the year."

I. Elkin Nathans, Secretary of the New York Milk Conference Board, replying to Dr. Copeland said that his statement was only "eleventh-hour political propaganda, and declared that the milk distribution was going ahead as announced. He said that if any milk of poor quality was sold, as charged by Dr. Copeland, it was the fault of the Commissioner's department, as a "multitude of inspectors had been camping on the doorsteps of the distributers ever since the strike started."

The milk distributers reiterated that they were distributing between 70 and 75 per cent. of the normal supply, and were making plans to begin a new plan of retail deliveries on Wednesday, when proper police protection could be assured. They admitted, however, that no great increase could be expected before that time.

The Milk Conference Board said that today efforts would be made to place enough milk at the disposal of the public to enable them to take care of part of their Tuesday's needs, when the police protection would be restricted.

The officials of the striking milk drivers last night reiterated their intention to fight the "open shop," and announced that a mass meeting would be held in Madison Square Garden this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Plan to Avert Strike.

The proposed plan for an industrial conference board in the milk industry was discussed by Mr. Nathans, Secretary of the Milk Conference Board, in the following statement:

"The distributers desire to make it plain at this time that they are determined that the public will never again be subjected to the inconvenience of a curtailed milk supply and tem-

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—As the King and Queen left the Church of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields this afternoon after a special service, a respectably dressed woman tried to mount the step of the royal automobile and hand to the Queen a small parcel, apparently a petition of some sort. The woman was not successful, but the King, who had not entered the car, noticing the incident, spoke to her and told her to hand the package to his equerry, and assured her the Queen would read her petition when she reached the palace.

REPARATIONS MOVE SUGGESTS DEFAULT

REDUCTION PLEA EXPECTED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 6.—Announcement made here last evening that the Reparations Commission had decided to go to Berlin is being interpreted as showing that the situation, while acute, is not yet beyond the possibility of arrangement.

The proclaimed object of the visit of the commission is to ascertain what has been done by the German Government, and what remains to be done toward the payment of $120,000,000 due on Jan. 15, as the second instalment of the reparations payment which Germany accepted under the ultimatum last April.

That Germany is unofficially seeking to obtain some prospect of a reduction has been current gossip in Paris for some days, but what is significant about the decision of the commission to go itself to Berlin is that it was reached yesterday as the result of a report of the Guarantees Committee, which is a subcommittee of the commission, acting for it in Berlin. If the committee had reported that there was at this comparatively early date the least prospect of Germany keeping her bond, it is most unlikely that the whole commission would have decided to travel to Berlin. The situation must then be treated as of great gravity.

The second point to be considered is what the commission can do at this time in Berlin to remedy the situation. Under Article 248 of the Treaty of Versailles the commission has first charge upon all assets and revenues of the German Empire. If, therefore, the German Government finds itself unable to pay and in a position to pledge some of its revenues and assets, it can do so only by consent of the commission. On the spot all the necessary information can be better secured and consent more rapidly given.

The need for hurry lies in the fact that Germany must be, by order of the Committee on Guarantees, by Nov. 15 in a position to produce a percentage of the total payment due on Jan. 15, and that by Dec. 1 25 per cent. of the value of foreign exports must also be available, under Paragraphs A and B. Article 7, of the Accord of London. To obtain these sums, which must be paid in gold or foreign values, the German Government can negotiate either with German bankers or abroad, and in order to do so it is understood that she wishes to be relieved from the lien which the Commission on Reparations has on her resources.

In other words, it is possible, and this suggestion is supported by the Temps, that the German Government is seeking derogation of Article 248 of the treaty in order to complete the negotiations. This derogation can be given only by the commission and as the

Indications That She Will Avoid Issues Not Directly Bearing on the Conference.

YAP ANNOUNCEMENT SOON

TRUST JAPANESE ATTITUDE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—The understanding exists that Japan will not bring up in the Washington conference the question of racial equality, which proved so embarrassing in the Paris peace negotiations. With this matter pigeonholed, another pin-prick in the sensitive international cuticle will be prevented.

All that has been said in Japanese circles recently indicates that there will be scrupulous care on the part of the Japanese delegates in the conference to avoid side issues and confine their efforts to concrete problems. This has not allayed suspicion of Japanese motives in certain quarters where the Tokio Government is being prejudged and condemned, just as certain elements in Japan look askance at the good faith of the United States in calling the conference. Neither of these extreme schools has had any influence upon President Harding and Secretary Hughes, who have been insistent upon regarding all nations invited to participate as actuated by a keen desire to remove the causes which threaten the peace of the Pacific and the Far East, and, with those causes removed, by as strong a willingness to limit the heavy burden of armament from which the peoples of most great countries are suffering.

The understanding that Japan will not broach the subject of racial equality emphasizes the importance of the step made by the agreement not to include the California immigration question in the agenda of the conference. On top of this the Governments of the United States and Japan, according to assurances from authoritative sources, have practically reached an agreement as to the Yap issue which they may announce at any time. That the announcement has not been made sooner has caused some surprise. If it should come at the moment of the formal assembling of the conference, it would have a marked effect in giving that body a propitious start.

Settlement of the Shantung question still hangs fire between Japan and China, the Government at Peking showing a disposition to refuse the Japanese proposals as to the method of the return of the former German "leased" territory to Chinese authority. From all appearances Shantung may be brought before the Washington conference, although there is a report that the negotiations between Japan and China are not in such a hopeless state as those concerned have intimated.

In view of the feeling aroused in this country over the Shantung provision of the Versailles Treaty, an adjustment of the question in a way satisfactory to China would have an extremely good effect among Americans generally in the United States Senate.

The racial equality issue nearly wrecked the Paris Peace Conference, according to the view of statesmen who participated in it. Japan was believed to be on the point of withdrawing because the commission which framed the Covenant of the League of Nations declined to insert in that agreement a pro-

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Plans for a non-partisan demonstration on Armistice Day in honor of Woodrow Wilson are being made by a number of admirers of the former President. The program now is to invite all who wish to take part to march to Mr. Wilson's home immediately after the end of the ceremonies at Arlington Cemetery for the Unknown Soldier.

A committee of seven women has taken the leadership in arranging the demonstration. This announcement was made:

"In order to provide an opportunity for an expression of appreciation of the services of Woodrow Wilson, who was the Commander-in-Chief of the Unknown American Soldier to be interred in the hallowed soil of Arlington on Nov. 11, we, the undersigned Washington women, members of various civic, non-partisan organizations, will visit Mr. Wilson's home on S Street immediately following the conclusion of the official ceremonies at Arlington.

"We desire to take this occasion to congratulate Mr. Wilson, a wounded soldier, upon his returning health and to show him our appreciation of his part in the stirring events which have led up to the present moment in world affairs.

"We extend to all organizations and individuals in the District of Columbia a cordial invitation to join us in thus expressing the honor and respect we feel for our distinguished fellow citizen.

"No man in the world rendered more valiant or effective service to humanity, either in his capacity as a soldier or as a statesman, in bringing the great war to a successful conclusion and making possible the armistice which forms the subject of the ceremonies on Nov. 11.

"In view of the above and because we know there are thousands of men and women who, without partisanship or bias, feel as we do, this invitation to join us is whole-heartedly extended.

"Our plan is exceedingly simple. We shall meet at the corner of Florida and Connecticut Avenues immediately after the ceremonies at Arlington and proceed to Mr. Wilson's house. All organizations and individuals who desire to come with us will be welcome. Further details as to the exact hour of assembling will be announced later."

The statement was signed by Mrs. Clara Sears Taylor, Mrs. Samuel Gompers, Mrs. Houston Thompson, Mrs. Edward P. Costigan, Mrs. Helen H. Gardener, Miss Gertrude Van Poesen and Mrs. Kate Trenholm Abrams. Republicans, Democrats and independents are represented in the group.

Mrs. Taylor is a member of the Rent Commission of the District of Columbia, was originally appointed by Mr. Wilson, and was reappointed by President Harding. Mrs. Gompers is the wife of the President of the American Federation of Labor. Mrs. Thompson is the wife of the Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, a Democrat appointed by Mr. Wilson. Mrs. Costigan is the wife of Edward P. Costigan, a Colorado Bull Moose and member of the Tariff Commission, and she is prominent in the work of the National League of Women Voters.

Mrs. Gardener is a member of the Civil Service Commission. She was originally a California Republican, was formerly Counsellor of the League of Women Voters, and for many years has been active as one of the Washington Committee of the National American Women's Suffrage Association, of which she is Vice President. Miss Van Poesen is an active and successful business woman of Washington and a Republican. Mrs. Abrams is an active Democrat, who for many years has been prominent in suffrage work in the national capital and was one of the organizers of the District of Columbia branch of the League of Women Voters. She is a member of the Congressional Committee of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ON BOARD THE STEAMSHIP LAFAYETTE, Nov. 6.—In the course of a gale blowing off Cape Cod the Lafayette, rolling heavily, shipped huge seas at 6 o'clock last night. One of the shutters on the promenade deck, on which stood M. Viviani, Colonel Bunau-Varilla, of Panama Canal treaty fame, and several women, among them Mrs. Elisa Stern of New York, was burst open. M. Viviani got wet up to the knees and the women fled screaming, all except two, who fainted away and had to be carried to their cabins, where they were quickly revived.

Colonel Bunau-Varilla, who lost a leg in the war, made the following statement:

"As I cannot run very fast, I just seized hold of the railing with both hands and braced myself with my wooden leg, so that only the stump got wet. I experienced worse dangers than that during the war."

An auction sale for charity was held today, several autographed portraits of Premier Briand being among the offerings. The auction netted more than 10,000 francs.

The French liner Lafayette, with Premier Briand on board, arrived in Quarantine at 9:50 o'clock last night after making the fastest westward voyage from Havre in her career. The liner has a speed of nineteen knots, but had hitherto lounged across at about seventeen knots to economize fuel.

She was reported off the Ambrose Channel Lightship at the same time as the Anchor liner Algeria from Glasgow, but reached Quarantine a few minutes in advance, as the captain of the Lafayette knew that the vessel which dropped anchor first would be the first visited by the Public Health officers in the morning.

The health officer said last night that the Quarantine boat would go off to the Lafayette at 6:30 o'clock and that it usually takes about an hour and a half to examine and clear the ship, except when there is a case of sickness on board. The Lafayette should therefore be made fast at the French Line pier, foot of West Fifteenth Street, between 9 and 9:30.

Major Gen. Robert Lee Bullard will leave the Battery at 7:30 on the United States Army tug Lexington to greet the French Premier and his fellow delegates on behalf of the army.

The visitors will be received at the pier by the French Consul General Gaston Liebert, representative of the Governor and Mayor and others. They will take the first train out for Washington. There will be no formal ceremonies connected with their brief visit to this city.

As in the case of the civilian delegates who have arrived from other countries, the official reception by representatives of this Government will take place in Washington. When Premier Briand sailed from Havre on Oct. 29 he requested that there should be no formalities, and the reception for him and his party at Havre was very simple.

HUGHES NOTE PUTS PRESSURE ON CHINA

SITUATION SAID TO BE GRAVE

But Report That Note Includes Threat of Withdrawing Our Recognition Is Denied.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—There is every indication, based on a careful canvass of the situation tonight, that one of the most important aspects of the Far Eastern situation as affecting China to come before the Washington Conference, in connection with its consideration of Pacific problems, will be the attitude of the Chinese Government with respect to international loans, China's default in payment of interest and principal on American and other loans and her refusal so far to accept the international consortium plan for the granting of new loans to China.

China has failed to meet payments of principal and interest on the loan due the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago, due to have been paid Oct. 31. This default has created a very unfavorable impression in official and banking circles in the United States, as well as abroad, according to information obtained in an authoritative quarter tonight, and has been made the occasion of a sharp note from Secretary Hughes to the Peking Government, calling its attention most seriously to its responsibilites and obligation in the matter.

Negotiations Have Failed.

Another loan of $5,500,000, made by the Pacific Development Corporation of New York City, backed by the Chase National Bank and a Boston firm, is also about due, and the $30,000,000 Hukuang Railway loan, which was arranged by the so-called Four-Power group of British, French, American and German bankers in 1911, has its first instalments of principal falling due this year. Negotiations for a refunding of all these loans have been in progress in Peking for some time and so far have failed, with every prospect that there may be no real settlement in advance of an effort to solve the Chinese financial dilemma, so far as international help is concerned, in connection with the discussion of the Far Eastern question in the Washington conference.

The gravity of the situation is reflected accurately, but with certain inaccuracy of detail, in a press association dispatch from Peking, received tonight, stating that Chinese officials had stated yesterday that the note from Secretary Hughes, as presented to the Chinese Government on Nov. 1 by Jacob Gould Schurman, the new American Minister to that country, had informed the Chinese Government that China's failure to meet the interest and principal on the $5,500,000 of the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago on Oct. 31 had "strained China's financial and political credit in the United States, and seriously injured China's chances at the Far Eastern Conference." The same dispatch also credited the Hughes note with having informed China that the American Government, in view of the Chinese failure to accept any of the various proposals made by American bankers for renewals of loans, "must find it difficult to recognize the Peking Government as the competent Chinese Government."

Situation Held To Be Grave.

Secretary Hughes's note was cabled from Washington to Minister Schurman on Oct. 31, after the Chinese Government had defaulted, even if only technically, on the Chicago bank loan. It was not made public technically and no details of the note were given out by Secretary Hughes. If he had made the note public, Secretary Hughes might have heightened the gravity of the situation, already serious and difficult enough, and it is understood he did not care to do this.

It is true that the note sent by Secretary Hughes sought to impress upon the Chinese Government the belief of the American Government that default on the Chicago bank's loan, and all that it involves, unless that default proved to be more than a mere technicality, would seriously impair the financial and political credit of China in the United States.

It is likewise true that the note sought

LINER AND SCHOONER CRASH, ONE MAN LOST

SEEK SAFETY IN RIGGING

The Clyde Line steamship Apache, bringing eighty passengers, arrived at her pier, 27 North River, six hours late last night after having collided at sea yesterday with the five-masted American schooner Singleton Palmer, which was left lying on her beam ends about sixty miles southeast of Scotland Lightship near Fenwick Island. The deck engineer of the schooner, named Swanson, was missing after the collision. The remaining eleven members of the crew were rescued by boats from the Apache and the Merchant and Miners Steamship Company's liner Gloucester.

The bow of the Clyde liner was damaged, portions of the schooner's bulwarks still sticking to its last night. Blankets and pillows were used to stop the flow of water into the ship forward. The Apache will probably have to go into dry dock.

The sea was calm and the wind was fair when the collision occurred. Clyde Line officials were reticent concerning the cause of the accident and would not permit reporters to question the Apache's officers last night.

Members of the crew said the schooner crashed into the steamship head-on early in the morning. The Apache promptly lowered a lifeboat and rescued First Mate Sven Landstrom and another member of the crew, while the Gloucester, passing nearby, picked up Captain Griffin and eight other members of the schooner's crew. Thomas Jones, an able seaman, climbed the forward rigging after the crash and managed to reach the deck of the Apache while her bow was still interlocked with that of the schooner.

The schooner was bound from Perth Amboy to Norfolk in ballast. The Gloucester was bound from Norfolk to Boston, where she will land the nine survivors she rescued.

The Singleton Palmer was a five-masted, double-decked schooner of 2,839 gross tonnage, 294 feet long and of 45-foot beam, built at Waldoboro, Me., in 1904 and one of the few five-masted American schooners remaining in the coastwise trade.

The Apache was in charge of Captain W. O. Chichester and carried a general cargo from Jacksonville, Fla., and Charleston, S. C., in addition to passengers. The Clyde Line has had other bad luck lately. Another of its steamships in the Florida trade was in a collision recently, and the latest addition to its fleet, the Lenape, sank at her pier a short time ago and then capsized after having been raised

EXETER BISHOP WOULD USE FORCE IN IRELAND

In Message, Which Has Aroused Criticism, He Hopes As Few As Necessary Will Be Killed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—In church circles throughout Devon the latest "message" of the Bishop of Exeter, Lord William Gascoyne-Cecil, caused much comment—and even severe criticism. The "message" appears in his Diocesan Gazette. Lamenting the lack of humility everywhere, the Bishop says:

"Filled with conceit, modern democracy will not trust expert advice. Demos is king, and like other kings who have been flattered, he does many foolish things.

"Many of our politicians and perhaps ministers of religion are always saying we must not put on the brake, and when a maddened crowd of half-starved people threaten to destroy the order of the country we must not maintain order by strong measures. These strong measures apparently include, if need be, the right to kill.

"I always prayed and hoped we should kill as few Germans as was necessary to win the war, and I pray and hope that as few Irish as is necessary will be killed to uphold the British Empire."

The Bishop of Exeter is a brother of the present Lord Salisbury and of Lord Robert and Lord Hugh [illegible]

CRAIG GIVES NO HOPE OF ANY CONCESSIONS TO END IRISH CRISIS

PREMIER SEES TORY CHIEF

BONAR LAW TAKES A HAND

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—This morning's papers as a whole do not take a hopeful view of the Irish peace negotiations. The political correspondent of The Westminster Gazette, which appears today for the first time as a morning newspaper, says it is useless to hide the fact that the situation is very grave and that James Craig, the Ulster Premier, in his interviews with Lloyd George on Saturday, proved stern and unbending.

"He had come not to parley," says the correspondent, "but to state his terms, and if he persists in refusing all compromise there can be no doubt that a deadlock has been reached. His position, as I understand it, is this: He takes his stand on the Home Rule act of 1920. He did not want it, but accepted it and consented to set up a Parliament in Belfast to meet the wishes of the Government, who hoped the Southern Parliament would also function and that there would at last be peace in Ireland.

The refusal of the Sinn Fein to do its part and all the grim history of murders and reprisals that followed have hardened the Ulster heart. Sir James Craig will not go another step, believing it to be absolutely useless and dangerous for the six counties which he controls to make any further concession.

He is adamant on the question of the two counties, Tyrone and Fermanagh. He will not have a plebiscite or a boundary commission. He believes if any part of these two counties were taken from Ulster, which has already in his view consented to surrender three counties to a Southern Parliament, the position of the Ulster Parliament would be unworkable.

He does not believe the demands of Sinn Feiners would end there. He sees a flood of Irish national sentiment creeping into his very citadel in Belfast if he yields any territory or any of the powers which have been granted to him, powers which are already insufficient to enable the Belfast Parliament to function properly. He will not compromise on any suggestion that the Ulster Parliament shall still be given those wider and fuller powers which were contemplated in the act of 1920 if the Southern Parliament had been called into existence, although this could be done without further legislation.

"This, I understand, is Sir James Craig's position. He remains immovably fixed within the entrenchments which the act gives him, and even if he wished to move he maintains his own people would not let him. The argument that questions of imperial allegiance and Irish unity are inseparable does not move him. The fact that the Sinn Feiners will not accept partition does not affect him. Let them set up their Parliament and show that they are capable of carrying on an orderly and efficient administration—that is, the Ulster reply.

"If they did that, North and South would meet for common service in the Irish Council and in time from that Council might spring an All-Irish Parliament.

"That, I gather, is the answer which the leader of the Ulster Party makes to the rest of Ireland. 'Let me alone,' he says. 'Give what you like to Southern Ireland but leave Ulster alone,' and in the concessions which he is prepared to make to the South, if Ulster remains untouched, Sir James Craig is willing to go even further than the Government."

The Daily Telegraph's Parliamentary correspondent says: "Whatever may have been said by the Ulster Premier to Lloyd George, it is certain that the feeling in well-informed quarters yesterday had not increased in hopefulness. The situation was described as very grave and emphasis was laid afresh on the magnitude of the obstacles in the way of settlement."

The Morning Post's political correspondent writes: "There is every reason to believe that Sir James Craig made it quite clear that Ulster will never consent to be robbed of the independence conferred on her by last year's act."

Lloyd George left town for Chequers Sunday morning after conferring with several Cabinet colleagues. There will be a Cabinet meeting today (Monday). Sir James Craig is expected to see the Prime Minister again shortly and he may possibly go to Belfast to have further consultation with his own Cabinet before he leaves for France on Nov. 18.

Premier Sees Chamberlain.

LONDON, Nov. 6 (Associated Press).—The Irish situation has undergone no change today. The Prime Minister had a brief consultation with Austen Chamberlain this morning, after which he went by automobile to Chequers Court. According to present arrangements, he will return to London tomorrow morning to hold a Cabinet meeting, and possibly also to consult further with Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier.

Second Football Death From Same Game Occurs After Year

ELMIRA, N. Y., Nov. 6.—As the result of injuries received in a football game at Alfred University in November, 1920, Oliver Winford Ferry of Almond, N. Y., died tonight at his home. His is the second death to follow that game, which was between teams of Alfred and Allegheny Universities, the latter an Episcopal clerical preparatory institution at Meadville, Pa.

What was considered at the time merely a minor bruise in the region of the chest cavity put Ferry out of the game, and he felt no ill effects until several days had elapsed. He then became ill and rapidly there developed what specialists called a form of tuberculosis.

VICTORY PREDICTED FOR EACH CANDIDATE

Curran by 150,000, Says Lyons —Hylan by 300,000, Manager Delaney Asserts.

BOTH SIDES MAKE CHARGES

Each Alleges Traction Interests Are Backing the Other Despite Fusion's Plea of Poverty.

With the speaking campaign practically ended, except for a few speeches today, John J. Lyons, campaign manager for Henry H. Curran, Coalition candidate for Mayor, and John H. Delaney, campaign manager for Mayor Hylan, Democratic candidate, issued statements last evening, each claiming the city election, and each charging the other side with the intention of using money on a large scale in an attempt to affect the result.

Extravagant use of money by the Coalitionists, despite their plea of poverty, was charged by Mr. Delaney, who said Mr. Curran was backed by "every Wall Street institution that holds traction securities."

Mr. Lyons, on the other hand, asserted that the "traction money" had gone to Mayor Hylan because the "traction interests" knew they could not handle Mr. Curran. "But all the traction gold in America will not elect Hylan," Mr. Lyons added, saying there had been an "underswell" to Curran within the last three days that would defeat the entire Tammany ticket.

A plurality of 150,000 for Mr. Curran was predicted by Mr. Lyons, while Hylan League officials said the Democratic canvass indicated a plurality of more than 300,000 for Mayor Hylan.

The Delaney Statement.

"Party lines seem to have disappeared, wiped out by the bigness of the issues of home rule and the 5-cent fare," said Mr. Delaney. "Some incidents attending the collapse of the Curran campaign in its last week are worth calling to public attention. It is not strange that they have excited the vexation of the interests which brought about Curran's nomination.

"His candidacy was financed by a secret band of underwriters. These men were familiar with the history of the $2,000,000 slush fund of 1917 and its exposure. They did not want a repetition of the disclosures that marked that attempt to steal an election, so the thing has been carried on under cover of secrecy.

"They have pleaded poverty in the press while all the time they have had a guarantee of any amount of money that might be needed to defeat Mayor Hylan. They had access to plenty and will have an abundance on Election Day. Only today I saw one circular which cost $60,000 to print and distribute, and this is but a single instance of the extravagant use of money. Their talk about poverty has not fooled any one. Every Republican district organization will get as much money for poll work as it had four years ago. There is as much cash available for district workers as the leaders can use.

Backers Disappointed, He Says.

"Whatever personal service was purchasable for election purposes they have bought. Every element that money can bring into politics they have procured. For our part we have seen no necessity for hiring any one at $2,000 a speech. even if we had the money.

"I understand that some of the heavy financial backers of the Curran campaign are disappointed with the way part of their money had been spent. They do not think that Jerome and Untermyer gave them their money's worth. It was planned that Jerome and Untermyer should be headliners in the campaign, but in the last week both of them turned tail. When Mayor Hylan and Comptroller Craig got through with Jerome and Untermyer the big firecrackers had turned into squibs.

"We were denied the use of the billboards of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, where we sought to advertise the splendid accomplishments of Mayor Hylan's administration in the schools of Brooklyn. Our advertising was refused because we plainly declaimed the truth; that people ride on the B. R. T. lines for five cents because John F. Hylan is Mayor. But all the billboards of all the traction trust lines were spread with the misrepresentations about the Mayor's school program and his fight for the five-cent fare.

"It insults common sense to claim that the candidate backed by every Wall Street institution that holds traction securities is in poverty. The money will be spent in vain, just as it was four years ago; but there is no doubt that it will be spent, for no other course is open for the Curran campaign managers know that they have failed so signally in their vicious attacks upon Mayor Hylan.

"Surely it has been made clear that Hylan is the great defender of the five-cent fare, and no man can take that

WILL NOT OMIT ENRIGHT

"I Will Be Mayor; There Will Be No Boss, Democratic or Republican," He Says.

CHEERED BY 2,000 WOMEN

"Atta Boy, Henry!" They Cry at Cooper Union Rally—Candidates' Wives on Stage.

Henry H. Curran, Coalition candidate for Mayor, told an audience of 2,000 persons in Cooper Union last night that he would begin a housecleaning at City Hall early on the morning of Jan. 1 next, and that Hylanism would be swept out of the edifice.

"We'll clean up and fumigate," he said, "and I want to leave with you this promise on the eve of election—when I am Mayor I will be Mayor! There will be no boss, Democratic or Republican, and there will be no Hearst —he can keep the key to the Mayor's private office if he likes, but I am going to change the lock."

An enthusiastic woman somewhere out in the audience sirened at the Coalition candidate: "Atta boy, Henry!" and immediately this cry and others were taken up in all parts of the hall by hundreds of other women—for this was a women's rally under the auspices of the Women's Division of the Coalition Committee and the Women's Anti-Tammany Committee. Women ran the meeting and introduced the speakers, some of whom were candidates for office.

Mr. Curran said that the municipal housecleaning would start at the City Hall early on the morning of New Year's Day, aided by the new brushing power of women's votes, and that a "doleful New Year's Day parade," leaving that edifice in the gray of morning, would be led by William Randolph Hearst, "California boss of New York," and ex-Mayor John F. Hylan, his New York tool, who turns an attentive ear and a willing hand at the sound of the master's voice."

Will Not Omit Enright.

Picturing this procession, Mr. Curran said that he would not choose to omit from the master strokes of the painting Police Commissioner Enright, who, he charged, "virtually received $12,000 from Allan Ryan, his Deputy Police Commissioner."

"And at the end of this doleful procession, so small that you will hardly be able to see them with a powerful glass, will be those Siamese twins of virtue, integrity and fair dealing—Hirshfield and Solovei. That's the old parade I'm interested in."

Pleading for an end of Tammany rule in this city, other candidates on the Coalition ticket warned the women that it was time to give the Tammany officeholders a rest after "their arduous labors of misruling and looting the city."

The old white-pillared auditorium of Cooper Union, where so many political rallies have been held, furnished its bright play of sidelights and incidents to be found only in this forum where there are so many pitfalls for speakers.

Every one of about 1,700 seats was filled, and standing in the aisles and hallways were many scores more—all supplying some form of noise or comment to encourage the speakers. There was no heckling at all and the audience was a little different from the usual Cooper Union rally—more than half were women.

Cries of denunciation and hisses swept over the audience virtually in every speech, but they were all directed against mention of the name of W. R. Hearst and his support of Hylan, and this noise rose to uproar when Edward J. McGuire, former Assistant Corporation Counsel, asked the audience:

"Are you going to stand for four years more of Heart and Hylanism that has made this city a byword and a hissing throughout the civilized world?"

Noisemaker in Evidence.

An unofficial noisemaker who centres his admiration in the veteran campaigner, William Travers Jerome, was again in the second row of Cooper Union last night, calling for cheers for Jerome, Curran, and the other candidates and voicing his disapproval of anything they speak against.

At every meeting he has indulged in amiable dialogues with Mr. Jerome, who admonishes the man at every meeting to keep both his seat and quiet, but last night, upon the introduction of the former District Attorney, this noisemaker managed to get the audience shouting the slogan handed to the Coalitionists by Mr. Jerome in his first speech of the campaign:

"Treat 'em rough! Treat 'em rough!"

Because it was a women's meeting the mothers and wives of some of the candidates were introduced to the women voters, as were the two women candidates—Miss Helen Varick Boswell, candidate for Register in this county, and Mrs. Mabel T. S. Falco, candidate for Alderman in Brooklyn.

Other women who were introduced were Mrs. John Curran, who believes that the voters present to her son on his forty-fourth birthday will be a four-year term as Mayor of New York; Mrs. Henry H. Curran, wife of the Coalition candidate, and Mrs. John Kirkland Clark, wife of the Coalition candidate for District Attorney in New York County.

Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson said that she would paraphrase for women voters the saying of her brother, Theodore Roosevelt, on that same Cooper Union platform: "What avails it if a nation lose its soul?" by saying: "What availeth it a city lose its soul?"

She said that it was the duty of the women to see that Tammany was put out of office, to see that more schools were built and that the city was put back upon a basis of "law and order." Telling of the war record of Major Curran, she praised him as an official who would do constructive public work.

Mr. Curran was the first of the candidates to speak at the meeting, and he departed from his prepared speech at length. At the end, in response to a question from Mrs. Beatrice V. Stevenson, Vice Chairman of the meeting, he said that the Gary system in the schools would never be restored in his administration.

"I know what the Gary system is," he said, "and I know what the Hylan system is. I am against both. The Hylan-Hearst system of double sessions—the child calls it 'crazy time'—must go. The first thing I will do as Mayor will be to build schools—and build, and build and build."

"And the women are going to put you into office," shouted a woman in the audience, whose utterance called forth a storm of cheers and applause.

"There are other offices to be filled besides mine," said Mr. Curran, "and the others on the Coalition ticket must go in with me, Controller, President of the Board of Aldermen, District Attorney for this county, and all down the line. I can't do it alone."

Attacks Hearst.

Turning to his description of Mayor Hylan as "the New York tool of a California boss," he asserted that Hearst had thrown poison at "every decent public official in this city who refused to bend a knee to him."

"He villified McKinley," asserted Mr. Curran, he slandered Roosevelt, threw mud at Mayor Gaynor and Governor Al Smith. He writes Hylan's speeches and dictates his policies, and I say:

Laughter greeted Mr. Curran's query: "Have your rents been reduced?" and he continued:

"Yet Inspector Eddie Hughes made $1,000,000 for policing piers, all of that added to the cost of food between the ship and your breakfast table.

"Ask Hylan why he didn't build schools and he says: 'I'm for a 5-cent fare.' Ask Hylan why he planned a twenty-million-dollar courthouse when houses and schools were lacking and he parrots: 'I'm for a 5-cent fare.'"

Telling of the "buffoonery" in the Board of Estimate meetings, the "meetings of the board of directors of the greatest corporation on earth," Mr. Curran said that it was known all over the country as a "vaudeville performance, the best on earth, and free."

He asserted that the Hylan Campaign Committee had preceded the Marshal Foch welcome procession up Broadway with an automobile bearing a sign, "Vote for Mayor Hylan." He asserted also that the Mayor had made a political speech at a soldiers' memorial meeting, and added:

"When a man prostitutes all the sacredness, solemnity and beauty of a ceremony like that for his own political ends, it is time to get him out of office."

Summarizes Charges.

He told of other incidents of the Hylan Administration. Then, summarizing the aims and charges of the campaign in his prepared speech, he said:

"This campaign is nearly over. For three weeks we have been showing up the record of the Hylan Administration, comparing promise with performance, to determine whether or not Hylan and his master, Hearst, are entitled to enjoy four years more as the head of our City Government. The evidence is in, and, on the strength of that evidence, I believe the people of New York will decided overwhelmingly to reject Hylan and drive out Hearst.

"The first count in the indictment against Hylan is the fact that he has not, at any time, been the real Mayor of New York. Hylan was nominated four years ago by Hearst of California, who crammed him down the throat of Tammany Hall by the threat to use the influence of the Hearst papers against any other candidate that Murphy put up.

"Backed by these same Hearst papers, Hylan was elected and took office on Jan. 1, 1918. Since that date Hylan has been only a 'dummy' Mayor in the City Hall. From California his master Hearst has dictated every official act, every speech, every statement that the head of our City Government has made in the last four years.

"Hylan has not been able to formulate or follow any policy looking to the improvement of the city, for the simple reason that he has been compelled to depend upon Hearst for guidance. He could never take a definite step, in any particular matter, until he knew what Hearst's plans were.

"Three years ago, when Shonts of the Interborough suggested to Hylan that the city should co-operate with the traction companies, in an effort to devise some plan of financial relief for the companies, Hylan agreed to confer, but he first turned to Hearst for advice. He took nobody else into his confidence, not even the other members of his own Board of Estimate.

"He summoned Hearst's man MacFarland from Boston. And then Shonts, Hylan and MacFarland tried to stick the city with a seven-cent fare. These conferences were secret and the movie and the spotlight, as well as the newspapers, were conspicuous by their absence.

Charges Broken Promises.

"The second count in the indictment against Hylan is the fact that his whole Administration has been a record of broken campaign promises. As a candidate in 1917 he made a number of definite pledges. He promised lower taxes, decreased cost of living and the reduction of rent. He promised more schools. 'A seat for every child is what I guarantee,' he said four years ago.

"He promised to eliminate boss rule from our City Government. He swore to drive out the graft and dishonesty which he asserted was prevalent throughout every city department. He promised to provide terminal markets. He pledged himself to work out and put into effect a plan for the disposal of the city's garbage.

"He promised to drive the Gary System out of the public schools and to see that the children were fitted for something else besides the mill and the factory. He made these promises over and over again, and the Hearst papers carried the news of the pledged word throughout the length and breadth of the five boroughs.

"After he took office, these promises were buried in the mess of wastefulness, extravagance and incompetence that soon spread through the entire Hylan administration. In face of the Hylan pledge to reduce the cost of living, and to lower rents, the Hylan budget increased $109,000,000 in four years. The taxpayer who paid $100 to the city in 1917, in 1921 found his tax bill jumped to $165. I charge Hylan with promising these things in order to get votes when he had absolutely no intention of making good on a single promise.

"Instead of backing up his guarantee, 'a seat for every child,' Hylan's school program has been a miserable and utter failure. During his first three years in office, Hylan opened just two new schools. These two, and two additions to existing schools, were his total accomplishment from January, 1921. During the last year, with election day approaching, Hylan has opened a dozen more new school buildings. But every one of these schools was built with money that the preceding administration had appropriated for school buildings, and which Hylan found waiting for him when he took office.

"William Randolph Hearst can best answer or not if Hylan has eliminated boss rule from our city government. I shall let Hoey and Sabbatino, who have made nearly $2,000,000 out of dock privileges in the last three years, and O'Malley, who made the motto of the Markets Department, 'for money you get honey,' tell us how Hylan has dealt with graft and dishonesty in the city departments. There are no terminal markets, and Hylan has put into effect no plan for garbage disposal other than the awarding of a few juicy contracts for dumping the city's waste at sea. What would Hylan have done if he had not had the ocean? What would New York have done?

Double Sessions in Schools.

"Instead of driving the Gary system out of the public schools, Hylan put in its place his vicious system of double sessions. Nearly 200,000 children are now getting what education they can out of the Hearst-Hylan double-session plan, under which they go in and out of school at all hours. This system the children call 'crazy time.' Hylan is driving the boys and girls of this city into the mill and the factory, because he is denying them a fair opportunity for an education.

"The third count in the indictment against Hylan is that he has today no constructive plan for getting better rapid transit for a 5-cent fare in New York City. He promises court action against any plan that may be proposed, and he pledges himself to continue a fight for a 5-cent fare that sofar has resulted in nothing except the abolition of free transfers. But he offers no constructive idea of his own. As in that secret deal with Shonts, Hylan expects to take his orders from Hearst.

"The fourth count in the indictment against Hylan is the record of incompetence and waste of his whole Administration. That record has added the ugly word 'Hylanism' to the dictionary of New York. Hylanism means the breakdown in morale at Police Headquarters under Enright. It means the persecution of Mrs. Ellen O'Grady, formerly Fifth Deputy Police Commissioner, because, in her effort to drive out vice, she interfered with Enright's friends.

"Hylanism means graft in the Markets Department and graft in the Docks. It means, inefficiency, unreliability and a general demoralization extending throughout every City Department.

Board of Estimate.

"The fifth count in the indictment against Hylan is the record of Hylanism in the Board of Estimate. Hylanism means bickering and squabbling among those elected to govern the city and its five boroughs. Hylanism means discourtesy and insults from the board to the citizens who have appeared before it. Hylanism means a Board of Estimate without a policy, a board drifting aimlessly, guided only by Hearst and responsible only to him.

"The sixth count in the indictment against Hylan is the shameless way in which he has used the high office of Mayor of New York for his own personal and political advantage. He used the Board of Child Welfare, created under a State law to help unfortunate widows maintain their homes and keep their children out of institutions, as a political nightstick to scare these helpless women into supporting his candidacy. Hylan has even turned the dedication of war memorials into political pageants designed to boost his campaign.

"The seventh count in the indictment against Hylan is the fact that, with his record of broken promises staring him in the face, with the utter failure of his administration to meet a single emergency or a single demand made upon it by the people of the city, he is making a campaign this year on the same general scheme of deception that he employed so successfully four years ago.

"As the head of the ticket opposed to Hylanism I have brought out these outstanding facts in his record. I have outlined my program to improve housing conditions, which will eventually cause a reduction in rents. I have given you my plan for improving and extending our rapid transit service for a five-cent fare. I have affirmed my conviction in the home-rule principle that the icty is entitled to control over its local affairs without any outside domination.

"I have plainly stated my readiness and my intention of fighting for that principle and of fighting also against any attempt to raise the fare. I have given in detail my school program, including my stand in favor of the Lockwood-Donohue Teachers' Salary Increase bill, and my plan for financial independence of the Board of Education.

"On these points I have been specific. For performance on these pledges I have pointed, to my record of ten years' service in the work of the City Government. I am confident in the judgment of our people. In their hands I am ready to leave our case."

William Travers Jerome was loudly applauded when he repeated charges made by him throughout the campaign that the Hylan Administration has been guilty of "incompetency, graft and vulgarity," and that the city "will never have anything like decency in public life until Tammany Hall has been destroyed."

Mounting Taxes.

Mr Jerome reminded his audience that the Hylan Administration has subjected the city to "four years of mounting taxes, four years of mounting assessments. The average cost of the City of New York for government during these four years has been $12.50 greater for every man, woman and child in the city than it was during the preceding Administration. The city cannot stand that sort of looting. I say looting, because we have received nothing in return for these increased costs," Mr. Jerome added.

As candidate for Controller, Senator Lockwood said that Controller Craig had failed to explain away the failures of his administration.

John Kirkland Clark, Coalition candidate for District Attorney, renewed his charges of incompetent management of the office of District Attorney under Edward Swann and under Acting District Attorney Joab H. Banton, the Tammany candidate for the office.

Other speakers were Vincent Gilroy, Coalition candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, and Miss Mary Wood, Chairman of the meeting.

ANTI-CRAIG CHARGES LISTED BY LOCKWOOD

Coalition Opponent Declares Controller Delayed Schools and Approved Limestone Contract.

Senator Charles C. Lockwood, Coalition candidate for Controller, said yesterday that the voters would remember what Controller Charles L. Craig, his Democratic opponent, had done and had not done during his four years in office. He said: "The men and women voters of the city remember—

"That the Board of Education in its unanimous report charged Controller Craig with obstructing and delaying school buildings;

"That Controller Craig approved the notorious Court House limestone contract under which the city stood to lose more than $1,000,000;

"That Controller Craig approved the school contracts which, after exposure by the Housing Committee, were declared by the Democratic Corporation Counsel, O'Brien, to be collusive and fraudulent;

"That, when the Court House contracts were canceled by the Board of Estimate, Controller Craig was present and refused to vote;

"That Controller Craig, as a member of the Sinking Fund Commission, failed to take action when the Dock Commissioner recommended a clause to be put into new pier leases to prevent profiteering;

"That Controller Craig has abused all his colleagues on the Board of Estimate and thus delayed the transaction of the city's business, and

"That his criticisms of the Board of Education were declared to be obstructive, unjust and contrary to easily ascertainable facts."

Senator Lockwood declared that he expected to be elected Controller by a substantial plurality over Craig.

ITALIANS OPPOSE HYLAN.

Clubs League Chairman Urges Them to Vote Against Him.

A call to voters of Italian birth or descent to "remember Fiume" and to vote against the Democratic ticket and to resent the alleged attempt on the part of Mayor Hylan to use the reception and dinner to General Diaz for political purposes, was issued yesterday by Nicholas Selvaggi, Chairman of the League of Italian Clubs.

Mr. Selvaggi said the claim of the Hylan campaign textbook that the Mayor had done anything for the Italians was all "bunk." He asked who were Hylan's friends and who were putting up the money to re-elect him. "Our Italian people will be surprised to learn," he said, "that Hylan's backers are Baruch, Wilson's War Board head; Creel, Wilson's press agent; Wallis, Wilson's immigration officer; McAdoo, Wilson's son-in-law; Tumulty, Wilson's secretary, and Gibboney, Wilson's organizer. And these Wilson men have the audacity to ask the Italian people to vote the way they want them to vote."

CITY JOINS CHICAGO HIGHER FARE FIGHT

CASE TO BE HEARD TODAY

Mayor Charges That Interborough Counsel Filed Brief in Washington.

Mayor Hylan issued two statements yesterday, one to the effect that he considered the contest between himself and Henry H. Curran, Coalition candidate, a referendum on traction, and the other announcing that he had met a threatened coup by the "traction ring," by instructing Corporation Counsel O'Brien to appear before the United States Supreme Court in Washington today and represent New York City in the appeal of the City of Chicago from the decision of its Public Utility Commission increasing fares in that city to ten cents. The Mayor said that James L. Quackenbush, counsel for the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, had secretly filed a brief on the Chicago case.

"The traction ring has made its latest and most brazen move," said the Mayor. "The adroit attorneys of the ring thought that during the closing hours of the campaign we would be so diverted by the pressure of public business and by the slanders emitted by 'Subway Sam,' 'Traction Jerome' and 'Injunction Jim' that they could put over a grand coup. They made their play but they reckoned without their host. We were not too busy to act. This is the story.

"In Chicago, just as here, the traction interests have been trying to dig deeper into the pockets of the people. The difference between Chicago and New York is that out there they succeeded in getting a ten-cent fare, while in New York we have been able to hold the companies to a five-cent fare, which is provided in the contracts and franchises. The City of Chicago took an appeal to the United States Supreme Court. That appeal comes up for argument tomorrow, Monday, Nov. 7. The legal questions raised in that case are in many respects the same as those raised in the traction litigation begun by my Administration here.

"Without informing Corporation Counsel O'Brien or myself of the move he was making, James L. Quackenbush, chief attorney for the Interborough, quietly and secretly filed a brief in the United States Supreme Court in the Chicago case. He seeks to intervene, hoping that we will be asleep while he submits his side of the New York traction question."

"But Quackenbush and Receivers Hedges, Garrison and Sheffield are not as clever as they think they are. The city learned of their move, and Corporation Counsel O'Brien, at my direction, is on his way to Washington, and will be in the United States Supreme Court Monday morning. I have also rallied all the cities of this State where similar rights have been invaded and I am informed that the up-State cities will respond and that on Monday the United States Supreme Court will hear not only the voice of the people of this city, but that spokesmen of Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Elmira, Schenactady and Albany will be there."

In his second statement, the Mayor declared that there would be no increase in fare if he were elected. "If the electorate choose me," he said "I shall deem it, and insist that it be so deemed, (1) a command to the Miller-McAneny Transit Commission that it abandon its increased fare 'plan' with all the vicious features contained in it that I have pointed out; (2) a direction to the Legislature that it repeal at once the Miller-Knight-Adler traction law, and (3) a direction to the Legislature to give to the city plenary power to handle its own transit affairs."

PLAY 'TAMMANY' FOR HYLAN

Mayor Tells Lodge He Has Driven Vice Off the Streets.

When Mayor Hylan entered the ballroom of the Hotel Astor last night to speak at the jubilee dinner of the Independent Justice Lodge somebody motioned to the leader of the negro orchestra for music. The orchestra jumped into "Tammany" and sang the chorus.

The Mayor congratulated the organization on its long existence and fraternal work, and said it was something that was near to his own heart because of its humanity.

The Mayor said he didn't think much of a class of reformers allied with those who are always seeking the almighty dollar and who didn't care how they got it. He had gained the distinction of being criticised by some of these profiteers, he said, and was glad of it.

The Mayor attacked the Gary school system and the Rockefeller Foundation for what he called their attempts to prevent children being educated for the higher professions.

"I have broken down that strangle hold since I have been in office," he said.

Mayor Hylan also spoke of the Police Department and said that it had driven vice off the streets and made the city cleaner than ever before.

MERIT SYSTEM IMPERILED

Says Proposal Is That of "a Small But Noisy Minority" of Ex-Service Men.

George Brokaw Compton, 501 Fifth Avenue, who served at the front in France, with the 349th Field Artillery, who has consistently opposed organized efforts by World War veterans to obtain special benefits and privileges for themselves as a class, warns against the adoption of Constitutional Amendment No. 1 at the election tomorrow.

"Vote 'No'!" he says. "Constitutional Amendment No. 1, which is to be voted on next Tuesday, has one purpose only. It is for the benefit of ex-service men. Understanding what this proposal really means, no truly patriotic citizen will vote for it unless his or her native good sense is overcome by misguided sentimentality. It is not concerned with the efficient transaction of public business. The good of the veteran is put ahead of the 'good of the service.' The blanket bonus demanded was for money only. This is a demand for the demoralization of public business for private gain. It is a pernicious proposal.

"The principle of merit and fitness in our civil service, resulting from decades of struggle against the 'spoils' system which water-logged public business during the greater part of the nineteenth century, is imperiled. If lost by constitutional amendment, this principle will be lost forever. Once adopted, constitutional amendments can not be repealed with the same ease that a legislature repeals an ordinary statute.

"The time has come for the American people to take thoughtful counsel of courage and fittingly rebuke the small but noisy minority of able-bodied ex-service men whose present activities seem to centre on an effort to capitalize a patriotic service for personal profit. The courage that is lacking in legislative halls must be supplied at the polls. Political expediency more than personal convictions dictates the votes of too many legislators on propositions which are to be submitted for a direct vote of the people at the polls. This was undoubtedly true of the two occasions on which the Legislature voted in favor of this proposal. Now the people at large must speak.

"No one is advocating this amendment except organizations of veterans. They are attempting to convince the public that ex-service men almost unanimously favor this proposal. Even if the members of all the various organizations of veterans were unanimous in their sentiment, this would not be true. But they are not. The American Legion in New York is now attempting to suppress the freedom of speech of some of its members. The Willard Straight Post is to lose its charter for daring to oppose this amendment after county and State conventions have voted in favor of it. 'Self-service' seems to have become the motto of the American Legion. It is safe to say that the combined membership of all the organizations of veterans does not equal 25 per cent. of the ex-service men. Yet, this comparatively small combined membership includes practically the entire group of ex-service men whose conduct and opinions are shaped by selfish or political motives.

"The demand for this amendment is based upon the fallacious assumption that most veterans performed heroic services and made substantial sacrifices. This is true of men disabled in the service. Such disability is the only safe and fair test of eligibility for the proposed preference. Able-bodied veterans are not entitled to such preference. Those asking for it display a lamentable lack of patriotic public spirit. Vote 'No'!"

GILROY IS HECKLED IN CHURCH MEETING

Mother Leaves Hall When Audience Bombards Candidate With Questions.

HE REPUDIATES CIRCULAR

Quoted by Woman, It Slurs Catholics, and Speaker Calls It a Tammany Trick.

Vincent Gilroy, Coalition candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, was heckled last night during and after his speech in the Community Church, Park Avenue and East Eighty-fourth Street. So severe was the heckling that his mother refused to remain to see her son treated in that way. She left the hall with Mr. Gilroy's father. Mr. Gilroy went after them, but was unable to get them to return.

It was evident from the moment that he began his speech that Mr. Gilroy faced a hostile audience of about two hundred persons, and their questioning later indicated that many of them were Socialists, Single Taxers or Sinn Feiners.

The greatest excitement of the meeting was caused by a woman who produced a circular which she said she had received from a man on a Curran-Lockwood-Gilroy truck in Fulton Street, Brooklyn, on Thursday night, and from which she read the following:

"Mayor Hylan has made a failure of the public schools, as all Roman Catholics will do."

Mr. Gilroy denied that any such circular had been prepared or distributed by the Coalition committee.

"In all probability it was distributed by Tammany men, for it looks like an old Tammany trick," he said. "I am a Roman Catholic, and no one supporting me would put out such a circular."

A negro who said he had come all the way from Harlem said that Curran had denounced Hylan and that Hylan had denounced Curran and that both were probably right. The audience applauded.

Another questioner, apparently referring to Mr. Gilroy's slight Irish accent, said the New York people wanted only officials with American accents.

"I was born in New York City," Mr. Gilroy replied. "Whatever brogue I may have I came by honestly."

Another questioner asked what Mr. Gilroy, if elected, would do to release Eugene V. Debs, and the candidate replied that he would be too busy with the duties of his office to undertake anything outside.

UNTERMYER LISTS FOUR 'LIES' BY HYLAN

SAYS INQUIRY WAS JUST

Might Have Submitted Mayor's Testimony to Grand Jury—Calls Him a "Monumental Liar."

Samuel Untermyer replied again yesterday to attacks made upon him by Mayor Hylan and gave four specific instances in which he said the Mayor "had lied" concerning him or concerning campaign issues.

"It is important," said Mr. Untermyer in a statement, "that this avalanche of brazen and false representations, repeated in the prepared speech that was read by Mayor Hylan at nine meetings last night, should be exposed so that the voters shall not be deceived.

"In the same issue of the same papers that contain the announcement of the call of the Transit Commission for public hearings on its plan to begin on Nov. 15 and that the plan will be closely followed by the Commission, appears the positive statement of Mayor Hylan that he has forced the withdrawal of that plan, in which he plainly implies that he has already defeated the plan. Can you beat that for mendacity?"

Mr. Untermyer said that the Mayor had said that he had tried to run the Administration, when the fact was that he had refused to have anything to do with it. Mr. Untermyer said the one exception was his recommendation of Frederick H. Bugher for appointment as Police Commissioner.

Mr. Untermyer said that the Mayor had charged that when he became counsel of the Lockwood committee that "the traction ring knew he had been faithful in their service for many years; that he was heavily interested in their securities, and that Untermyer and De Lancey Nicoll were tied together in the management of the Freedman estate."

"Let us take these statements in order," said Mr. Untermyer. "I did not then own and have not since owned, directly or indirectly, a dollar of traction securities. The $20,000 of 4½ per cent. bonds I once held as an investment, as very many with money invest in bonds, had been sold years before.

"I have never at any time been in the service of any of the companies in any capacity whatever, either as counsel or otherwise, and have, on the contrary, been repeatedly in controversy with them. There has been a lifelong hostility between us.

"Mr. DeLancey Nicoll and I are old and warm friends. He was never consulted by me on anything connected with the Lockwood committee. At no time had he the slightest interest in or connection with any phase of the Andrew Freedman Estate. This is pure fiction and the Mayor knows it.

"The Mayor complains that he was unjustly treated by me before the Lockwood committee. He was most considerately and generously treated. If he had been unjustly treated his testimony would have been presented to the Grand Jury for action. I charge him with having tried to suppress the correspondence between Hettrick and himself before he suspected that we had secured part of it by seizing Hettrick's files, and with having repeatedly sworn falsely concerning his relations with Hettrick.

"The boldness, facility and versatility of this man as a monumental liar are simply staggering. They fairly take one's breath away."

Congressman Ryan Says Tammany Means to "Count Him Out."

A Tammany plot to "count out" Ernest F. Eilert, Coalition candidate for Borough President of Manhattan, was charged yesterday by Congressman Thomas Jefferson Ryan, his campaign manager, who said that a squad of 300 volunteer watchers had been organized, including 100 girl students of Radcliffe College.

"The only thing that can defeat Eilert is Tammany's possible success in marking votes for his opponent on ballots on which crosses have not been made for any candidate for Borough President," Mr. Ryan said.

prestige from him. It is equally plain that the forces that raised $600,000 for Governor Miller last year, every dollar traceable to holders of traction and gas securities, nominated Curran and financed his campaign.

"The election is won, but it is not over until every one has done his duty on Tuesday. We will have to meet and fight money just as it was used four years ago—money used to buy venal votes and to prevent by intimidation the casting of honest Hylan votes."

"We are ready for them," said Mr. Lyons. "They have the surprise of their lives awaiting them Tuesday night. Don't mind the straw polls and don't mind the betting odds. They mean nothing. The women are voting Tuesday and they are not telling how they will vote. An underswell has rolled in to Curran in the last three days which will swamp Hearst and all his ticket.

"The traction money has gone to Hylan. The traction interests would not support Curran because no man can handle Curran. Hylan has had their money and he has spread it around like water. Everybody sees this and everybody knows whose money Hylan has. But all the traction gold in American will not elect Hylan. The people want more than talk this time. Our campaign has cost us less than $70,000, and if there is a man or woman in New York who doubts this let them come to my office tomorrow morning and I will gladly show the books. Don't be fooled again. Stand firm by your convictions. It is too late for Mr. Delaney, who is a traction man himself, to try to stampede the voters. The die is cast, and Curran will be elected the seventh Mayor of New York on Tuesday by 150,000 votes."

Julius Gerber, Socialist campaign manager, predicted last night that Municipal Court Justice Jacob Panken, candidate for Mayor, would poll 200,000 votes and that twelve Socialist Aldermen and the same number of Socialist Assemblymen would be elected.

Mr. Gerber declared that Socialist Aldermen would be elected in the Fourth, Sixth, Seventeenth and Eighteenth Districts in Manhattan, three districts in the Bronx and five districts in Brooklyn. He predicted the election of five Socialist Assemblymen in the Bronx, five in Brooklyn and two in Manhattan.

ELECTION OF CLARK FORECAST BY SIEGEL

The election of John Kirkland Clark, Coalition candidate for District Attorney, was predicted yesterday by Congressman Isaac Siegel, chairman of his campaign committee, who said the voters would judge each man by his record.

"Clark has shown that acting District Attorney Joab H. Banton, his Tammany opponent, is only the willing tool of Tammany," Mr. Siegel said. "Under his administration the old attitude of aggressive co-operation with the police in the suppression of crime and the detection of criminals has been frankly and shamelessly abandoned. Under Banton, the office has become a Tammany Hall annex.

"What is Clark's program? It is definite and clear: to secure indictments only when the evidence justifies indictments, and then to prosecute promptly and with vigor; to guard jealously the rights of any accused; to divorce the office of District Attorney from political influence of any kind; to conduct the office as the biggest and most important law office in the country should be conducted.

"What Clark has uncovered in the way of laxity, inefficiency and dishonest subserviency to Tammany has struck home to the voters. And his own program and promises have made an extraordinary appeal."

matter is now of some urgency it is believed that it is for that reason that the journey is being made to Berlin.

The negotiations which Herr Havenstein, the Director of the Reichsbank, has been carrying on in London may be in this way helped to successful completion and the instalment due Jan. 15 paid by means of a London loan which will have priority in security through the consent of the Reparations Commission.

Such a solution of how Germany may pay her next instalment is regarded, however, at best as a temporary expedient. The next instalment will be due before the markets have time to recover, and gradually more and more of Germany's assets will be surrendered by the commission to creditors of the Reich. Even if this succeeds, some other method will have to be found before the next instalment is due, and the tendency of opinion generally is to ascribe the present situation and what is called "Bolshevik finance" in Germany to a deliberate attempt to provoke bankruptcy.

Writers like Leon Bailby declare that it is now abundantly clear that the fall of the mark is a concerted manoeuvre to enable Germany to face the Allies with empty pockets, albeit they are bulging with paper notes. The only hope which is seen for the future is in the extension for France, at least, of the principle of the Loucheur-Rathenau agreement—payment by Germany in goods.

FINANCIAL COLLAPSE LOOMS IN GERMANY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 6.—This is Germany's black week-end and it seems here as though Berlin were going the way of Vienna. The mark has collapsed to the verge of 1,000 to the pound sterling. Waves of raiders, mostly Americans, are sweeping into the city with cheap marks and out again with trucks full of goods of all descriptions. But the avalanche of increased prices is already in motion and will probably check this invasion.

The week-end has been notable for the highly pessimistic speech by the German Finance Minister, which is generally regarded as little less than a "declaration of bankruptcy." The Government clearly shows that it sees no way to ward off a catastrophe. With a deficit of 110,000,000 marks, it helplessly adheres to its fifteen new taxes to produce 42,000,000 and declines to try any experiments when financial chaos seems to be approaching with seven league boots.

Really, the whole problem has become too stupendous for those who have to deal with it and the Finance Minister says it is utterly impossible to balance the budget. The fall of the mark simply plays havoc with everything in prices, taxes, wages, budgets. It means that Germany's yearly reparations indebtedness is now at the quite unthinkable figure of 200,000,000 marks.

During the week, too, 1,800,000,000 marks in new notes are to be issued, making nearly 3,500,000,000 for the month.

There are signs, too, that Germany is on the eve of serious labor troubles, while industry is at wit's end regarding the problem of obtaining raw material. Cotton, which cost 17 marks per kilo in April, cost 84 marks last week on a rising market. Wool cost 8½ marks per pound in April; it is up 30 marks this week-end. Yarn has risen from 64 to 171 marks per kilo.

Much hope had been placed in the prospect of a large credit which was to be provided for the Government by the country's industries, but last evening hope in the effectiveness of this help was almost wholly dispelled. The matter has been handled on the usual party and egotistical lines. The industrial leaders agreed to negotiate with the Government for the provision of this credit on extraordinary terms.

They insisted, among other things, that State enterprises being run at a loss must be got rid of by the State. That is another effort, in reality, to force the Government to hand over at least the railways to private enterprise. The efforts of some of the industrial chieftains to have the terms made less stiff were defeated, largely by the action of Hugo Stinnes who, with his eye on the railways, forced through the original conditions. The Government can hardly agree to abandon the railways and other State enterprises, so the credit proposal will most likely come to naught.

Meanwhile, all classes of people continue to gamble heavily on the exchange, though the financial papers are beginning to warn them to look out for the crash.

DERNBURG SUGGESTS 10-YEAR MORATORIUM

Also Wants Us to Give Allies More Time on Debts and Make Loan to Germany.

BERLIN, Nov. 6 (Associated Press).—Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, who has held the post of Finance Minister, discusses the German economic situation in the Tageblatt and outlines a plan which, he declares, is the only way to save Germany from financial ruin and "the rest of the world from wage slavery and business instability." His plan embraces the following points:

First—That the United States grant the Entente powers additional time on its credits and advance loans to the central powers for the purchase of raw materials.

Second—The declaration of a ten-year moratorium on German reparations.

Third—Arrangement of Germany's internal financial problems.

Fifth—Immediate reduction of the cost of occupation of German territory.

Sixth—Expert examination of Germany's ability to pay and the establishment of her rights under Article 234 of the Peace Treaty.

The stabilization of the mark is impossible, says Dr. Dernburg, so long as "reparations are being paid by printing presses." He estimates that taxes in Germany amount to 22,000 marks yearly per family, of which 6,000 is for internal expenses.

Austria's Deficit 150 Billion Crowns

VIENNA, Nov. 6.—The Government on Tuesday will introduce before Parliament the budget estimate bill for 1922. The bill will show a deficit of 150,000,000,000 crowns.

EXPECT ANDREWS TO WIN BY 20,000

Westchester County Republicans Believe They Will Elect 5 Assemblymen.

A survey of the political conditions in Westchester County indicates that the Republicans never were more strongly entrenched, and it is expected that they will elect five Assemblymen, a Coroner and a majority of the Supervisors.

Reports received by William L. Ward, the Republican leader, from various parts of the county show that the county will give Judge William Andrews, candidate for member of the Court of Appeals, at least 20,000 plurality over Townsend Scudder. It is expected that County Judge Frank L. Young of Ossining, who is running for Supreme Court Justice in the Ninth Judicial District, will receive at least 25,000 plurality in Westchester.

LAWYERS AID ANDREWS.

1,250 in Manhattan and Bronx Join C. E. Hughes Jr.'s Committee.

It was announced last night that 1,250 lawyers living and practicing in Manhattan and the Bronx had become members of the William S. Andrews Judiciary Committee, which, under the leadership of Charles E. Hughes, Jr., is working for Judge Andrews, Republican candidate for Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals. Judge Andrews is sitting on this bench by appointment and has been nominated to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Emory A. Chase. Among the Democratic lawyers on the committee are Martin Conboy, Harold A. Content, Abraham Tulin and James A. Delehanty.

MISS MATTHEWS IS 'OVER 30'

Miss Annie Matthews, Democratic candidate for Register, had a birthday party yesterday at her headquarters in the Hotel Vanderbilt. She was greeted by a number of the candidates in tomorrow's election and many of the women leaders of the city.

"Say that I'm over thirty," she said, smilingly. "I'm old enough to possess judgment and young enough not to be decrepit. But as for my age, that is my secret, and I'm going to stick to it."

Among those who called to pay their compliments to Miss Matthews were Controller Craig, Assistant District Attorney Banton, Democratic candidate for District Attorney; William Harmon Black, Magistrate Jean Norris, Miss Elizabeth Marbury, Thomas D. McCarthy, former United States Marshal, and Magistrate Francis X. Mancuso, candidate for Judge of General Sessions, as well as many of the Democratic women leaders of the city.

CURRAN TO USE WIRELESS.

His Last Speech of Campaign Tonight to Be Over Radio Phone.

At the last minute of the campaign Mr. Curran will deliver a final message to the voters tonight through the wireless telephone apparatus, and his campaign managers hope the message will be picked up in all parts of the city by amateurs, ships and business stations.

His campaign managers did not know last night the exact hour of the speech tonight, but it probably will be late in the evening. They said they did not know just where Mr. Curran would speak into the transmission apparatus, but that it would probably be at the home of some amateur operator who had the proper facilities for the transmission.

The words of the Coalition candidate will be a final summary of charges against the Hylan Administration and pledges for his conduct of the office if he is elected.

WIRELESS ENTERS CONTEST

Mayor Speaks Into Radio Phone on Traction and Other Issues.

Mayor Hylan delivered a campaign speech by wireless telephone last night. He spoke of the five-cent fare, the school question and other election issues into a telephone transmitter in the office of A. H. Grebe & Co., manufacturers of radio receiving apparatus at 10 Van Wyck Avenue, Richmond Hill, and his voice was carried to all the receiving stations in the metropolitan district. Among those who heard him was Police Commissioner Enright, in whose Brooklyn home a receiving station was installed several days ago by the Ship Owners' Radio Service.

Election returns will be sent out by wireless telephone tomorrow night. Phonograph concerts are sent out frequently at night.

JAPAN'S GENRO ACT TO FILL HARA'S POST

ASSASSIN BELIEVED A TOOL

Search Is Made for a Well-Dressed Man, Who Fled After Attack, as Instigator of Crime.

TOKIO, Nov. 6 (Associated Press).—Marquis Saionji arrived here today from Kioto and conferred with Marquis Matsukata, Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, at the palace, on the subject of the formation of a new Cabinet. Field Marshal Prince Yamagata, the third of the Genro, or Elder Statesmen, and member of the Military Council of the Empire, was unable to attend the conference owing to illness. He is at his villa in the Odawara, where Marquis Matsukata is expected to proceed immediately.

It is regarded as unlikely that there will be any announcement of the formation of a new Cabinet until after this visit. Speculation over the prospective head of the Cabinet still centres on Marquis Saionji, but it is regarded as a question whether he will accept. Viscount Makino, Minister of the Imperial Household, is among the alternatives mentioned for the post.

The Japan Advertiser says that if Marquis Saionji or other Seiyukai leader (adherent of the Hara Cabinet) assume office, it is believed that the personnel of the Cabinet will be little changed. If Marquis Saionji refuses the recall to political life, it is the opinion of The Advertiser that the post will be offered to Baron Goto, Mayor of Tokio, who is known to have cherished ministerial ambitions for several years, but it is considered doubtful that he would accept at this juncture. His position, it is pointed out, would not be strong because of the absence from the country of some of his influential friends.

Ask Saionji to Serve.

Alternative to a Saionji or Goto Ministry, it is thought in many quarters that a Cabinet might be formed headed by Admiral Count Yamamoto, who was Premier in 1913 and 1914 and is leader of the Satsuma interests.

The War Minister, General Yaoanashi, it is reported, will carry out his determination to resign regardless of the complexion of the Cabinet. Leaders of the Seiyukai, including Finance Minister Takahashi, Minister of the Interior Tokonami and Minister of Railways Motoda, have held a meeting and agreed to request Marquis Saionji to head the new Cabinet and at the same time accept the Presidency of the Seiyukai. They express the belief that he will not refuse if the Emperor so requests.

Branches of the Seiyukai throughout the country have held extraordinary meetings to consider the future of the party.

Premier Hara's assassin, Kyicki Nakoka, has been confined to prison after an examination, in which he acknowledged the crime. The police have not made public the reasons for the assassination, if Nakoka has included them in his confession.

Believed Tool of Another.

Nakoka is now thought to have been but a tool in a conspiracy to encompass the statesman's death. Thorough search is being made for a well-dressed, unidentified man who was observed hurriendly leaving the railway station at Otsuka, where the crime was committed, at the moment Nakoka plunged his sword into the Premier's breast. The authorities believe this man to have been the instigator of the assassination.

Premier Hara was about to take a train at 7:30 o'clock for Kioto to attend a meeting of the Seiyukai Party. With him were a number of the party leaders, including Hajime Motoda, former Minister of Communications; Heikichi Ogawa, Genji Matsuda, one of the party whips, and M. Yoshiuye.

As M. Hara passed through the wicket to the station platform, Nakoka leaped at him and, exclaiming: "The country's enemy!" plunged a short sword into his left breast, the blade puncturing a lung. The assassin was seized, while the fallen Premier was carried to the stationmaster's room. First aid was administered and he was taken to his home. He died within a few minutes after his arrival there.

News of the attack had been immediately dispatched to Emperor Yoshihito, who sent his Lord Chamberlain to the Premier's bedside. Crown Prince Hirohito was dining at the Tokio Club when word reached him. The party dispersed, the Prince sending Baron Arata Hamao, his Lord Steward, to the Hara residence. The fortnightly dance at the Imperial Hotel, attended by many Japanese of prominence, and other gatherings throughout the city were summarily suspended as the sad news spread.

Charles B. Warren, American Ambassador, issued a statement expressing his profound sympathy with Japan in the loss of one of its foremost and most progressive leaders. His death, Mr. Warren said, was nothing short of a calamity, coming at this particular time. It was fortunate, he added, that Japan had a group of men who could be depended upon to steer a safe course in the difficult period confronting the nation.

CECIL URGES BACKING PARLEY.

Says Armament Cut Must Depend Greatly on Public Opinion.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Lord Robert Cecil, in an article in The Daily Chronicle, makes an appeal for public support for the Washington conference. He points out that the committee appointed by the Assembly of the League of Nations to consider limitation of armaments made a report which said among other things:

"It is of great importance that the peoples of the world should be made aware how much of money and personnel are devoted to armaments as a direct consequence of international fear and suspicion by reason of the relativity of their respective states of safety. It is only by realization of this truth that an effective appeal can be made to the reason and conscience of mankind in favor of a serious reduction of armaments."

Lord Robert adds:

"It is supremely necessary that this effective appeal should be made, and made speedily, to the mass of people, for in the matter of disarmament governments must depend very greatly upon the popular will and their efforts may easily be fatally thwarted by a popular demand for so-called 'safety.' The Washington conference is about to open and the immediate prospects of a successful limitation of armaments hang upon its issues. Therefore there is no time to be lost in mobilizing public support for it."

LIKENS ARMS PARLEY TO A NEW CARD GAME

Baron Shidehara Compares Nations to Poker Players and Says Mr. Nippon Has a Good Hand.

WOULD END "BACKBITING"

Says "Friend Sam" Is Inclined Unduly to Criticise Others, "Dear Old Mr. Bull," for Instance.

Seeing the coming conference as a new card game with cards face up, armaments as walking sticks, the nations as old poker players of imperfect manners and uncertain tempers, Baron Shidehara, the Japanese Ambassador, plays humorously with the subject in a letter to Life made public yesterday.

The Ambassador asserts that Mr. Nippon regards "backbiting" and "muck gossiping" as two of the greatest causes of "bludgeoning." In this respect he says that Mr. Nippon may speak up and suggest that "Friend Sam" be a little more polite to "Dear Old Mr. Bull."

"You have asked me for an estimate of the forthcoming conference at Washington for the benefit of the readers of Life," wrote the Ambassador, "and without referring your request to Tokio for Cabinet consideration, I hasten to tell you how Mr. Nippon regards the matter.

"Mr. Uncle Sam, the richest gentleman in the world, has invited a number of his guests to come to his residence in Washington on Nov. 11 to consider the qusetion of walking-sticks. It is said that there will be dry doplomacy at the party, and that a new game, unlike poker, will be played with all the cards face up on the table.

Mr. Nippon Holds a Good Hand.

"This is a novel suggestion; but Mr. Nippon is something of a sport, and cries 'Banzai!'—which, in plain United States, menas 'Bravo!' He speaks this way because he holds a very good hand and knows it, reports to the contrary having been circulated for betting purposes. There are sometimes fortunes to be made by interested persons in judicious deception.

"Mr. Nippon, being only human, like other gentlemen, has made other errors in playing the old game of bluff, but the game was one that had been forced upon him. Indeed, it was Mr. Sam himself, followed by Mr. J. Bull and others, who first showed Mr. Nippon the world. If you have been a reader of the papers, Mr. Editor, for as many as seventy years, you will remember that it was Mr. Sam, who, in his sporting days, went abroad and discovered the little Japanese fellow, already an old man, living a simple life in a rather humble home on an island off the coast of the vast and mystifying continent of Asia. Mr. Sam was both importunate and imperative, and Mr. Nippon, seeing it was useless to demur, came out of his seclusion, smiled and tried to be polite according to his unsophisticated ways.

Mr. Nippon's Manners Misunderstood.

"But his manners were misunderstood and he soon realized that he was what is called an 'outsider,' and a subject of jest. He then inquired of a teacher of etiquette and learned that what he lacked was not so much good manners as haughty manner. Bearing, not breeding, the teacher said, was the thing. So Mr. Nippon began to behave somewhat like other gentlemen, changed his paper parasol for a walking stick and kept increasing the size of the stick as the style developed—knowing all the while that the style was vulgar, if not actually unhuman, but having no other recourse.

"Now the world has become more kindly, and great and small people, rich and poor, are invited to Mr. Sam's magnificent mansion to be his guests on democratic terms, to see if they can 'get together' with him, deal more generously with each other and reduce the significant size of the 'big sticks' to one of decent proportions. 'Hip, hurray, banzai!' says Mr. Nippon. 'I am with you! Do you get me?'

"In this connection, Mr. Editor, let me say that the Japanese gentleman thinks (and of this I am officially informed) that even more important than such matters as promoting equal opportunity and substituting a face-up game of cards for poker, is that of terminating the habit of backbiting.

Must Stop "Muck-Gossiping."

"Such a practice, indulged in by all, is certainly unbecoming to gentlemen whose popular portraits are so benign and inspiring. Mr. Nippon is of the opinion that, if men are ever to cease bludgeoning each other, it is essential to stop the practice of muck-gossiping.

"There is another matter about which Mr. Nippon might make bold to speak, though he does so with hesitation, desiring in no way himself to be critical. It seems to him that friend Sam is sometimes inclined unduly to criticize others, even those who have been, like Sam, great benefactors to their fellowmen—as, for example, our mutual friend, from whom we have both benefited so greatly, dear old Mr. Bull.

"Mr. Nippon sends his regards and asks me to say that he will be a bright and early guest at Washington in November."

DUTCH DELEGATES ARRIVE.

Washington Awaits the Coming of Premier Briand Today.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Ranks of the foreign delegates assembling here for the Conference on Limitation of Armaments and Far Eastern problems, which opens next Saturday, were swelled today by the arrival of the representatives of the Netherlands Government, accompanied by a staff of technical advisers and secretaries. They were met at the station by Secretary Hughes and Admiral Coontz, Chief of Naval Operations, the usual military courtesies being extended.

The delegation is headed by H. A. Van Karnebeek, Minister of Foreign Affairs. With him are associated F. Beelaerts Van Blokland, Chief of the Political Division of the Foreign Ministry, and Dr. E. Moresco, Secretary General of the Colonial Ministry and Vice President of the Council of the Netherlands East Indies. The group of technical advisers includes officials in close touch with the colonial policies and problems of the Government, among them being De Kat Angelino, adviser for Chinese affairs of the Dutch East Indian Government.

General Vaccari, the Italian Chief of Staff, and Admiral Acton, head of the Italian Navy General Staff, technical experts who will aid the Italian delegates in the conference, joined the throng of distinguished visitors in Washington tonight. Tomorrow the French delegation, headed by Premier Briand and including former Premier Viviani and M. Albert Sarraut, Minister for the Colonies, is scheduled to arrive.

Ernesto de Vasconcellos, Portuguese delegate, is also due tomorrow.

The next group to reach Washington, due Nov. 10, includes Arthur J. Balfour of the British delegation and Senator George Foster Pearce, delegate for Australia and Minister for Defense. Several important members of the British and Australian advisory groups are to arrive at the same time.

JAPAN NOT TO RAISE EQUALITY QUESTION

vision recognizing the equality of races, or, as subsequently proposed by the Japanese, of the equality of nations. The Japanese delegates were criticised on the ground that they had brought forward this matter in the expectation that it would be rejected, with the intention of using it as the basis of an assertion that Japan's rights were not recognized by the conference. The further argument was made that when there was danger that the transfer of Shantung to Japan was threatened Japan referred to this and the rejection of the racial equality provision as evidence that the conference intended to deny the rightful aspirations of Japan.

Secretary Lansing has said that the Japanese delegation at Paris agreed to sign the Covenant as a result of a bargain by which Japan got Shantung. In his book, "The Peace Negotiations," Mr. Lansing said that the Shantung agreement "was the result of a confidential arrangement with the Japanese delegates by which, in the event of their claims being granted, they withdrew their threat to decline to sign the treaty of peace, agreed not to insist on a proposed amendment to the Covenant declaring for racial equality, and orally promised to restore to China in the near future certain rights of sovereignty over the territory, which promise failed of confirmation in writing by formal public declaration."

Y. Bryan I. Yamashita of Tokio, a former protégé of William J. Bryan, arrived in Washington today from the Japanese capital as an observer of the conference. He has been a leading member of the Japanese peace association for many years and has represented the Carnegie Peace Endowment in Japan.

As a whole, he said, the Japanese people were very glad that President Harding called the conference, and the suggestion of reducing naval armaments met with "almost unanimous approval among the thinking people of Japan." Mr. Yamashita said he was very hopeful of the success of the conference, but that, in his judgment, more would be accomplished if it addressed itself exclusively to the question of disarmament. Owing to the high taxes which the Japanese people have to bear, a reduction in naval armament, he said, would indeed be welcome.

Mr. Yamashita came to the United States at the age of nineteen years and was educated by William J. Bryan at the University of Nebraska. He remained in the United States until 1907, when he returned to Tokio.

News of the Conference as Reported to Europe

SEES IN GOOD-WILL A CONFERENCE ASSET

Colonel Repington Is Impressed With That Shown by All the Delegations.

REGARDS CHINA AS THE CRUX

She Will Present a Strong Case, He Says, and No Power Will Find Its Withers Unwrung.

By LIEUT. COL. REPINGTON.

Dispatch to the London Daily Telegraph.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—We are within a week of the opening of the Conference, and, in spite of the difficulties and complexities of the subjects to be discussed, there is a certain quiet confidence that the object of President Harding calling this assembly together may be accomplished.

The foundation of this feeling is to be found in the obvious and even remarkable good-will of all the delegations, which reflect, presumably, the sentiments and intentions of the Governments which they represent. No exception can be discovered to this rule, and relations will remain amicable, provided that no power seeks to draw up an indictment against others or to snatch selfish advantages from certain divergences of interests. Dame Columbia's school apparently consists of very good boys who will not need the birch and would even have spirit enough to resent it.

Need of Good Humor and Patience.

We must all see that the agenda of the Conference not only include subjects of vast and vital interest to several States represented here but aims at results which are intended to be permanent so far as such a word can be applied to mundane affairs. Therefore, no one should object if some cherished scheme, dear to one promoter or another, is riddled with criticism or even rejected, for all affairs of this sort have to pass through such a fire before the good metal can be separated from the bad. There must be good humor and patience toward opposition, and there must be recognition that there are many roads by which we can reach our common objective.

We all know our own views and are naturally tenacious of them, but we must also strive to comprehend at least the views of other nations and even to respect them. No one must be asked to sacrifice vital national interests or security. But a spirit of compromise and conciliation will be in the air, and good temper should be the prevailing note. In the comparative calm and amidst the serene surroundings of this pleasant town, so well designed for thought and quiet contemplation, the atmosphere is favorable for the achievement of noble purposes.

If we take the limitation of naval armaments first, we shall in England, of course, study courteously but with critical eyes the plan which the American delegation will unfold to us. If this plan follows the general lines of the project sent to you in outline last Friday, Mr. Hughes will hardly expect that no one will better it. Our difficulty in thinking over the supposed plan is not to discover what constitutes naval power, but to discover what does not constitute it. Nor can we possess by any index figure or any percentage the relative importance of the possession of naval power to England and the United States respectively.

In other words, the plan may be found to lack simplicity, and my experience of the first Peace Conference was that the more we tied ourselves up with technical detail in attempts to limit armaments the more inextricably we embarrassed ourselves. It is now said, moreover, that the plan is restricted to capital ships, and I do not think that this restriction would necessarily terminate rivalry in naval armaments. How much better it would be were we all to agree to suspend all warship construction for a term of years, and leave it at that, without any suggestion of control, confiding in the honor of nations to carry out their undertaking when national parliaments had countersigned it. The best way, perhaps, will be for each delegation of the three great naval powers to bring forward its own scheme in turn, and then some continuation of the best features of all the plans may give us the result which we all desire.

No forecast of a plan for the limitation of land armaments has yet appeared here. When powers like England and the United States have scrapped all their war armor, the question does not interest them, while the composition of the conference is little suited to discuss European armies, for few of the many States of Europe are represented here. We may have some pious aspirations, or even suggestions for adjourning this mattr to some other conference. Nothing is certain yet, but the Administration here has made no play with this feature of their agenda and has rather sought to pour cold water on the idea that much can be expected.

"Crux of the Conference Is China."

The crux of the conference is China. The rectitude and sense of justice of the American Government have enabled China for the first time to state her case openly before the world and to demand the redress to which she is entitled. Like several other powers, China is well found in men and material for a presentment of her case and has good American counsel, like Mr. Robert Lansing, to aid her. It is to be hoped that she will be wise in her opening and make her points with moderation and without venom. It will be a strong case, and no power present will find its withers quite unwrung when all the facts have been presented. When we think of all the annexations, enforced leases, spheres of influence, concessions and so on that have been forced on China even since 1899, when Mr. Secretary Hay proclaimed the principle of the open door, we stand amazed that the world should so long have permitted and even condoned such great injustice.

A day of reckoning has come for us all, for, even if some Government may escape censure, its nationals who have been supported by their Government may not. But, on the other hand, these things go back to a period long ago, when more high-handed methods were the common vogue, and China's weakness, bad faith, and cruelties often deserved chastisement. We cannot unscramble all the Chinese eggs, but we can see that there is no more scrambling and renew in a more drastic and effective form the old principles of Mr. Hay. It will take some time to define what we mean by China, the open door, the integrity of China, her administrative integrity, the status of existing commitments, equality of commercial opportunity and so forth, while we have to settle some common principles respecting concessions, monopolies, preferential economic privileges and railway rates, most of which things cannot scrape a bowing acquaintance with the principles of Mr. Hay, which we all accepted at the time.

Never was such a dirty Augean stable known to statecraft, and Mr. Secretary Hughes is the Hercules who proposes to cleanse it. Even when it is clean, we have to make China viable as a Government by helping her with money and men to learn to govern herself again; and, if we cannot bring ourselves to confide this duty to any power mandated ad hoc, then some three of us must undertake it together, with some central reconstruction commission to watch over the progress of the whole business.

Then there is Siberia, toward which Mr. Hughes wishes the conference to assume a trusteeship in the interest of Russia until such time as a serious Russian Government is evolved. To be trustee to a lunatic or an infant is a considerable responsibility. Some one or other, in person or vicariously, has to go in and administer the estate. How this is to be done, by whom, and what attitude we should adopt toward the various de facto local Governments as they successively surge up, are no small problems, but here we must be reasonable and not confuse legal procedure with practical politics.

Japan is deeply interested in all these matters. They concern her future and her destinies. But the Anglo-Japanese Treaty and its infractions, if any, are solely a matter for the signatory powers, and do not come within the purview of the conference. Japan, like the rest of us, has to agree with the principles which the conference may establish respecting China or break with the West and revert to Asia. There was a moment when the Black Dragon Party seemed to be in control, and the worst was feared. But, if appearances go for anything, Japan is now going to show us her Western and not her Eastern face. She protests that she is no longer the Japan of the twenty-one demands of 1915, and if this be so, we are glad. The conversion appears to have been sudden. The reasons for it are interesting, but do not matter.

The fatality which has removed the Japanese Premier from the world stage is deeply regretted here, but until some pronouncement is made at Tokio, we cannot tell what effect Mr. Hara's untimely death may have at Washington. There is a chance of co-operation between England, America and Japan for the rehabilitation of China, and if this prove feasible it is the best way out. There is no other sure means of a peaceful termination of this Far Eastern trouble.

HEARS HUGHES VIEW IS UNLIKE HARDING'S

By PERTINAX.

Dispatch to the Echo de Paris.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—What will be the program of the Washington Government at the so-called Arms Conference? This morning a statement was issued in one of the Washington papers which, to all appearances, bears the stamp of the White House.

According to the information thus given to us, three guiding principles will dominate the American course of action. Firstly, the independence and the integrity of China must be enforced, but some account must be taken of the Japanese need of expansion. What such words are intended to mean in practice is not clear. Secondly, in order to succeed in bringing about the much-expected curtailment of naval armaments, it must be admitted that, dependent as she is on her overseas supplies, Britain must be conceded the enjoyment of an important measure of maritime power. Thirdly, similarly, so as to limit the military armament throughout Europe, the fears entertained by France about her future security must be allayed, not through any revival of the long-dead Tripatrtite Agreement, but possibly through the execution of the Versailles Treaty being made easier as a result of the moral pressure which could be brought to bear on the German Government.

Such are the ideas with which President Harding is personally credited. Rightly or wrongly, an impression has been created that the head of the State Department, as far as his personal inclinations are concerned, does not completely endorse the above program. He is supposed to refuse to admit that the Japanese geuinely need to expand abroad and he does not seem to be so well disposed toward England, convinced, as he is, that the prime responsibility for the present position in the Far East rests with the statesmen who concluded the Japanese Alliance; that is, with the London Cabinet.

Of course, I do not wish to suggest either that the above details are to be accepted as literally correct or that the defferences that may exist between President Harding and Mr. Hughes amount to anything more than a difference of temperament.

Physically and morally, the two men stand in the strongest contrast. Mr. Harding is presented to us as the embodiment of the average American, rather provincial in formation, a thoroughly good fellow, full of common sense and sound judgment. Mr. Hughes is a different type of man. The son of a Baptist minister in Wales, his religious education and his legal training are likely to impel him to look for principles first, to define them and number them carefully, and then to conduct his policy in strict accordance with them.

At the same time, it is said that Mr. Hughes realizes very vividly the dangers which overwhelmed the former President and will carefully keep clear of them all. At any rate, he is universally trusted and is considered as one of the greatest national assets. The President will certainly allow him a free hand and is not likely to interfere unless serious obstacles are met in the way.

Briefly sketched, such are the men, such are the tendencies, which will decide the great question of the hour—whether America will assume the leadership of the world, will play the great part which her immense resources befit but that hitherto she has not been able to fulfill.

ONE OF HIS CLERGY CRITICISES MANNING

FINDS FAULT WITH ORDER

Criticism of Bishop William T. Manning of the Episcopal Diocese of New York is made in The Chronicle for November, because he dedicated a new chapel for the Fathers of the Order of the Holy Cross at West Park, N. Y., Oct. 4.

The editor of The Chronicle is the Rev. Dr. Alexander G. Cummins, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Poughkeepsie, and one of Bishop Manning's own clergy.

The Order of the Holy Cross is a community of Anglican monks who take vows of poverty, celibacy and obedience.

In his editorial criticism Dr. Cummins says:

"Contrary to what many regarded as the wiser practice of such great churchmen as Bishops Greer and Potter, Bishop Manning made an official visit to the monks who live at West-Park-on-the-Hudson on Oct. 4. Doubtless, if we are to have a comprehensive Church, a Bishop may be expected and permitted to visit any set of men or women who conscientiously assume a peculiar garb or take upon themselves vows which a majority of other churchmen regard as dangerous or foolish.

"But the long, long trail of monasticism is full of intrigue and rebellion on the part of these irregulars against the regulars, i. e., monks against bishops, priests, deacons or laymen. History gives us a picture of the gossiping woman in all ages telling her eager tale against parish priest or bishop in the willing ears of a listening monk. This has been one of the most offensive combinations afflicting the Church in its centuries of unhappy debate and cruel persecution against men accused of heresy and unorthodoxy.

"With this picture must be placed another of the rich orthodox layman outside, ready to meet all deficits and stand all bills for further propaganda, provided that sufficient influence is used to keep him out of purgatory.

"West Park has its saints, no doubt, but it is also behind much false teaching in the Church. It cannot help itself in the nature of things. Its pamphlets and leaflets, its conferences and its affiliated sodalities have something of good in them as dubious institutions usually have, but that their object is to undermine all that a Biblical reformation Christianity has stood for is not a chimera or a mirage.

"Is it wise for the Bishop of a diocese which still remains old-fashioned and Protestant in its character to make one of his first official visitations to a monastic establishment hitherto felt to be a good place to avoid and historically in line with ways and teachings contrary to all that the American fathers stood for?"

CELEBRATE 100 YEARS OF MISSIONARY WORK

Episcopal churches throughout the United States and in many foreign lands yesterday celebrated the one hundredth anniversary of the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society of the Episcopal Church and the fiftieth anniversary of the Women's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Board of Missions.

Bishop William T. Manning paid a tribute to these organizations yesterday in his sermon at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. "Here in this cathedral, and in every church of our diocese, and in all our churches all over the land, we are thinking of one and the same thing—the founding 100 years ago of this great missionary society of our Church," said the Bishop.

"For 100 years that society has given itself wholly to the work of carrying out the command contained in our text, 'Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel.' That command comes to us straight from heaven, and it comes with the authority of God Himself.

"In November, 1821, at the first meeting of our Missionary Society, not one missionary had been commissioned and sent out by the national Church, and not one missionary Bishop had been consecrated. In November, 1921, we have 33 missionary Bishops, about 1,200 missionaries in our home field and about 300 missionaries in our work overseas."

The missionary centennial was observed with a special sermon in the morning by the Rev. Dr. Frank Warfield Crowder in St. James's Episcopal Church, Madison Avenue and Seventy-first Street. In the afternoon there was a children's missionary service, with an address by the Rev. Albert Aune.

"The Next One Hundred Years" was the topic of a sermon in observance of the centennial by the Rev. Dr. De Witt L. Pelton, in St. James's Episcopal Church, Jerome Avenue and 190th Street, Fordham, yesterday morning.

INFANTORIUM SEEKS FUNDS.

Hospital Wanted for Babies Less Than a Year Old.

The Junior League of the Infantorium met yesterday afternoon at the Astor Hotel to discuss plans for a hospital building fund. The infantorium was established two years ago at 509 East Seventy-second Street, to care for babies less than a year old. At present many of the cities' hospitals send young babies, whose parents are unable to look after them, to the infantorium to receive special care.

The growth of the work of this organization has been so rapid that larger quarters must be obtained soon. The Junior League was formed a short time ago to help raise the necessary money.

L. H. Strauss, President of the league, announced yesterday that the Longacre Theatre has been donated to the league for the evening of Dec. 4, when a vaudeville performance will be given for the benefit of the building fund.

COURTS TO PROTECT DELIVERY OF MILK

porarily revised methods of distribution. They plan to bend every effort to assist in the establishment of a permanent body, composed of representatives of the employes, the employers and the public. This body will serve to insure to the public unbroken peace in the milk industry.

"Attempting to regard the recent emergency as a temporary matter would be highly inadvisable and detrimental to the public welfare of the future. The past has been too full of threatened milk strikes, narrowly averted, and minor strikes which were not averted, to disregard the need for some medium which would insure the city its full milk supply at all times, regardless of what differences arose."

Commissioner Copeland in his statement, which was made after a tour of inspection of the milk plants, said:

"I notice that Nathans of the Milk Conference Board, the trust, is holding out to us the golden bait of a penny reduction in the price of milk. While he is in the business of promising he might as well make it 5 cents. For all the needless inconvenience suffered by the New York public milk should be furnished free for a long time to come.

"To influence public opinion it is all very well to say that 70 or 80 per cent. of milk is being furnished. However, this is gross exaggeration. My office informs me that the total sold is about 55 per cent. of the normal for this season.

"In the city are 132,000 babies under one year of age. They are used to bottled milk of a certain grade. Now, the mothers are forced to give them dipped milk with all the dangers of contamination, and the positive danger that results from a change of milk.

Complaints of High Prices.

"So many complaints have been coming to my office of poor and stale milk being sold at outrageous prices that we are completely swamped. We are going as fast as possible and already have discovered a great deal of watered milk. In one instance, as much as 1,200 quarts. The remarkably pure milk supply we have boasted of and which has resulted in the lowest infant death rate ever experienced by any community in the world, is in serious danger. Already grave charges concerning the quality of the milk sold have been prepared for the city's legal department. We have serious complaints regarding profiteering and the sale of unlawful milk.

When informed of Health Commissioner Copeland's statement, Secretary Nathans of the Milk Conference Board said:

"There is no golden bait being offered the public in the form of a cut of a cent in the price of milk. Under a system of employing workers on the basis of their efficiency, we shall be able to effect a saving in costs of operation which will be passed on to the public when this saving has made itself felt.

"Contrary to the impression which the statement seeks to convey, there has been no break in the ranks of the companies. Two member firms of the New York Milk Conference Board, the Levy and Standard Dairy Companies, signed with the union shortly after the strike was called. There have been no other instances.

Plans for the resumption of wagon delivery were discussed at length by the distributers at a meeting of the Milk Conference Board at its headquarters in the Flatiron Building yesterday afternoon. The board quoted figures said to have been given out by Health Commissioner Copeland fixing city distribution at approximately 55 per cent. of normal and then took up the question of extending house to house milk service.

All members of the board, it was said, were favorably disposed toward operation of retail route wagons and trucks on a new basis that would give housewives in all parts of the city opportunity to purchase fresh bottled or loose milk at their doors. This plan, however, except in the cases of invalids and others entitled to special service, would eliminate individual family delivery up and down stairs in apartment houses.

Under the proposed plan, the "milk huckster," or crier, will take his place now along with the vegetable peddler and ice-cream-cone man, peddling his wares in the streets, going from block to block on a regular prepared hourly schedule. The Borden and Sheffield companies have already started to operate wagons under the new scheme.

"Hundreds of applicants for positions have been received," it was stated at the Milk Conference Board headquarters. "At one of the plants the police had to disperse the long line which formed after all positions had been filled. No Chinese have been employed, but a few negroes are at work."

Complaints of Profiteering.

Numerous complaints of profiteering have been received by the City Health Department and by newspapers. The distributers said that they would begin tomorrow to "weed out such retailers." The prices of the profiteers range from 20 to 40 cents a quart. Condensed milk prices have also been boosted by some stores from 2 to 4 cents a can.

Ole Salthe, Director of the Bureau of Food and Drugs of the Department of Health, said last night that the receipts of milk in the city yesterday were about 75 per cent. of normal, but the distribution was only about 50 per cent. of normal, or a little less than on Saturday. This latter, however, he attributed to the fact that many families had laid in their Sunday supply on Saturday.

George W. Briggs, strike leader, declared that the "11,000 milk wagon drivers of New York City are standing 100 per cent. strong in this fight on the Milk Trust of New York. I have been in close touch with the situation and can say that the members are standing together and are showing real strength. Any information about men going back to work is absolutely a lie, printed to mislead the men themselves. Our men are standing as a unit and will not be misled."

The mass meeting to be held in Madison Square Garden, he said, was "purely a jollification meeting as the men have reason to feel good over the present situation."

Statement by the Union.

Citing the attempts of Mayor Hylan to settle the strike, Milk Wagon Drivers' Union Local 584, of Greater New York, in a statement said: "We desire to say that the employer stands alone to blame for the situation now existing in Greater New York and adjacent territory. Statements are made by the employers and printed by the papers that so much milk has arrived and so much milk is being sold. We desire to contradict this statement by saying that less than 15 per cent. of the normal supply of milk is reaching the city and that no retail deliveries are being made to the houses whatsoever, and this can be verified by any citizen in and surrounding Greater New York, because they are not making deliveries and they cannot hire non-union men to take our places to make the deliveries.

"It is not the desire on the part of the unions involved to cause any hardship in any manner, shape or form to the general public. Hence we accepted Dr. Copeland's solution to the problem for the best interest of the community at large. We feel that it is only fair that the general public should know that the New York Milk Conference Board turned their proposition down, and we, as American citizens, reserve the right to have something to say under what conditions we work."

The spectacle of a number of men dumping can after can of milk into a sewer at the corner of Ralph Avenue and Bergen Street, Brooklyn, yesterday, attracted a large and threatening crowd of men and women, who believed that the milk was being destroyed by strikers and their sympathizers. They were preparing to attack them when firemen from Hook and Ladder Company 125 station, from where the milk was taken, assured them that the milk had been condemned by city inspectors of the Health Department and was being dumped into the sewers because it was unfit to drink.

Health Commissioner Copeland said that the milk was seized at the receiving station of the Quaker City Dairy Company at 1,678 Bergen Street, Brooklyn, because it had been "adulterated and contained 50 per cent water." There were thirty cans containing a total of 1,200 quarts, he said.

MILK RIOTS IN CLEVELAND.

One Man Seriously Injured and a Dozen Arrests Made.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 6.—One man was reported to have been seriously injured and more than a dozen arrests were made today as a result of rioting and minor disorders which marked efforts to deliver milk.

Delivery of milk to baby dispensaries by the city was inaugurated following the refusal of the company to arbitrate working conditions with its 800 striking milk wagon drivers. The deliveries were made in city owned trucks bearing signs, "Emergency city milk delivery," which drove up to the company's plant and gathered the milk.

House deliveries were almost completely suspended by the company today. Reports that wholesale deliveries to stores, creameries, hotels, restaurants and institutions were almost normal were contradicted by union officials.

Ice the 9th Industry

The story of the growth of refrigeration from the family well to the present day when the manufacture of Ice ranks as the 9th American Industry reads like "white" magic. The Blue Book lists 20,145 plants, values machinery—exclusive of buildings—at more than $900,000,000. Of the plants listed more than five thousand are entirely commercial with a yearly capacity of approximately thirty million tons.

The first Icing Machine invented about 75 years ago had a capacity of about 6 pounds. The Knickerbocker Ice Company began manufacturing ice in 1898. It now has 19 plants in and around New York City.

UPHOLD CHINA STAND ON SHANTUNG ISSUE

Peking Press Comment Favorably on Latest Note to Japan.

CLAIM DIPLOMATIC VICTORY

British Chamber of Commerce Objects to Leaving Japan in Privileged Position.

PEKING, Nov. 5 (Associated Press).—Native and foreign newspapers in north China generally express satisfaction over the latest Chinese note to Japan on the question of Shantung. Some of them consider it a diplomatic victory over Japan.

The British owned and edited Peking and Tien-tsin Times considers that the honors are with China in the second exchange of notes and that in dialectics China always will be superior to Japan regarding the question of Shantung, since Japan's claims are based on might rather than on right. The newspaper asserts that some of the other powers for expediency's sake have recognized these claims based on might, but that this does not turn might into right.

The Peking Leader says the Chinese memorandum brought out clearly the exact points of difference between China and Japan, namely, conflicting viewpoints regarding the Versailles Treaty, on the disposition of the Shantung Railway and on the disposal of public property in Tsing-tao. The Leader thinks that Japan had better stop the discussion of the treaty, thus simplifying the opening of negotiations between China and Japan on a specific, practical basis. It also expresses the hope that Japan will make a specific proposal regarding the disposition of public property in Tsing-tao.

"This," the newspaper continues, "would leave the Shantung railway the sole important issue, the question being, shall Japan share in the railway's management and control or shall China have complete control while buying out the Japanese interest in the line? The issues involved can legitimately come under the Pacific discussion at the Washington Conference in connection with a clear definition of the application of the open door. With Japan controlling the railway, Shantung's door would not be open; with the railway under China, the door would be open.

"If Japan really is sincere in desiring to restore Shantung to China, she must take her hands off the railway. If Japan does not like the Chinese proposal, she is obligated to suggest other terms, which must involve complete withdrawal if one of the sorest spots in the Far East is to be removed.

"It would be well if a settlement could be reached before the Pacific Conference, otherwise the conference almost necessarily will be obliged to take up the question."

SHANGHAI, China, Nov. 3 (Associated Press)—A meeting of the British Chambers of Commerce in China today passed a resolution on the Shantung controversy, as follows:

"This conference is convinced that any settlement of the Shantung question leaving Japan in a privileged position in that province will constitute a negation of the policy of the 'open door' and equal trade opportunity in China, to which the British Government is committed."

to impress upon the Chinese Government the view of the American Government that this was a most inopportune time for the Peking Government to engage in such a default on such a loan, or assume any position of irresponsibility for its payment, when questions affecting the integrity and welfare of China are on the threshold of serious consideration by the five principal world powers. The note referred to the Washington conference by name.

While it is quite true that absolute default on this loan, and a belligerent attitude by the Peking Government toward meeting its just foreign loans in which this country is in any way interested, and any of which were made with the sanction and approval of the American Government, although not with its guarantee, might make it difficult for this or other Governments to continue to look upon the Peking Government as competent to speak for China and her obligations, THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent was informed in an authoritative quarter tonight that there was nothing in Secretary Hughes's note to the effect that this Government did not and would not continue to recognize the Peking Government.

The Loan Was Sanctioned.

Although the effort has been sought to be created by some of the Chinese representatives now in Washington that the loan of the Chicago bank was never sanctioned or approved by the State Department, it can be stated on authority that the American Government did lend its approval to the making of this loan, and that Secretary Hughes and the American Government still continue to regard it as a valid loan. The money may not all have been spent for legitimate purposes by the Chinese Government, but that is not regarded as affecting its validity or the fact that this Government did and does regard this as a loan that was made with the sanction of the State Department.

In quarters close to the Chinese Legation and among men identified with the Chinese delegation now here there is a disposition to make it appear that the default of the Chinese Government is technical rather than actual, but this does not lessen the seriousness of the situation as affecting China's interests before the Washington conference, or the importance of continued and rigid refusal of the Chinese Government to meet its just international obligations.

Chow Tzu Chi is now en route to the United States, having sailed Oct. 25 on the steamer Silver State, and will soon be in Washington. It is learned that he is bringing very important confidential instructions from the Chinese Cabinet to the Chinese delegation here, which includes Minister Sze and Wellington Koo, China's diplomatic representative in London.

Peking Version of Note.

PEKING, Nov. 5 (Associated Press).—Chinese officials today informed the correspondent that the American Legation here on Nov. 1 received a cable dispatch, signed by Secretary Hughes, instructing the Legation to inform the Chinese Government that China's failure to meet the principal and interest on the loan due the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Company of Chicago, which was due on Oct. 31, had strained China's financial and political credit in the United States and seriously injured China's chances at the Far Eastern Conference in Washington.

The dispatch also is said to have asserted that the American Government, in view of the Chinese Government's failure to accept any of the various proposals made by American bankers for renewals of loans, might find it difficult to continue to recognize the Peking Government as the competent Chinese Government.

Officials at the American Legation, while unable to show the correspondent the dispatch of Secretary Hughes or the note sent by the American Legation to the Foreign Office, admitted that the above was substantially correct.

"She invariably comes back, however, because first we have the wider selection, and next our prices are from a little to a lot less than she can get elsewhere.

BRITISH SAY FRANCE HAS BROKEN FAITH

CALLED BLOW AT ENTENTE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Monday, Nov. 7.—The question of the Franco-Kemalist agreement will be raised in the Commons tomorrow when T. P. O'Connor will ask Mr. Chamberlain whether, in view of the "possible effects of this treaty on the lives of Greek, Armenian and other Christian inhabitants" in the regions affected, the Government will find a day for its discussion.

The Daily Chronicle, in an editorial makes a strong protest against the treaty, which it declares constitutes a new and grave difficulty in Anglo-French relations.

"Once more in a matter where the Allies were pledged to concerted action," it says, "France has broken away and tried to jump all sorts of claims by taking isolated action of her own. She not merely recognizes the Angora Government, but recognizes it as the sole executive authority in Turkey—a course which cuts at the root of the agreed allied position in regard to Constantinople.

"She transfers to Turkey territory in Cilicia which is not hers to cede, but which she holds in trust under a mandate. Thereby she breaks the Treaty of Versailles by which the system of mandates is established and she appears at the same time to jettison the whole principle of protection for those Christian minorities in Asia Minor who, during the past seven years, have been the victims o fa policy of large scale massacres on the part of the Turks.

"Two powers situated as Great Britain and France are could not continue to act as allies generally if in one important part of the world they acted in disregard of and in opposition to each other. The sphere of international policy can not be chopped up geographically into a number of watertight compartments. The bearing of this last fact on the thin tenance of the Anglo-French alliance is so serious and so obvious that we need not underline it.

"The treaty has been negotiated by M. Franklin-Bouillon. When he started for Turkey last July M. Briand, as French Prime Minister, gave our Government solemn assurance that nothing of the kind would be attempted. The assurance was explicitly renewed only a few weeks ago, and now we see it to have been worthless.

"For so signal a breach of faith and decency we should hesitate long before imputing blame to M. Briand himself. All probabilities point rather to M. Franklin-Bouillon's having exceeded his instructions and concluded a treaty behind M. Briand's back with the connivance of certain elements in the French Foreign Office.

"The matter cannot be left just where Franklin-Bouillon has left it. Either we are allies or we are not. The implication of the Angora treaty is that we are not."

STARTS 15TH'S ARMORY.

Mayor Breaks Ground for Negro Regiment's New Headquarters.

About 10,000 persons witnessed the breaking of ground for the Fifteenth Regiment Armory of the New York National Guard in 142d Street, east of Lenox Avenue, yesterday. The Fifteenth Regiment is New York's negro unit which engaged in the war as the 369th United States Infantry. Many civic, social and benevolent organizations were represented in a parade which preceded the ceremony at the armory site, the line of march extending from Mount Morris Park at 124th Street and Fifth Avenue to Fifth Avenue and 130th Street to Lenox Avenue and north to 143d Street.

Following the invocation by the Rev. W. H. Brooks, Mayor Hylan turned the first spadeful of earth. Colonel Arthur Little, commander of the regiment, outlined its history from its organization in 1916, and extended the thanks of the regiment to former Governor Charles S. Whitman, who authorized its organization; to Colonel William D. Hayward, who organized the Fifteenth and commanded it in France; to Colonel William J. Schieffelin, who kept the old Fifteenth recruited while the war organization was in France, and to Major Gen. Daniel Appleton, who, it was said, had been a "godfather" of the Fifteenth and who was present at the ceremony.

GETS ROOSEVELT DIARY.

Memorial Association Now Has Record of His Brazilian Trip.

Theodore Roosevelt's diary of his Brazilian travels and explorations has been presented to the Roosevelt Memorial Association by Miss Margaret A. Salomon, who served as one of the Colonel's secretaries when he was connected with The Outlook.

Like his Spanish War diary, also presented to the memorial association, the little volume is made up of laconic entries kept, apparently, merely to remind him where he was and what he did on a particular day, without regard to comment. Among characteristic entries are the following:

"Dec. 10—Cannibal fish."

"Dec. 21—Shot Jaguar at 70 yards."

"Dec. 29—Killed peccary with spear."

If you've never danced to such music as this "syncopated symphony orchestra" makes, you have been missing something. It has been a headliner on the Keith circuit, and a feature of popular musical comedy—but now it's at the Pennsylvania, for your greater pleasure. It's the only orchestra we know of—except Sousa's—that has a "Sousaphone"; and another novelty in dance-orchestras is the bass saxophone—which, by the way, is played here by the man who invented it. It's really an all-star orchestra.

BELIEVE BOYS SELL GUNS TO CRIMINALS

Arrest of Eight Youths for Carrying Pistols May Explain Arming of Gunmen.

GANGSTERS PAY $8 APIECE

Two of Four Brothers Say Third Shot Fourth After Quarrel in Card Game.

Eight boys and young men were arraigned in the Gates Avenue Court, Brooklyn, yesterday on charges of burglary and carrying firearms. According to the police, the round-up of the gang clears up a number of recent burglaries and discloses one of the avenues through which criminals have been supplied with weapons. The police say that the gang stole pistols and revolvers and sold them to bandits.

None of the prisoners was more than 25 years old. One, only sixteen, was sent to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and will be arraigned in the Children's Court this morning. The others were held without bail for examination on Wednesday.

The police charge four of the gangsters with the theft of thirty-six automatic pistols from a sporting goods store at 914 Broadway, Brooklyn, on Oct. 30, and $1,500 in cash and $1,000 in jewelry from a pawnshop at 786 Broadway, Brooklyn, on Nov. 1. According to the police, the members of the gang who participated in the thefts sold nine of the automatics for $15 to Frank Libasci, 18 years old, of 140 Jefferson Street. The police say that Libasci sold the pistols to gangsters at $8 each. After being arrested, Libasci led the police to various Brooklyn dance halls, where three men with loaded pistols in their pockets were arrested. Libasci carried two pistols when arrested. The police are trying to locate other gangsters to whom he sold pistols.

The four arrested for the theft of the pistols were Fred Ritter, 15 years old, of 183 Noll Street; Frank McMulsy, 21, 121 Noll Street; Frederick Schraedden, 22, same address, and John Beck, 17, of 9 Vanderbilt Avenue. The trio found with the pictols were Alfred Travato, 25, of 185 Troutman Street; Joseph Travato, 23, his brother, same address, and Joseph Vetravo, 17, of 418 Suydam Street.

The police are trying to trace a connection between the activities of these gangsters and the death of Harry Gerbe, 23, of 1,416 Chester Avenue, Woodhaven, in St. Mary's Hospital, Jamaica, yesterday. Gerbe was shot twice at Woodhaven Boulevard and 135th Street, Aqueduct, on the night of Oct. 27. Joseph Libasci, 18, of 72 Troutman Street, and Miss Gussie Humann, 25, of 926 Hatch Street, are under arrest in this connection of the charge of felonious assault. The charge will probably be changed to homicide today. Gerbe told the police before he died that he was with Miss Humann when shot. His mother also said a girl had telephoned him to meet her shortly before the shooting. The police think Gerbe was lured to his death. After Gerbe was found, the police went to the girl's home and arrested her and Libasci when they returned together. Miss Humann said they had been to a dance.

The murder of Rosario de Francisco, 47 years old, a stonecutter of 430 East Eleventh Street, was reported to the police yesterday by his brothers, Giuseppe and Giacomo. The police are looking for still another brother, Vincenzo, 35 years old, whom Giuseppe and Giacomo accuse of shooting Rosario.

According to the two brothers' story, the four brothers live together at 430 East Eleventh Street, and had rented a room at 408 East Eleventh Street for card playing. The four were playing late Saturday night, when a quarrel arose between Rosario and Vincenzo. Vincenzo left in anger, but returned an hour later. There was a chain lock on the door. When Vincenzo demanded entrance, Rosario opened the door slightly and told his brother to go home. Then, according to Giuseppe and Giacomo, there was a shot, and Rosario fell to the floor with a bullet wound over the left eye. They said they were afraid to leave the place until daylight.

William Hayden of 504 West 128th Street was walking along Tenth Avenue, near Forty-third Street, early yesterday, when half a dozen thugs attacked him. Fortunately, Patrolman Huber of the West Thirtieth Street Station had been watching the gang from a doorway. He went to Hayden's assistance just as the men were demanding money.. The gangsters broke and ran, but Timothy Houlihan, 20 years old, of 542 West Fortieth Street, surrendered when shot in the right hand by the policeman. Houlihan was later arraigned before Magistrate Levine in the West Side Court and held in $2,500 bail for examination on Thursday.

Harry Herman, 24, of 45 Chester Street, Brooklyn, was held in $2,500 bail yesterday for examination on Friday in the New Jersey Avenue Court on a charge of slashing Policeman Joseph U. Becker of the Brownsville Station. Trouble arose at a dance given Saturday night at Independence Hall 89 Osborne Street, Brooklyn, by the Woodrow Wilson Democratic Club of Brownsville. When Policeman Becker was called and arrested Herman, the latter drew a knife and slashed the officer three times across the face. Becker had to beat the man unconscious to subdue him. The wounds of both were treated by an ambulance surgeon.

DEDICATES GREEK SEMINARY

Metellus Metaxakie, Archbishop of Athens, officiated yesterday afternoon at the dedicatory exercises of the first seminary for the training of priests of the Greek Orthodox Church in this country. The ceremony took place in the auditorium of the Twenty-third Street Y. M. C. A., Twenty-third Street and Seventh Avenue.

Until funds can be obtained for the construction of a building for the theological school, which will be called the Greek Seminary of Saint Athanasius, classes, which begin today, will be conducted in a room lent for the purpose by the Central Branch of the Y. M. C. A. in Brooklyn. Greek business men of this country have contributed toward the building fund and former Premier Venizelos gave $1,000 toward the fund, but most of the money for the upkeep of the seminary for the next few years will be contributed by the priesthood of the Greek Orthodox Church in America.

After the dedicatory services Archbishop Metaxakie told the audience that on account of a lack of such an institution in this country the Greek Orthodox Church in America has had to import its young priests from Greece. This has been unsatisfactory, he said, because the educational requirements for the priesthood are not so high in Greece as they are in America. Nine students have been enrolled for the seminary.

The police have not yet determined whether the man was murdered or fell down the stairs.

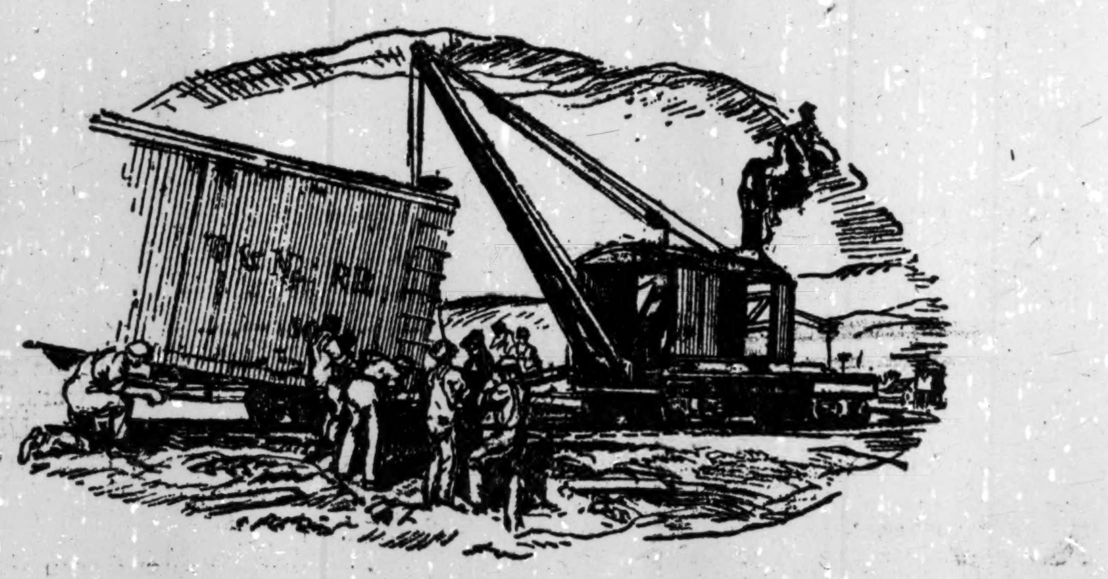
DOMESTIC HELP

If an efficient butler is desired or a well-trained maid, the Domestic Help Wanted advertisements in The New York Times should be consulted.—Advt.



A carload of profits—

How a shipment of merchandise, urgently needed by the buyer, was promptly located through the co-operation of the Irving B/L Department.

A SHIPMENT of goods from California had long been overdue. With the market strong, the buyer was becoming anxious. He had wired the shipper, as well as the freight agent at the point of shipment. Yet the regular routine brought no immediate results.

At this point the Irving Bill-of-Lading Department took charge. The car was finally located by the railroad at an outlying city, axle broken. Arrangements were immediately made to take care of the situation. The merchandise was delivered in New York without further delay.

Pre-eminently commercial for seventy years, the Irving National Bank has faced the problem of speeding up commercial transactions as one of the big problems of modern business.

Special services designed to eliminate delays in the turnover of capital

The Irving has built up a special Bill-of-Lading Department. This Department is organized to trace railroad shipments, to locate freight cars on arrival at terminals, to eliminate every sort of delay in releasing capital.

By direct private wires to important cities and through well established connections with banks in all parts of the country, the Irving secures for its depositors maximum speed in handling all banking transactions.

Through correspondents in more than 5000 foreign cities, and through its special representatives in leading foreign markets, the Irving has built up a specialized service in collections and transfer of funds, and in obtaining credit information abroad. Direct cable connections are maintained with every trade center of the world.

The above are a few of the ways in which Irving service is designed to speed up the turnover of its depositors' capital.

All the special services of the Irving as well as every other banking service—business and personal—can be tapped at every one of the Irving's nine District Offices. (See complete list below).

All new. Values which top the ticket.

We happened on them just in the nick of time for our election sale for men. A manufacturer had overstocked and wanted quick cash—we got the lot and you will agree that there could hardly be a better election day shoe offer.

They're of Norwegian leather, in tan and black with extra wide shanks and heels and the very newest of heavy punching and heavy stitching all around heel and soles. The high shoes have saddle instep with heavy punching.

Young men and college men particularly will appreciate these. The damp-proof fibre slip sole, the squarish wide English soles, and the general heavy effect are what is most in demand right now.

All sizes and a quantity to assure good choice.

Dear Miss Bingham:-

Thanks for your note of the 31st ult. and for the thanks of the Committee to elect Murray Hulbert as President of the Board of Aldermen. Thanks, too, for the assurance of victory. If the people of New York but realized how much Murray Hulbert wants to do for them in the way of port development they would make it unanimous, and tell him that next time they would run him for Mayor; because, it is this way: the more power Murray Hulbert has to advance the interests of the Port of New York, the more the port's interests will be advanced. To have a Mayor who was keen about New York's port betterment, is to assure New York port primacy for all time. The material and resources are all here to make this the greatest port in the world and keep it so, and Murray Hulbert is the man to give those materials and resources full swing. More power to him, and to his candidacy!

With best regards to you all, even including my dear old friend William E. Cleary, I remain,

Sincerely yours,

BOOTLEGGERS GET RABBINICAL WINE

Federal Agents to Undertake Inquiry Into Traffic in Bogus Permits.

JEWISH QUOTA 10 GALLONS

Saloonkeepers Who Have Been Getting $1 Per Drink Fear Competition of Medicinal Beer.

An investigation will be made by Acting Federal Prohibition Director E. C. Yellowley on account of reports which have reached him of trafficking in bogus rabbinical wine permits.

"Just as soon as I can get to it I shall cause a thorough investigation to be made regarding the handling of sacramental wine," Mr. Yellowley said last night. "In California I found that great quantities of wine were being diverted to bootleg channels through fake rabbi permits, and I have no doubt that similar operations are being carried on here with considerable success. So far I have been so busy with other lines of investigation that this phase of the situation has received only general consideration. From the information that has come to me through my agents the scheme of diverting wine to bootleg channels is somewhat on the order of that of the fake physician's prescriptions which we are now trailing."

It has happened, Mr. Yellowley said, in many sections of the country that such permits were held by others than rabbis, but more often the names of fictitious rabbis are attached to the permits, which are in turn honored by the wine dealers. Under the law each Jewish family in the congregation is entitled to receive up to ten gallons of wine a year for sacramental purposes. The rabbi is supposed to attest to the number of families in his congregation and the prohibition authorities allot him so much wine, based on the number of families on his church list. One congregation on the east side has been represented to have more than 2,500 families, but the prohibition officials were skeptical and cut down the amount of wine allowed in this instance.

A revival recently in the sale of fake rabbi permits has been reported. The practice, it was reported, was to sell permits bearing the signature of a fictitious rabbi, which were honored by unscrupulous dealers.

Mr. Yellowley said that the expected development yesterday in the investigation of the fake physician's liquor prescriptions which have flooded the city lately did not materialize, but he expressed the hope that there would be evidence to warrant further arrests within a few days.

Piel Brothers expect to receive their permit for the manufacture of medicinal beer early this week. Mr. Yellowley said that probably the permit was in the mails, as it had been reported from Washington that favorable action had been taken. It was said at the office of Piel Brothers that the plant was ready to start the manufacture of 4½ per cent. beer the minute that the permit is received.

Many saloonkeepers are not in sympathy with the breweries in their efforts to obtain permits to manufacture medicinal beer, because, as one said yesterday, it will mean that "bootleg" liquor must take a tumble in price. No longer will the illegal dealer be able to charge his customer up to $1 for a drink. Prices will have to drop to 25, 40 and 50 cents, it was said by a man in close touch with the men who are selling drinks in defiance of the law. Saloonkeepers have asserted that there is no doubt that their high-priced trade will be greatly reduced through the legitimate sale of beer.

Evidence of the fact that good liquor is hard to obtain in New York now is the quality of the stuff being seized by Federal prohibition agents and taken to prohibition headquarters. "I can tell," said John J. Cronan, one of the chief assistants to the chief enforcement agent, "from the stuff that is being brought in here by the agents that the 'bootleggers' have been put to it to obtain drinks with a kick since the arrival here of Mr. Yellowley, who has clamped the lid on about as tight as is possible on the withdrawals of liquors. The vile-looking stuff that is being seized now would kill almost anything. I wouldn't taste any of it for anything in the world. The odor and color are sufficient."

Considerable Canadian whisky is being brought into New York now by automobile, it was said yesterday.

'CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE' TO CONTINUE IN INDIA

Committee of 200 in Delhi Adopts Gandhi's Resolution to Press Non-Violent Revolution.

DELHI, India, Nov. 4 (Associated Press).—The All-India Congress Committee, consisting of 200 delegates, after long discussion of the political situation and the imprisonment of the Ali brothers, today adopted a resolution, with only seven dissenting votes, adhering to the policy of "civil disobedience," including non-payment of taxes and complete non-co-operation.

Mahatma K. Gandhi, the Nationalist leader, who introduced the resolution, emphasized the seriousness of the proposed non-violent revolution and uttered a warning against adopting the measure in light-hearted manner. He also foreshadowed the starting of the disobedience movement in the Gugerat district within a fortnight, which he said would set an example for achievement for the rest of India.

It had been supposed the congress might resort to more violent methods, and thousands of persons waited outside the pavilion where the meeting was held to ascertain the result. Several of the speakers advocated a more advanced program.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—A crisis in India within six weeks was predicted today by Seiledra N. Ghose, director of the Commission to Promote Self-Government in India, who explained that developments were expected to "mark the end of the year for which Mahatma Gandhi asked in which to try the non-co-operative plan." In preparation for the proclamation of independence which will be issued next month, he said volunteers have been enrolled throughout the country until "more than 1,100,000, nearly half of them seasoned soldiers, have been recruited."

An amazing tribute to O'Sullivan leadership

EVERYWHERE people know them—demand them. For more than twenty years they've been the acknowledged leaders—often copied, often imitated. The latest proof of their nation-wide popularity is the news of actual counterfeiting in the clipping above.

It's an amazing tribute to the extent of O'Sullivan leadership. But size, shape, color, design are not the only things that make an O'Sullivan Heel. The real secret of O'Sullivan's leadership is their elasticity—the fact that they protect you from the shocks that wear you out.

And it's protection that counts! Unless your heels are true elastic cushions—tough, live, springy—they can never absorb the 8000 shocks of daily walking.

That's what O'Sullivan's are built for. First and foremost shock-absorbers, they make every step seem cushioned on air. And no one can copy the famous "blend" that gives you absolute protection.

Don't let indifference rob you of proper protection. The counterfeit heels are confiscated now, but the lesson remains. With fifty different brands of rubber heels on the market, it's important for you to order O'Sullivan's by name.

CRAIG GIVES NO HOPE OF ANY CONCESSIONS

tiations, in a dispatch to his paper says that, although nothing has occurred materially altering the situation, it would not be surprising if the Ulster Premier and his colleagues should be called into the conference immediately, for the purpose of reviewing the position of Northern Ireland.

This is considered a significant statement, tending to show that the Ulsterites are disposed to consider the basis already agreed upon by the conference committee.

In the opinion of the Sunday newspapers storm clouds, in the form of a threatened hiatus in the peace negotiations, are looming on the British political horizon, and whether they break depends upon the attitude Ulster adopts toward the parleys now going on between representatives of the Sinn Fein and the Government. This is the almost unanimous opinion of the editorial writers, who devote colmus today in attempts to forecast the result.

"Not since the end of 1916," says The Sunday Times, "has the political situation been so interesting, so critical, so full of hope, and at the same time so uncertain and liable to fly off on unexpected tangents.

"We may be on the point of settling the Irish problem. On the other hand, disappointment, which is still possible, would not only leave Ireland in a worse state than before, but would have far-reaching effects on our own domestic politics—split the Unionist Party and either take Premier Lloyd George into temporary retirement or put him at the head of a new coalition."

The News of the World, which is credited with enjoying especial favor in Downing Street, says the Irish conference is at the crossroads, and that, should Mr. Lloyd George be unable to bring about a settlement "on cards"—that, is, on the basis of the terms already laid down—he may resign.

Thinks Bonar Law's Entry Important.

The Weekly Dispatch asks whether Ulster will take an attitude which will permit peace in Ireland. It heralds as two events "of the highest interest" the re-entry into the political arena of A. Bonar Law and a meeting, hitherto unmentioned in the press, of Mr. Law, Viscount Birkenhead and Sir George Younger, Tory Party manager.

"We have thus," says the newspaper, "a full-dress conference of the former leader, prospective leader and manager of the Conservative Party."

Recalling that both Mr. Law and Viscount Birkenhead have pledged themselves to Ulster's support, The Weekly Dispatch declares that if Ulster refuses what Premier Lloyd George thinks are reasonable terms he may resign and leave the Tories to face the situation. Should Ulster prove the stumbling block to prevent an Irish settlement and Mr. Lloyd George resign without going to the voters on the issue, the newspaper says, the Coalition would be in obvious danger of breaking up. The sequel, it adds, would be that a Tory Premier would assume the reins of office, even if only temporarily.

The Irish issue is even more momentous for the Empire than the Washington arms conference, declares The Weekly Observer, which adds:

"Nor can British statesmanship give effective mind to the vast American program until light is struck through the darkness of Irish misery."

The Observer declares that the suggested plan to take from Ulster the counties of Tyrone and Fermanagh must be disregarded, as it might easily bring about the rejection of allegiance to the Empire by both the north and south of Ireland.

Liberal Press Is Optimistic.

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Complete confusion over the Irish situation apparently exists in the London Sunday newspapers today. Some of the Tory newspapers announced the existence of an acute Irish crisis, while the Liberal newspapers say the Irish problem is as good as solved.

The truth is somewhere between these two extremes. That the crisis is not acute is shown by the fact that Prime Minister David Lloyd George, after canceling his intended week-end visit to Chequers in order to meet Sir James Craig, Prime Minister of Ulster, yesterday, went to Chequers Court this morning.

Craig proved more stubborn than was expected. Great Britain and the Sinn Fein have practically agreed on a settlement based on an all-Ireland dominion with Ulster as a subordinate autonomous province.

Much significance is attached to the London Tory press today to the summoning of Sir Laming Worthington Evans, War Minister, to yesterday's conference with Craig.

Great Britain and Southern Ireland are agreed in principle, but Ulster has the power to make or wreck the final settlement.

Messrs. Collins and Gavin Duffy, the Irish envoys, who went to Dublin for the week-end, will return tomorrow night after conferring with Eamon de Valera and other Irish leaders. There can, therefore, be no meeting either of the full Irish conference or of the Big Four before Tuesday.

Sir James Craig said today there could be no development from his corner of the ring before tomorrow at the earliest. It is said he sent a full report of his conversation with the Premier to his colleagues in Belfast and is awaiting their reply before taking further action.

Dublin Takes Hopeful View.

DUBLIN, Nov. 6.—Significance is attached here to the second visit of Michael Collins, who arrived in Dublin yesterday, accompanied by Gavin Duffy and Erskine Childers. They were early in attendance at Mansion House, where they had consultation with Eamon de Valera and members of his Cabinet.

It is believed the delegates brought hopeful reports from London as to the progress of the negotiations, and there was a spirit of optimism abroad.

FATHER O'FLANAGAN ARRIVES IN NEW YORK

The Rev. Father Michael O'Flanagan, Vice President of the Sinn Fein, arrived here yesterday on the United States Lines steamship Centennial State to make public addresses in various cities and to assist Harry J. Boland, envoy of the "Irish Republic," in floating a loan for $20,000,000. Father O'Flanagan was reticent regarding Irish affairs, as he said he had been out of touch with events for nine days.

"I spent eight years in America," he declared, "from 1904 to 1912. During the World War I felt that it was my duty to remain at home in Ireland, and since the armistice we have had our own war there. All that time I have longed to come back to America, and the present peaceful conditions in Ireland arising out of the truce have given me the opportunity.

"My own personal wishes," Father O'Flanagan said, "were anticipated when President de Valera asked me to come here to keep the American people in touch with conditions in Ireland. I expect to speak publicly all over America, and shall commence in Washington, D. C., next Wednesday. I intend to assist Mr. Boland and Mr. O'Mara in floating a $20,000,000 loan for the Irish Republic.

"What do you think of the prospects for peace in Ireland?" he was asked.

"Well, we are non-commital on that subject at the present time," he replied.

"Do you think that Ulster will ultimately agree to make concessions in order to have peace in the country?"

"It is not Ulster that is causing the delay in the negotiations," Father O'Flanagan replied. "It is England."

"What about the Counties of Tyrone and Fermanagh?"

"The Councils of those two counties do not wish them to be separated from the rest of Ireland."

TO THE PUBLIC:

MILK STRIKE BULLETIN

You now know the details of the issues at stake as the result of our previous newspaper announcements November 3d to 6th inclusive.

Very concisely they are re-stated and classified below:

THE STRIKERS' SIDE

The Union's demand for higher wages.

The Union's demand for the creation of more positions.

The Union's announced intention of the closed shop, country and city.

The Union's announcement that all equipment and supplies necessary to the business must bear the Union label.

The Union's further announcement that they will direct the purchases of our Purchasing Agent.

These all mean higher prices immediately and a tightening grip on the industry, which would mean steadily decreasing efficiency and quality with increased prices.

THE BORDEN SIDE

A struggle to establish the American Shop Plan wherein fair basic wages are paid and proper working conditions assured.

Increased wages being automatically assured as following increased efficiency and accomplishment.

A plan that develops men and methods and makes possible the recognition of individual effort and merit.

A plan that gives inspiration to look forward and upward as opposed to a leveling downward.

Such a plan paves the way for steadily increasing efficiency and quality; increasing remuneration for the capable workers with decreased prices to the consumer.

On November 5th we had 218 vehicles moving, had taken on 1,700 new employees and supplied about 440,000 quarts of milk.

While many more men are available, we cannot add materially to our forces and give employment until we are in a position to move more retail delivery wagons.

We greatly regret the annoyance caused you, but crave your continued indulgence in the interest of the vital issues at stake.

CITY HAS 343,000 IDLE, SURVEY FINDS

Teachers Well Employed, Clerks and Domestics Least Affected, Says Coler's Committee.

A census of unemployment in New York City made by the Committee on Unemployment Statistics appointed by Bird S. Coler, Commissioner of Public Welfare, shows that 343,000 persons are unemployed, apart from a large number working on part time. Those out of work total about 13.5 per cent. of the city's 2,531,747 residents employed in gainful occupations, as shown by the 1920 census. There is added to this number a group of "floaters" or idle from out of town, estimated at from 20,000 to 50,000.

The committee's figures, while probably not the absolute minimum or maximum, are believed to represent a fair average. The percentage of unemployment in the principal occupations was determined as closely as possible and then applied to occupational figures in the census. The result is shown in the following table:

Group.	Number in Group Jan., 1920.	Approximate Number Unemployed Week of Oct. 17 1921.	Approximate Percentage Unemployed Week of Oct. 17, 1921.
Clerical and trade	793,966	72,996	9
Domestic and personal service	306,067	26,661	9
Transportation	242,447	63,000	26
Professional service	168,375	26,940	16
Public service	61,084	9,163	15
All other	7,919	1,029	13

The group of manufacturing and mechanical industries covers 951,889 persons in factories and workshops and the building trades, of whom 827,000 are factory workers and 125,000 in the building industry. About 17 per cent. of factory workers are out of work, but in the building trades only about 12,500 persons, or 10 per cent., lack work. The only group in which unemployment is serious are those affecting structural steel workers, marble setters, mosaic floor workers, and others working around large buildings.

The clerical and trade group includes clerks, stenographers, messengers, agents, collectors, bankers, brokers, commercial travelers, sales people and others. The estimate of 9 per cent. out of work is based on a direct inquiry made to 253 representative establishments employing 80,000 persons. The payroll figures were based on Jan. 1, 1920, the date of the Federal census, and on Oct. 17, 1921. An analysis of the replies shows that the greatest decrease in employment occurred in occupations connected with foreign trade. Retail stores show a slight decrease, whereas banks and insurance companies show a slight increase in the number employed.

The classification of domestic and personal service includes domestic servants of all kinds and all those connected with the operation of hotels, restaurants and laundries. Twenty hotels and restaurants, unions and employers' associations reported.

The largest percentage of unemployed is in the transportation group, 63,000, or 26 per cent., of this group being idle.

Actors, writers, architects, clergymen, dentists, doctors, trained nurses, lawyers and musicians are included in the professional group, in which 26,940, or 16 per cent., are idle. Teachers are well employed. The group of those in public service, including city, State and Federal employes, excepting those in the Post Office Department and Department of Education, shows 15 per cent. unemployed.

The analysis of the situation was made by a committee, of which William Fellowes Morgan, President of the Merchants Association, is Chairman. Other members are J. Harvey Williams, President of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce; Bailey B. Burritt, Director of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor; William F. Kehoe, Secretary of the Central Trades and Labor Council, who made a careful canvass of all the trade unions in the city; Dr. Thomas J. Riley, Secretary of the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, and Henry D. Sayer, Industrial Commissioner of the New York State Department of Labor.

LEG CUT OFF BY TUBE TRAIN.

Man Falls or Jumps in Front of B. R. T. Subway Cars.

Louis Cromwell, 28 years old, a plasterer, of 244 Cummings Avenue, Trenton, N. J., was taken to the Coney Island Hospital last night dying, after four cars of a Brighton Beach Line B. R. T. train had passed over him at the Avenue U station. Detectives of the Sheepshead Bay Station were unable to learn whether Cromwell jumped under the train or whether he accidentally fell in front of it.

Harry Gott of 221 Hopkinson Avenue, Brooklyn, the motorman, noticed a jar as his train pulled into the Avenue U station. A trainman who investigated found Cromwell jammed between the train and the station platform. His right leg had been cut off and both arms broken.

Fingerhood Not Secretary.

Charles H. Fingerhood, whose name was mentioned in THE NEW YORK TIMES of Sunday as the Secretary of the Allied Drug and Chemical Corporation, which, according to dispatches from Moscow, had obtained concessions from the Soviet Government for the operation of asbestos mines in the Ural Mountains, said yesterday he was no longer connected with the company and did not know the details of the deal. "I resigned as Secretary and Treasurer in May, 1919," said Mr. Fingerhood. "I do not know the name of the person who took my place. I know nothing of the reported negotiations with the Soviet Government."

Baklanoff to Return to Chicago.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Georges Baklanoff, the Russian baritone, reaches Chicago tomorrow to rejoin the Chicago Grand Opera Company. Although deportation proceedings against the singer, started two years ago, are still pending, it is expected that they will be dismissed when they come up for hearing soon before the immigration officials here.

ROTARY CLUB ACTIVITIES

This Is Action!

WE are looked upon by people of other countries as a nation of dynamos, short on words and long on action. For many years this was an indisputable truth. But, since the commercial slump hit us amidships, our actions have grown shorter and our words longer. Every one talks fluently on "bad times" and reiterates that something must be done! And there it ends.

Rotary awoke to this phase of the situation some time ago and determined that it was the logical organization to DO the "something that must be done." To-day Rotary announces the Rotary Prosperity Poster Campaign!

During the months of December, January and February the Poster Advertising Association will donate the space on 100,000 poster boards, all through the United States and Canada, to posters bearing prosperity slogans urging every man and woman to "get busy" and make business what it was.

Through Rotary activity this great donation was procured. Paper, 140 tons of it, will be furnished at less than cost. Five thousand pounds of ink will be used, at less than cost. The thousands of dollars necessary for the purchase of paper, ink, printing and shipping has been underwritten by a group of New York Rotarians. They are going to push through this great movement which will act as a daily stimulus, for ninety days, to more than fifty million people. This is action!

Coal Producers Can Only Tell You About the Mine Price

IN this series of advertisements the producers have told you what it costs to mine anthracite and prepare it for market. It has been shown that of the dollar received by the mine owner 65 cents goes for wages, 15 cents for supplies, leaving 20 cents for insurance, taxes, depreciation, uninsurable risks and profits.

The profits per ton have been stated; namely, what remains out of a "margin" of 60 cents per ton after paying selling expenses, taxes and interest.

This was accompanied by the statement that the operator is fortunate whose margin approximates 60 cents a ton. Only a few exceed it, most of them make less and many are today operating at a loss.

A third advertisement set forth the actual figures of an average cost mine, as follows: labor, per ton, $3.92; materials, $1.05; insurance, taxes, etc., 58 cents; total, $5.55—a cost applying alike to coal selling at the mine for $7.50 a ton or more, and to the small by-product sizes of coal selling as low as $1.50 a ton.

As the average received by the producer for his total tonnage was $6.15, and the cost $5.55, it was again shown in this way that the average mine owner's margin was about 60 cents.

All these facts relate to mine prices and mine costs. They are the only factors in the situation for which the producers are responsible.

Retail prices have not been discussed in these talks with the public because the producers had no first-hand knowledge of them, and no statement they could make would cover all the factors governing prices in different places.

Retail prices are not the same in different communities, because freight rates, local conditions and dealers' costs vary greatly.

The explanation of the difference between the mine price and the retail price of anthracite can be given by your coal dealer.

Ask him for this explanation, and we believe a frank and satisfactory reply will be forthcoming.

The information contained in this series of advertisements of which this is No. 8, has to do only with the MINE producers' part in the transaction. Control passes out of the producers' hands as soon as the coal is loaded on cars for shipment to market.

FALCONER MAKES DENIAL.

Did Not Oppose City's Freedom to Foch and Diaz.

Alderman Bruce M. Falconer, Republican, who has opposed the too frequent granting of the freedom of the city, declared yesterday that "a last-minute lying anonymous letter" had been sent to 23,000 voters in his district, stating that he had "refused" the freedom of the city to Marshal Foch and General Diaz.

"This allegation constitutes a malicious and unqualified falsehood," said Alderman Falconer. "Marshal Foch and General Diaz were given the freedom of the city by the same resolution that gave it to Admiral Beatty and General Jacques. Of course, I voted for this resolution and my name is so recorded on the roll call in the printed minutes of the Board of Aldermen. Objection to unanimous consent was made by Alderman Alexander Braunstein, Socialist, alone and not by me as has been incorrectly stated.

"This anonymous letter also says that I refused the freedom of the city to De Valera. Like the reports of Mark Twain's death, this is 'greatly exaggerated.' It so happened that on June 24, 1919, when this particular 'freedom' was granted, I was absent, and the printed records of the board show that I was absent and excused from attendance."

MAYOR BREAKS PRECEDENT.

Will Speak at Four Meetings Tonight, One at Midnight.

In disregard of political precedent, Mayor Hylan will speak at four meetings tonight, the last at the American Tobacco Company's ball in Somers Hall, 126 Rockaway Street, Brooklyn, at midnight, six hours before the opening of the polls. The other appearances of the Mayor will be at the dinner of the Washington Heights Business and Professional Men's League at 145th Street and Broadway, at a meeting of the Bronx Citizens Five-Cent Fare League, 3,252 Third Avenue, and at a meeting of the West Bronx Hylan Club, Public School 26, University and Burnside Avenues.

Henry H. Curran, Coalition candidate for Mayor, will make one speech at a noonday meeting at 880 Broadway, under the auspices of several Republican organizations.

STYLE Leadership

When leadership is achieved in the most difficult of all fields—the New York market—there's small wonder that the town sits up and talks.

New York merchants are talking Ide Collars today. They are putting the leadership of Ide under the Microscope of Merchandise. They are analyzing the forces which have sent Ide Collars driving with unchecked momentum up to the very top. And they are finding back of Ide leadership the self-same characteristics that have given their stores a world supremacy.

Courage to insist that higher quality merchandise be given constantly greater prominence; foresight that anticipates and gives form to the demand of men who know how to dress; refusal to offer the merely sensational: these are a part of the solid foundation on which the prestige of New York merchants is reared. It is a prestige that wins a world's admiration.

—And the prestige that has won for Ide Collars the admiration and patronage of these very merchants themselves is founded upon these same qualities.

NEW SUBMARINES TO CRUISE 10,000 MILES

SURFACE SPEED 21 KNOTS

Craft, 300 Feet Long, Will Be Able to Stay Away From Bases a Month.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—A new type of submarine motive plant, a combination of gas and electric propulsion, will be put in three American submarines of the V type, two of which have just been laid down at the Portsmouth, N. H., Navy Yard. Naval engineers are said to be watching the construction with great interest because of their expectation that improved operation of submersible warcraft will result from the new power plant. A cruising radius of 10,000 miles is said to be one possibility.

These newest submarines are to be 2,025-ton boats, 300 feet long and equipped with electric engines of 6,500 horsepower. They are designed for a surface speed of twenty-one and a submerged speed of from nine to ten knots per hour. The power plant will combine the latest engineering developments resulting from experiments conducted on the former naval collier Jupiter, now the aircraft carrier Langley.

The two main engines, set well astern, of 2,250 horsepower each, are of six cylinder type and are connected with two motor generators which will drive two propellers. Two engines of the same type, of 1,000 horse power each, are located forward and are connected directly with the generators which, through two rear electric motors, will drive the submarine at an economical surface cruising speed of eleven knots. By combining the main and forward plants, a maximum of 6,500 horsepower will be obtained. When under water the submarines will be driven by the aft motors from batteries and no gas engines will be run.

The gas engines enable the use of the aft motor generators somewhat in the same way as electric self-starters are used in automobiles. The twelve engines for the three submarines are said to have cost $8,000,000.

It is estimated by submarine experts that these vessels will be able to operate for a month away from their bases or tenders and that the maximum cruising radius at an average speed is approximately 10,000 miles. These estimates indicate that the submarines will be able, as designed, to accompany naval fleets on long cruises.

The crew of each of these ships will include four officers and about fifty men, an increase of twenty men over the crews of the under-water craft now in service.

When completed in 1923 each of the new submarines will be armed with a five-inch gun set in a "wet" mount forward of the conning tower. The gun is designed to remain in the water when submerged, and can be trained almost in a complete circle or elevated as an anti-aircraft weapon. Machine guns will be mounted on the conning tower bridge. Forward will be four torpedo tubes and aft two others, all of the 21-inch size. Storage space is planned for sixteen torpedoes.

RUSTY DEUTSCHLAND HERE AS THE HANSA

Once Spick and Span Ocean Greyhound Brings Cargo of Immigrants to U. S.

Old-timers along the waterfront could scarcely recognize in the rusty looking steamship Hansa, arriving yesterday with 812 passengers from Hamburg, the once spick and span ocean greyhound Deutschland that made the record trip to Naples in January, 1904, from New York in 7 days, 16 hours 44 minutes.

When the war started the vessel was known as the Victoria Luise and was used as a cruising yacht for the Hamburg-American Line, whose flag she still flies. All the fine public rooms, with their paintings, carved panels, silken hangings, rich rugs and carpets, have disappeared, and the former record-breaker has been fitted to carry a limited number of cabin passengers and immigrants in the third class.

The four big funnels have been replaced by two smaller ones and the foremast now is abaft the bridge. Several boilers also had been taken out, but despite all this and the rust on her sides, the Hansa made the passage from Hamburg in a little more than nine days, which was better than the performance of the new steamship Centennial State from London to New York. The Hansa was delayed by bad weather at times, but as she could average sixteen knots at full speed it was soon made up. This speed was perhaps due, the engineers said, to the fact that the vessel had been converted into an oil burner.

The vessel is commanded by Captain Thomas Kier, in charge of the Imperator before the war.

One of the cabin passengers was Arndt von Holtzendorff, a director of the Hamburg-American Line, who said he was making the round trip and he would be in New York for ten days. He said his company was operating seventeen steamships out of Hamburg, which were trading to Brazil, Cuba, Colombia, Costa Rica, Venezuela and the west coast of South America. Mexico would be added later.

The director said the Hansa was 21 years old and the pioneer of a fleet of one cabin and third class steamships with comfortable accommodations and a moderate speed that will be placed upon the New York-Hamburg service. The Wuerttemburg will be ready for service soon, he added, and there were two 22,000-ton passenger steamships building in Hamburg which will be ready in 1923. Emil Goos, Chief Engineer of the company, accompanied Mr. von Holtzendorff.

There were 31 cabin passengers, including 13 aliens and 787 third class, of whom 653 were immigrants.

How L. B. serves modern business

TAKE your sales sheet and your cost sheet. Lay them side by side. What is the true picture of your business? Are your sales volume and profits what you know they should be?

Are your cost figures, like an army of marching ants, devouring every crumb of profit?

"How can I build sales up? How can I hammer costs down?" That is today's problem. Library Bureau can help you.

The L. B. idea

Library Bureau is every day showing businesses how to make profits from files and records—sources that a few years ago were considered only as costly overhead.

Profit comes to you in just two ways—through increased sales volume; through savings effected in overhead. Library Bureau can show you, as it has shown others—

1. How to make your files and records actively productive of sales.
2. How to save space, save money, save time—save waste of all kinds in the file and record keeping departments.

How L. B. can serve you

Take two minutes to read the panel at the right. There you will see crystallized the six main divisions of L. B. service. They are the full flower of the idea-germ that sprouted at the Philadelphia Centennial in 1876.

They span 45 years, and hidden behind them are—

Filing and card record systems that, geared to your business, increase its voltage.

Cabinets and supplies that are everywhere ranked first in quality.

Inventive genius that has brought to the business world the vertical file, the counter-hight unit, the L. B. Automatic Index, the L. B. Reinforced folder and dozens of other improvements.

Trained analytical ability that sees to the heart of every filing problem.

A few questions

Can you get the letter you want when you want it? Does your sales record give you all the information you want? Are your ledgers still ponderous, space-eating books? Could some of the space in your filing department be saved? Are your files and records helping produce more business? L. B. will help you answer these and other important questions.

Send for the L. B. salesman

He is trained; he is widely experienced; he is conservative; he is constructive. You will find him an understanding man to talk to. His business is to help your business. Today—right now—telephone for an L. B. salesman to call.

The Coal Dealer Renders a Real Service

COAL consumers frequently ask why they cannot buy anthracite coal in carload lots direct from the mines, either for their own use or to be divided among several consumers.

Aside from expediency and fairness to the entire community, there is no real reason why this cannot be done. But it doesn't pay in the long run.

Some large industrial concerns—a few of them in this district—have bought consignments of coal direct from the mines and sold it to their employes at cost plus freight.

They have assumed no responsibility for the quality of the coal. It is not screened before delivery and the employes who buy it have to arrange and pay for delivery to their homes.

In this district they have saved about a dollar a ton on the retail price, but lack of screening has lowered the quality of the coal and these transactions have shown an actual loss when this is taken into consideration.

The retail coal dealer is a highly necessary factor in the distribution of coal, especially to domestic consumers. He is a heavy taxpayer in his community, he employs considerable labor and his investment in his business is large.

He renders real service and is entitled to a fair profit.

If those consumers whose means are sufficient to permit them to buy coal in car-lots direct from the mines, were to do so, it would mean that the retailer's costs would have to be divided among fewer customers and those who could least afford it would have to pay more for their coal.

During the stringency last year, it became necessary for the mines to ship direct to consumers in certain localities who would otherwise have been compelled to go without coal. After paying for weighing and delivering, it was found in most instances, that it would have been cheaper to buy the coal from a retailer, had it been obtainable in that way.

It has been shown that the retailers' profits in the territory served by members of the Central New Jersey Coal Exchange are very small, averaging only 41 cents a ton gross profit—less, in fact, than a fair compensation for the service they perform.

NEGROES HERE CALL FOR SOCIAL EQUALITY

CALLS VIEW UNDEMOCRATIC

Repudiates Marcus Garvey's Approval of President's Birmingham Speech.

The People's Educational Forum, an organization to advance the interests of negroes, passed a resolution yesterday in which President Harding's speech at Birnmingham, Ala., in which he said negroes should not aspire to social equality, was declared to be undemocratic and opposed to the true spirit of racial co-operation and destructive of "the social and political safety of our whole country."

"This body firmly holds that the social safety of our country can rest securely upon no other foundation than the social equality of all its citizens," says the resolution. "In fact, the growth and stability of any social organism are in direct proportion to the unrestricted and harmonious intercourse of its component members. Recognition of this social principle can in no wise interfere with the free play of those nearer human relationships which must always be dependent upon and regulated by individual tastes and preferences.

"Whereas, lacking a final authoritative word of scicence as to the merits of social amalgamation, this body cannot accept the President's dogmatic pronouncement as to 'fundamental, eternal and inescapable difference between the races.' It holds that no such differences exist and that no race can have 'an array of aspirations all its won.'

"While it is clear that the President started in the right direction when he envisaged the problem as neither sectional nor national but international, it is most unfortunate that he should have chosen for his model the policy of the British Empire, which, because of its economic, political and social inequalities, finds not alone its unity, but its very existence challenged today to the point of disruption.

"Be it resolved, That this body, composed of persons of various political faiths and different races earnestly protests against such a policy and emphatically repudiates the slavish endorsement of this doctrine of social inequality by Marcus Garvey, who in a telegram to the President arrogated to himself the right to speak for the entire negro race and to accept for it a position of social inferiority which will forever fasten upon this race the shackles of segregation, discrimination, disfranchisement, legal injustice, peonage, lynching and all other despicable and injurious forms of social degradation. It concedes to the President General of the Universal Negro Improvement Association the right to speak for his organization when duly authorized, but denies to him or to any other individual of whatever race or station the power to portray a race as servilely consenting to its own debasement. And be it further

"Resolved, That this body, believing that the spirit of true democracy is not entirely banished from the hearts of those who came to this land in quest of equal opportunity, calls upon those who love liberty and seek justice to join with it in an unflinching and unshakable determination to keep aloft the flaming torch of liberty, which alone can light the way to that higher civilization which shall at last be firmly founded on the brotherhood of man."

The resolution is signed by Clarence A. Carpented and Frank R. Crosswaith, Chairman and Secretary of the forum.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 6.—So great has been the development of the liking for frog legs in France in recent years that steps have been taken to prevent this delicacy of the table, which is peculiarly French, from passing away. All year round frogs were being hunted to please the palates of the gourmets. But now the gourmets themselves have seen the wisdom of not killing the frog with the delicious legs.

They have petitioned the Prefect of the Seine Department to declare a closed season for frogs, and have voluntarily sacrificed themselves so that they may the better feast during the rest of the year.

The Prefect has accepted their recommendation and has declared a closed season between the middle of April and the middle of June.

NO one ever saved money by taking it for granted that the painter was out "to do them" and kicking on the price.

In the end you always get what you pay for. Force down the price and you get cheap paint and varnish. And it doesn't pay.

It didn't pay when the cheap paint manufacturer could afford to use at least fairly good materials—had he wanted to. And now that he has to sell his paint for so much less . . . . . !

SOMETHING NEW IN AN AUTOMOBILE PROPOSITION

It has been the custom of automobile retailers to sell at a profit the used cars taken in trade on new automobiles. The Studebaker Corporation has a policy which will be very good news to the used cars prospects. This company has developed this plan—

In the first place, due to the tremendous demand for Studebaker cars, the very lowest allowances are accepted by would-be purchasers of Studebaker cars on the used cars they wish to trade in. This gives Studebaker a big advantage.

Second, the Studebaker policy is to turn these cars without profit, thus providing a quick sale because of the low prices and enabling the corporation to get its money out of the used cars.

Third, the standing and integrity of Studebaker commands the confidence of the prospective used car buyer in considering the used cars we offer. Used cars sold by the Studebaker Corporation need no other endorsement. No automobile dealer who attempts to make a living out of used cars, can compete in price or provide the quality of used cars that this Corporation can. We sell for no more than the small trade-in allowance. The used car merchant has to make a profit and the used cars cost him more.

THE CITY'S BUSINESS.

The stockholders of our biggest corporation are to choose its directors tomorrow. This is only another way of saying that the voters of New York are to elect its rulers for the next four years. It may justly be thought of as a business transaction on the greatest scale and of the highest imaginable importance. The Government of this city is now in charge of financial affairs of extraordinary magnitude. The budget is upward of $350,000,000. This is more than twice the expenditure of the entire State of New York. It is greater than the ordinary disbursements of the United States thirty years ago. The administration of such a vast financial trust plainly demands skill of the finest order and integrity, together with public confidence, altogether exceptional.

Moreover, the next four years are certain to bring new and trying demands upon those responsible for the conduct of our municipal business. In addition to routine demands and the present difficulties, severe strains upon the city's finances are foreseen by every prudent citizen. New York can claim no exemption from the financial stress that is now nation-wide and world-wide. We are facing a time when it will be essential to maintain, and not further to cripple, the city's credit. There will have to be municipal borrowings and refundings. The investing public and the banks will watch the financial operations of the City Government with a more jealous eye than ever. Slipshod management will mean that the necessary funds will cost the city more. Depressed trade and checked prosperity will make the successful direction of our municipal finance doubly difficult in the years immediately before us. Caution and foresight would dictate that we make sure of putting men in charge who have the intelligence and the character to weather any storms that may come, and to keep the credit of New York above suspicion, or even question.

One large item of city business will at once press for attention. It is the urgent question of municipal rapid transit. It has been muddled and shuffled with for a long time, but it will no longer brook delay or evasion. As soon as the election is over it will come forward as something which it is impossible to put by. Mayor Hylan prematurely boasted on Saturday that his determined and pure-minded opposition to the plan of the Transit Commission had compelled the commission to "withdraw" it. Even while he was speaking the Chairman of the commission was sending to the press the statement that hearings are to begin on Nov. 15 and that the project for reorganizing and salvaging the traction companies is to be steadily and vigorously pressed, no matter who is elected Mayor on Nov. 8. Here, again, is a business question of great complexity, involving the most careful financial planning. Officials in any way associated with that work ought to possess the clearest ability and the most unchallenged sincerity that the city can possibly command.

This business argument is one that can be presented without partisan heat or personal animus. It stands by itself on its own feet. Many citizens say that they are weary of the exaggerations and the political abuse of the rival campaigners. Very well; let them put all that aside. They cannot put aside the fact that they have the deepest interest in the management of the city's business. It is vital to the private affairs of every one of them. The municipal corporation in which they are stockholders has crucial days ahead of it. Who should be made responsible for its wise control? There can be no doubt what the answer would be if it were a matter divorced from politics. We have only to look about and see what great banking and manufacturing corporations are doing. They are preparing for what may be a troubled future by getting rid of men charged with incompetence and seeking the ablest and most trusted managers that can be obtained. Why should it be different with that immense corporation which we call the City of New York?

THE DWINDLING TAX YIELD.

Senators are afraid that the taxes will not support the Treasury, and are urging that the taxes too high to be productive should be made higher still. The idea that taxes can be made more productive by being made lower and universal finds no acceptance among those who would rather "soak the rich" than finance the Treasury. They must face the fact that they are neither "soaking the rich" nor supporting the Treasury. For the fiscal year up to this month the Treasury receipts from the income and profits taxes were $214,601,953 less than last year, when their decline was already threatening. The rich are paying their taxes in the manner provided by law, and the Treasury takes its needed funds from the money market instead of from the taxpayers.

If the Government expenses could be reduced, the Treasury would need less taxes. If all could be made to pay, there would be less need of asking so much from any that the public interests are ill served. Yet simultaneously the investment bankers of the nation in convention at New Orleans unanimously favor the taxes which Congress rejects, and the National Board of Farm Organizations petitions that Congress should retain the taxes which the bankers condemn, and which fail to support the Treasury. The laying of suitable taxes, if nothing else is considered, is an easy task compared with the attempt to meet such opposing views in a manner to carry the next election.

SEVEN AMENDMENTS.

Seven proposed amendments to the State Constitution will be submitted to the voters tomorrow. Amendment 1 gives preference in appointments and promotions in the State civil service to all veterans who are citizens and residents of the State, without regard to their standing on the lists of the Civil Service Commission. If this amendment is adopted the merit system will be smashed, the police and fire departments of the municipalities demoralized, the civil service made inefficient. For more than a generation that service will be practically restricted to veterans. It is a discrimination against women in particular, as well as against merit and experience. It is a proposal to erect a class of military favorites. It is undemocratic. Vote "No."

Amendment 2 proposes to increase the salaries of members of the Legislature from $1,500 to $3,000 a year. A heightening of the qualifications of members is expected to result. At any rate, the experiment is worth trying. Vote "Yes."

Amendment 3 requires that all new voters after Jan. 1, 1923, shall be able to read and to write English. This is already a requisite to naturalization. The amendment affects no person now possessing the franchise. The inflow into the electorate of great numbers of illiterates is dangerous. The literacy test, if not perfect, is the best that can be had. The voters should have a common language. This is a measure for Americanization. Vote "Yes."

Amendment 4 authorizes the Legislature to establish in Westchester and Nassau Counties forms of government "subject to adoption and approval by the electors." Those counties have an outworn and ineffective system of county government. Under this amendment the Legislature will have the power to give them a better and modern one, which the voters can accept or reject. Vote "Yes."

Amendment 5 authorizes the Legislature to establish children's courts and courts of domestic relations. The New York children's courts have not the power to appoint personal guardians. Actions run in the name of the State against neglected children instead of in their favor. That is, though the little children are called "delinquents," they are really treated as criminals. The proposed amendment will grant the constitutional power to establish effectual children's courts and courts of domestic relations. Vote "Yes."

Amendment 6 gives the Legislature the right to lease, to sell and dispose of that part of the old Erie Canal situated between Rome and Mohawk. This is for the interest of the State. It will put money in the public purse. Vote "Yes."

Amendment 7 gives the Legislature power to deal similarly with that part of the old Erie Canal in Herkimer County, "between the easterly portion "of the village of Mohawk and the "boundary line between the Counties "of Herkimer and Oneida." As in the case of Amendment 6, all the funds derived from lease, sale or disposition go to the improvement or repair of the canals. Vote "Yes."

Vote "Yes" on every amendment but the first. On that vote "No," unless you want the State civil service wrecked.

AVERT THE GARMENT STRIKE.

Out of the smoke screen of misleading statements issued by both sides in the ladies' garment industry one solid fact emerges. By an instrument signed on June 3 the Manufacturers' Protective Association agreed to the organization of a joint commission, composed of three members of the association and three members of the union, which should study shop and labor conditions with a view to increasing production and which should make a report with recommendations on Nov. 1. The joint commission was formed and it met frequently during the Summer. But the manufacturers, instead of waiting for the final report and recommendations, on Oct. 25 arbitrarily decreed a return to the piecework system, an increase of hours and a reduction of wages. The reduction of wages and the increase of hours, far from being the result of joint study and agreement, were to "be determined by the Executive Committee" of the Manufacturers' Association. Thus a solemn agreement was broken and a duly authorized board of conciliation was thrown upon the scrap-heap.

The action is the more indefensible because the manufacturers have the weight of justice and reason upon their side. It is not true that, as the workers have protested, piecework means "a return of the old sweatshop conditions." The Joint Board of Sanitary Control will see to that. But there can be no doubt that piecework will greatly increase production, giving merited opportunity to able workmen, and will lower prices to the public. In doing this it will benefit not only the general public, but eventually the garment workers themselves. The buyers' strike continues in the clothing trades and without lower prices it cannot be broken. The Labor Department at Washington reports that the cost of clothing in New York is still 131 per cent. above what it was in 1914, being exceeded by only one notable item, furniture. Food is only 50 per cent. above what it was then and shelter only 44 per cent., though this figure does not include such advances as result from subletting. As a whole the cost of living in New York is only about 80 per cent. higher. The vast public of those whose wages have been deflated simply cannot afford clothing at the present prices. Revival in the trade is definitely conditioned upon lower wages and increased production. In insisting upon wartime wages and conditions the garment workers are acting not only against the present interests of the community as a whole, but against their own ultimate and collective interests as wage earners.

The truth of this has been thoroughly burned into the popular consciousness and is doubtless evident to the leaders of the garment workers, whose intelligence is far higher than appears in their fighting propaganda. All that should be needed to restore harmony and at the same time insure just conditions in the industry is frank conference and an honest effort toward conciliation. The manufacturers have formally agreed to this; the joint commission is in existence and in possession of the necessary data.

THE HERO OF CUNEL.

With demobilization of the American army that fought in France came demotion, a term odious to Major Generals who had commanded divisions, to Brigadiers who had led regiments into battle, and to Colonels who in pre-war days had been Captains in the regular establishment. With decline in rank came reduction of pay. So it was after the Civil War, when promotion by seniority clouded the future of many ambitious officers. In the war with Spain there were Captains of infantry who had seen service in the war to save the Union, thirty-three years before. Promotion in the army today is not entirely regulated by the seniority rule. An unusual case of demotion following the great war was that of Captain Samuel Woodfill of the Sixteenth Infantry and Fifth Division, who became Sergeant Woodfill. He had been a "non-com." in the old army, one of those efficient, steady and dependable men who are sometimes worth more to a company than a Captain.

Demotion is perhaps not accurate in Woodfill's case. He was probably mustered out, enlisted again, and was at once made a sergeant, being invaluable as a regular-army man. The other day Representative Woodruff of Michigan introduced a bill in the House to promote Woodfill to a captaincy for heroic conduct in the war. Appearing in the gallery, not of his own volition, for he is as modest as brave, Sergeant Woodfill was enthusiastically cheered by the members. Everybody knew that in the estimation of General Pershing he was the super-hero of the war as a first-class fighting man, and that he had been selected to represent the enlisted men of the army on the occasion of the honors paid to the unknown American soldier in London. On Thursday Sergeant Woodfill is to represent the United States Infantry at the burial in Arlington Cemetery.

It will be three years on Nov. 11 since the last shot was fired in the war. The surprising thing is that in such a democracy as ours a commission was not awarded to Woodfill before. He was a Lieutenant, and not a sergeant, when he killed nineteen of the enemy and captured three in an attack upon machine-gun "nests" at Cunel. For this feat he received the Congressional Medal of Honor. The citation shows that Woodfill performed prodigies of valor in hand-to-hand combats with the enemy and seemed to bear a charmed life. This distinction is not given unless "conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity" are conclusively proved. Lieutenant Woodfill was at once promoted to be a captain. When he returned to New York in August, 1919, the story of his gallantry was published—and soon forgotten.

It was when General Pershing singled Woodfill out for duty in connection with the honors paid the unknown soldier in London that he was identified as the super-hero of Cunel. In the French or in the British Army a man so conspicuously brave holding commissioned rank in the war would not have been relegated to a sergeantcy after it. Perhaps there was method in General Pershing's assignment of Woodfill for the honorable detail at Arlington. A soldier fit to command a company in France and chosen to represent the infantry at the impressive Arlington ceremonial as the bravest of the brave should not be denied a commission in the regular army.

ACTUAL DISARMING.

However it may be with other countries, Germany is disarming—because she has to do it. Among the reports which the Interallied Commission has made of the destruction of German military materials none is more interesting than that recently made concerning Heligoland. That mighty sea fortress of Germany was by the provisions of the Versailles Treaty to be demolished. It was thought that the work would take seven years, so elaborate were the fortifications. But after two years of active demolition the task is nearly completed. The allied officers in control were withdrawn on Oct. 1, and what is left to be done will be finished by next April. Then there will be a final inspection by the Allies.

Admiral Charlton at the head of the Naval Commission reports that some 2,400 guns have been destroyed at Heligoland, many of them of the largest calibre. All the emplacements had also to be razed, the docks dismantled and leveled, the submarine quays obliterated, the jetties blown up. The island will soon be in the unprotected and unthreatening state in which it was when Lord Salisbury traded it away with Germany. The millions which the Germans spent on this base might as well have been thrown into the North Sea. So thoroughgoing has been the destruction at Heligoland that the naval authorities of the Allies are convinced that it will be impossible ever to build there a harbor for warships. Announcement of the end of this island fortress comes fittingly on the eve of the Washington conference.

WORLD FAIRS AGAIN.

One sign that the world, which like the moon has of late been off its usual track, is beginning to swing back into its old-time orbit is to be found in the fact that plans for World Fairs, or Exhibitions, are again under way. France, emerging from the great war with Alsace and Lorraine restored and with an army with which Marshal Foch was recently reported as saying he could march across Europe, is preparing, notwithstanding immense losses and still unsettled conditions after the terrific struggle, to resume her place in the world of industry and art by a World's Fair in 1924.

America, which felt the world conflict the least and suffered the least in losses, is also showing signs of recovery, one of which, perhaps, is that Philadelphia, which conducted the first great American World's Fair, the Centennial Exhibition, with such success, has begun to take steps for perhaps an even greater enterprise, a sesquicentennial fair in 1926, on the 150th anniversary of American independence. In order to make this exhibition worthy of the event it is to celebrate, the city by the Delaware proposes to give the forthcoming exhibition a broader standing by associating with itself six or seven of the greater cities of the United States, while of course the exhibition itself is expected to be national and, as in the case of the fair of 1876, will be supported by all the States of the Union. The fact that it was in Philadelphia that the Continental Congress adopted the Declaration of Independence, July 4, 1776, gave that city a historical claim and honor readily yielded to it by all others when it came to celebrating the first century of national independence, and the same fact marks that city as the appropriate place for holding the sesquicentennial observance.

As a matter of fact, nearly all the larger and older cities in the United States, with the exception of Baltimore and Boston, have had the experience, always pleasant even if not financially profitable in all cases, of holding great exhibitions, Chicago leading all the others in the World's Columbian Exposition, the most ambitious and successful of American World Fairs. But Atlanta, New Orleans, Omaha, Buffalo, Portland, St. Louis, San Francisco, Seattle and San Diego also have held great expositions. Most, if not all of these, resulted in a distinct gain to each of the cities concerned in cultural experience, and most of them, like Philadelphia in its Art Museum in Fairmount Park and St. Louis in its Art Museum in Forest Hill Park and Chicago in its Field Museum, still have pleasant and permanent reminders of vanished exposition glories. San Diego still keeps its buildings, its climate aiding in their perpetuation, and San Francisco also has much to remind it and its visitors of the glories of the Panama-Pacific Exposition. New York alone, almost, of all cities which have held such expositions, has nothing left to remind it of its Crystal Palace of 1853, in which was held the first great American Industrial Exhibition, in which Great Britain, Ireland, France, Belgium, Germany and other nations participated.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Concealment Always Dangerous.

Senator Watson could not have created the sensation he so much enjoys, or at any rate it would have lacked the most grisly of its imagined horrors—the stories of soldiers hanged without trial—if our military authorities in the exercise of their large discretion had not seen fit, during the war, to draw as closely as they could a veil of silence over the crimes committed by a few of our men in France.

Perhaps this was wise, and no doubt it was well-intentioned. Their purpose, presumably, was the double one of preserving what they thought the useful illusion that every American soldier was a heroic paragon of courage and virtue and of saving from humiliation the families of the men who fell far below the national expectation and standard.

Such concealment partakes of the nature of the "propaganda" which was employed by every other Government at least as much as by our own to keep up the enthusiasm and determination of their peoples. On balance, the effects must be good, else the practice of hiding painful facts and the exaggeration and embroidery of pleasant truths would have been abandoned.

This much admitted, however, it is impossible not to see in what respects it would have been better for the repute of the army if the proceedings and findings of every court-martial in all cases had been made public exactly as they are in peace times by both military and civil courts. Then there would have been no gossip in the camps about hangings without trial—of men summarily put to death for petty offences or none at all. The repute of the army would not have suffered in any reasonable minds, and, as for the feelings of the relatives at home, their claim to consideration is no greater than is the one that the relatives of other criminals have in time of peace.

Facts Will Replace Wild Tales.

Now, of course, not only full details of all the crimes committed in France by unworthy members of the American Expeditionary Forces will come to light, but the names of the men who committed the crimes will be advertised much more widely than would have been the case had there been at the beginning no attempt to let their deaths pass as casualties of the war. The public even will learn at last what basis there was for the rumors current during the war that in our own ranks were traitors so devoted to Germany that they worked the secret destruction of comrades in the service. There was, it seems, one such man.

H. D. Green, who made for the Adjutant General's Department a special investigation of conditions in our army abroad, reported that at St. Nazaire a Captain in the Medical Corps was executed for inoculating enlisted men with disease germs instead of a typhoid fever preventive. The name of the officer who committed that almost incredibly hideous atrocity has not yet been disclosed, but he came from Cincinnati and was of German parentage. He was one of the few white men who suffered death under military law.

It is easy to understand why the Army hushed up a scandal so abominable, and yet quick and full disclosure would have been better, or so it appears now, than it was to let irresponsible gossipers in the training camps inflate the solitary instance into a cycle of whispered horrors.

Alike, and Still So Different!

There is difficulty, even with the best of will, in seeing anything really pathetic in the departure on a British warship for exile in Madeira of Charles and Zita, deposed but refusing to abdicate. Their voyage recalls, though chiefly by differences, the last one made by Napoleon. The Corsican, after his fall, also was carried away to an island by a British warship, but his fall had been from an altitude almost infinitely greater than that of this Hapsburg and his spouse, and St. Helena, a lonely rock rising from the deep sea, has something of its guest's grandeur of ambition and of achievement, while Madeira is a cheerful place of residence.

It is possible to believe, too, that Napoleon would not have expressed, however he may have felt, resentment because the attendants who saw him aboard ship did not linger on the wharf until the ship was well on its way. To the more modern Emperor that was a bitter grievance, and well it might be, for it was adjusted to his mental size. Nobody says that he is a bad man, as Hapsburgs go, but somehow he is not the more admirable for being comic instead of sinister, as so many of his ancestors were.

It is characteristic that Charles worries over his financial prospects—not how he is to pay big debts contracted in kind and credulous Switzerland, but about living expenses in Madeira, now that all his family jewels are sold or pawned. Of course, the idea of going to work has not occurred to him. He expects his late subjects still to support him in some approach to his accustomed style, though his only known claim for that is the fact that for a good many hundred years all the members of his family have been supported so. And there is little chance or none that he or his will be allowed to go hungry or shabby. They all will be taken care of somehow. Certainly nobody owes them anything and they have only what is called a nuisance value.

An Apology Owed and Given.

A correspondent who evidently knows a good deal about the walls and gates of Peking—and much good of them, as well—declares with something approaching passion that The Times, in this column, has been unjust to those venerable constructions and inappreciative of their beauties. As the authority is high, admission of wrong done must be full and humble.

The memory of pictures seen—oh, so many years ago!—in school geographies should not have been made the basis of depreciatory remarks, especially as later works of reference and instruction are available for consultation, and it is a fact that many such works do praise the walls and gates whose sacrifice to the ruthless desires of a tramway company so rashly was advocated.

The error was the less pardonable because, as everybody knows, such corporations lack the esthetic sense entirely and it would be just like one of them to want to replace an ancient monument with a car barn of surpassing ugliness.

The Continuation Schools.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Thousands of parents are going to the polls Tuesday to cast their ballots for the Coalition ticket partly because the Tammany administration has opposed the continuation school law, which the State in its wisdom enacted to insure education to all boys and girls who have been compelled to enter employment before completing their high school education.

The continuation school law was enacted in 1919, and provides from four to eight hours' weekly instruction for all boys and girls in employment between the ages of 14 and 18 years who are not high school graduates and who have discontinued attendance upon the regular full-time schools. The law is similar to ones enacted in many other States.

When the matter of financing this law came at various times before the Board of Estimate the Mayor expressed his determined opposition to it. In his own peculiar fashion he has confused it with what he calls the Gary plan. He has stated that the aim of the law is to drive children into what he calls the mill and the factory and to prepare them for industrial slavery.

Perhaps he would have us return to the old plan of herding these youngsters in evening schools, in which, as a result of the exhausting labors of the day, the youngsters actually fell asleep. Is there any question that it is infinitely better to charge their instruction against the employers' time, to free their evenings and to teach them when their energy has not been exhausted by the day's toil?

A recent transfer of funds to meet the needs of the evening schools which were not properly financed in the present year's budget has made it impossible for the Board of Education to carry out its pledge to the State to put through the continuation school program originally planned for this and succeeding years.

Ernest F. Eilert, Coalition candidate for Borough President, will win thousands of votes because of his aggressive stand for the continuation law. CARL H. GETZ.

Misappropriated Cheers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

About the most impudent lie of the season is contained in The New York American's report of the swearing in of Edward F. Cassidy and myself after the victorious termination of our twenty-two months' contest for seats in the Board of Aldermen.

The American truly says that several hundred Socialists witnessed the ceremony. It then says: "When it was concluded they gave three rousing cheers for Mayor Hylan," and "many openly stated that they would vote for the Mayor." Here are two flagrant untruths.

No doubt the crowd gave three rousing cheers—not for Mr. Hylan, but for Alderman Cassidy and myself as embodying the triumph of the Socialist Party in its fight for an honest count. So far from expressing their intention to vote for Mr. Hylan, many voiced the opinion that he had practically given the signal for a repetition of the election frauds when, in response to my suggestion that he use his great influence to prevent ballot stealing, he coldly replied, "I have told the police to see that the law is obeyed, and my duty ends there."

The men and women who stood back of Mr. Cassidy and me in this long fight are not going to vote for any other Mayoralty candidate than our own chosen spokesman, Judge Jacob Panken. ALGERNON LEE.

The Issues.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We are again called upon to choose for ourselves the ruling powers of this great city.

True, it is only for four years, but four years can make or mar. Four years of misgovernment can impoverish us beyond the power of a generation to repair.

Blind prejudice and ignorance seem to hold sway over the citizen at this period. Always Tammany Hall brings forth some bogy. Today it is the "5-cent fare" bogy. There is no 5-cent fare issue. It is the same old ghost and phantasmagoria in a different get-up. The city is practically running the subways today. It stands all the loss and you and I are paying it.

Is that an issue on which to maintain Tammany Hall in its predatory career? Forget the "5-cent fare." Forget the Interborough. Ask yourself, "Is Tammany Hall working for me or for itself?" No issue is clearer or ever was clearer. The old enemy is at the gates. Will you permit them to approach and take possession of your city through empty promises?

Tired of Five Cents.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Hylan is shouting a 5-cent fare, and yet for six months, each and every day I have gone to work, I have paid exactly 20 cents to go and return from my office. Transfers at many points have been abolished.

This 5-cent slogan is getting on my nerves.

THE PASSING OF THE UNKNOWN SOLDIER.

They are bearing him home through the old Virginia Valley,
Home to the hill where a Nation's heroes sleep.
Hushed are the hosts that honor his silent passing,
Hushed is their grief and deep.
Lower him tenderly; vex not his gentle dreaming;
Pillow his head on the kindly loam of France.
So shall his sleep be the sweeter, feeling thy nearness,
Land of the Great Romance!

Sheridan riding his shadowy steed of fame;
Heroes of Gettysburg, Shiloh and grim Shenandoah,
Scorched in the battle flame;
A hundred score of lads whose bodies were taken
Maimed from the fields where the red Rappahannock runs;
Nameless as he, yet honored as he is honored;
All of them Mothers' Sons!

He is the youth of America, taken untimely;
Symbol of countless thousands who perished young;
Sinew and bone of a Nation, crushed in the making;
The poet, his song half sung.
You, who dwell in a Liberty bought by his passing,
It is your Son, your Brother is buried here.

ASK MAIL TUBE SERVICE.

Merchants Say Recent Hold-Up Shows Need of Restoring It.

The Merchants' Association yesterday made public a letter to Postmaster General Hays, urging the restoration of the mail tube service and pointing out that the recent mail robbery on lower Broadway probably would not have happened had that service been in operation.

"As you know," said the letter, "this association has for several years strongly advocated the restoration of pneumatic tube service in this and other cities as a valuable means for expediting the movement of mails. The report of the Joint Congressional Commission, just made to Congress, recommends such restoration in New York, Boston and Chicago. We understand that action by Congress in this matter will, in large degree, depend upon your initiation, and we earnestly hope that you will promptly move to promote such action.

"We further beg to point out to you that the recent heavy robbery of mails in this city would probably not have occurred had the pneumatic tube service been available for the dispatch of the valuable mails now dispatched by auto without sufficient safeguards. This condition alone is a powerful reason why the pneumatic tube service should be resumed at the earliest possible date.

"We are informed that your office has under renewed consideration the question of forwarding underpaid first-class mail. This association has hitherto advocated the prompt forwarding of such mail and the collection of postage at point of destination, with perhaps a penalty such as double postage. It occasionally happens that important first-class mail is inadvertently underpaid, and a serious delay in delivery arises therefrom. It is our belief that the interest of the public, and particularly of business men, would be served if such delay could be avoided by the regular dispatch of such mail, making collection at the point of delivery. We trust this may be approved by the department."

TARIFF HEARING ON TODAY.

But Senate Committee May Not Have a Quorum Present.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—The Senate Finance Committee plans to make another try tomorrow at holding hearings on the permanent tariff bill. With the Senate meeting early for consideration of the tax bill, however, leaders did not know tonight whether they would be able to muster a quorum of the committee to hear testimony on the tariff measure.

Chairman Penrose stated that it might be possible to hold the hearings with only one or two committee members present, but he was unable to say whether even that many could be spared from the fight over the tax measure. Some members of the committee urged again that the hearings be postponed until action is had on the revenue bill.

More than fifty witnesses were said to be in the city ready to begin testimony on the wool paragraph in the agricultural schedule, which will be the first to be taken up when the tariff hearings are resumed.

CURRAN AND THE JEWS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a racial attack made upon Henry H. Curran by Mayor Hylan's Commissioner of Markets, Samuel Buchler, was this assertion:

> The candidate for Mayoralty on the Coalition ticket himself has given rise to the belief that he is unfriendly to the Jews because of his record in public life.

This is a willful and wicked falsehood. Its purpose is manifest. It is deeply to be regretted that Mr. Buchler is attempting to inject this slander into our city campaign, with the obvious view of arousing false and undeserved resentment against Henry Curran. We, therefore, deem it our duty as citizens of New York City to state publicly that we regard Mr. Curran to be the truest type of an American and a man who is absolutely free of any religious prejudice or racial animosity, as exemplified by his private life and his years of excellent service as a public official. We feel that it is the duty as citizens of this city to resent the unwarranted and slanderous charge made by this or any other employe of the Hylan Administration.

As men engaged in business and in Jewish community work in this city, we deprecate the attack made by Mr. Buchler on Mr. Curran, and call on all American citizens regardless of their religion or party to show their emphatic disapproval of and their contempt for the men who falsely attempt to raise a religious or racial issue for vote-getting purposes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In this morning's American I again noticed the insinuations of the Rev. Dr. Samuel Buchler, Deputy Commissioner of City Markets. He again makes an attack against Henry H. Curran, to the effect that Mr. Curran is anti-Semitic.

I want to emphatically state that at no time have I known Major Curran to say a word against the Hebrew faith. I first met Major Curran early in 1917, and served under his command up to and after the armistice was signed. Another officer and myself were the only Jewish officers in the regiment—Captain Nathan J. Stern as Quartermaster and I as First Lieutenant Veterinary Surgeon. Had Major Curran so desired, he could at any time easily have found fault with us, because it was always up to the Quartermaster and the Veterinarian to get things to the front.

I recall that when the Jewish holidays came Major Curran saw to it that the Jewish boys were given full opportunity to go from duty. I found Major Curran interested in all enlisted men regardless of faith, creed or nationality, and inasmuch as the Jewish boys numbered only about a hundred and twenty in the entire regiment he took a special interest to see that all their wishes were fulfilled so far as possible.

Rabbi Buchler's statement that Major Curran would not give a position to a Jew is untrue, because I personally have been offered employment under Major Curran.

If any one is trying to stir up a similar racial hatred to that started by the Dearborn Independent, this paid Hylan servant is using the Hearst newspapers.

Harvey and Sims.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Recalling that Admiral Sims was brought back from London for saying that this country would join with England in case of another war, and reprimanded by Secretary Denby, I am wondering if the spectacle of bespectacled Ambassador Harvey saying this country would not join with England will cause Secretary Hughes to expedite him from London to Washington.

As for France—we all know what we would do for her. ELDRIDGE HENDERSON.

DR. WISE URGES PUBLICITY

In response to a request from Governor Miller and also their various ecclesiastical heads many clergymen yesterday devoted one of their sermons to a plea for the limitation of armaments. The Governor issued a proclamation a fortnight ago requesting the people of the Empire State to set aside Nov. 6 to "invoke the divine favor on the work of the disarmament conference." Several pastors criticised Ambassador Harvey's recent utterances.

Bishop William T. Manning preached yesterday morning in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine on "Disarmament." The great cathedral was so crowded many had to sit in the ambulatory. At the close of the service Bishop Manning read the disarmament prayer which he had written and sent to his clergy to be delivered at the special armistice services at noon next Friday.

"We are thinking today of the forthcoming Conference on the Limitation of Armament, and we all feel that this gathering must prove to be the most momentous in history, and that it holds the hope of the first real step toward brotherhood and peace and sanity among men," said the Bishop.

"During the World War men and women seemed to take a certain pleasure in telling us that Christianity had failed. At least those who stood outside of the Church told us so.

"But I say now, and with all the emphasis at my command, that this conference is the strongest evidence in the world that Christianity has not failed. The holding of this conference is the direct result of that command, 'Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel.'"

Bishop Manning said that all of "the Christian world" was united in the one thought and hope that out of this conference would come "that permanent peace for which humanity cries out."

Urges "Pitiless Publicity."

"Pitiless publicity" was urged by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise before the Free Synagogue congregation in Carnegie Hall as a way to swing the Conference on Limitation of Armament "to a full appreciation of the extent of the disarmament demand." He said that the people would not endure the rule of statesmen who would permit the world's only chance of permanent peace to go by the board and leave the road open for future wars of annihilation.

Rabbi Wise declared that the time to avert war with Japan was now, and not in 1925 or 1927. He predicted that America would go to war with Japan "unless the conference acts resolutely, wisely and magnanimously."

"The Washington conference," said the Rev. Dr. Karl Reiland, in St. George's Episcopal Church, East Sixteenth Street and Stuyvesant Square, "is the first time international diplomacy has turned from the god of war to the gospel of peace or from the policy of Mars to the principles of Christ. Christianity is fundamentally opposed to force and arms and definitely preaches the principles of peace. War is a reversion."

Criticizes Harvey.

The Rev. Dr. J. Lewis Hartsock, pastor of St. Andrew's Methodist Church, Seventy-sixth Street, expressed the fear that the Washington conference might fail in the hopes held for it. Dr. Hartsock discussed Ambassador Harvey.

"Mr. Harvey may be our Ambassador, but he is not our representative," said Dr. Hartsock. "If Mr. Harding permits him to go unrebuked there will remain in many minds the suspicion that his latest utterance may have been inspired by a desire on the part of the Administration to check the expectation aroused by the conference about to be held. It is credibly stated that the State Department has privately intimated to some organizations that it wished the word 'disarmament' would not be used.

Moral prerequisites demanded by disarmament are conspicuous by their absence, according to Rabbi Samuel Schulman of Tempel Beth-El, Fifth Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street. "The world is yearning for some redeeming, pacifying and inspiring word that shall be spoken as practical fact from the deliberations of the conference," he said. Rabbi Schulman's topic was "What Must the World Do Morally in Order to Disarm?"

Danger of Revolt.

"Humanity is groaning under the burden," the rabbi continued. "There is great danger of revolt of the masses who are victims of the burden. They are patient and heroic because the world is governed by so little wisdom. But there is a limit to their patience, especially in a day which professes to base government on their desires, their interests and their aspirations.

"We therefore look with hope and anxiety to the conference. It has power to do much for the revival of the world, or it may do much in increasing its disappointment. The American should meet others of whatever race in a spirit of conciliation and co-operation."

"Resolved, That armaments are a menace to the best interests of peoples if not governments; that justice and good-will, not force, constitute the security of nations; that the Conference for the Limitation of Armaments be urged to provide for immediate and absolute disarmament and thus lead the way to peace."

Speaking on "Peace With Honor," in the Madison Avenue Methodist Church, at Sixtieth Street, the Rev. Dr. Ralph W. Sockman said:

"The great American sin is said to be good-natured indifference. The many citizens feel that our Government will somehow muddle through. Too many of us are watching the Washington conference as if it were a game of international politics and not a life and death adjustment of humanity's future."

Requests Harvey to Be Silent.

"Some one should again request our Ambassador to Great Britain to keep silent for another period," said the Rev. Dr. Christian F. Reisner in the Chelsea Methodist Church, 178th Street and Fort Washington Avenue, in a sermon on "Help Disarmament."

"The other time he spoke he did so much damage that apparently some high authority closed his lips," continued Dr. Reisner. "How utterly foolish it was to inject himself into the subject of alliances on the verge of the Washington conference in such a way as to grieve if not insult France. His former statement and his later injudicious declaration would seem to show that he did not feel the horrible conditions which the recent war brought on the world. Only the tactless and the short-sighted will suggest anything that will now create friction."

The Rev. Dr. William P. Merrill in the Brick Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue, gave four reasons why he thought disarmament vital to the welfare of the world. These were:

"The peace of the world demands it.

"It offers a chance for a reassertion of the higher and more spiritual motives for living."

COLONEL LEHAR ESCAPES

Sixteen Soldiers Perish in Budapest Barracks, Fired, It Is Thought, by Royalist Sympathizers.

BUDAPEST, Nov. 6.—The National Assembly at a special session today passed the third and final reading of the bill dethroning former King Charles and ousting the Hapsburg dynasty.

Representatives of the Little Entente yesterday delivered a new note to the Hungarian Government declaring that the draft of the dethronement law is unsatisfactory, because it does not bar the return to power of the Hapsburgs on such grounds as free elections.

The note was not signed by the representatives of the Allied Powers, who approved the present bill before it was introduced in the National Assembly.

Admiral Horthy, the Regent, has issued a decree granting amnesty to all participants in the recent legitimist movement against the Government, except the leaders.

The insurgents in Burgenland are evacuating their position on the southern front of the area, according to advices reaching here. In the north Colonel Hejjas, commanding the insurgents, has requested an armistice.

Sixteen soldiers were burned to death today when the Radevsky barracks, where the loyal Government troops are stationed, was destroyed by fire. The fire is the climax of the operations of a gang of unknown incendiaries who, during the past fortnight, have set fire to three mills and four factories.

The police assert the belief that the setting fire to the barracks was vengeance for the activities of those opposed to former King Charles.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Nov. 6.—Colonel Anton Lehar, brother of Franz Lehar, the composer, and a trusted follower of former Emperor Charles, who is being prosecuted by the Hungarian Government for high treason in connection with Charles's recent misadventure, has escaped.

He swam across the Danube River near Komora to Czechoslovak territory, thence going to Prague, whence, after spending a day with his brother's friend, the famous actor Pallmann, succeeded in crossing the frontier near Tachan and finally reaching Munich.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Permission has been given by the Portuguese Government to the representatives of the Allies for former King Charles and his wife and children to reside in Madeira. The permission was granted conditionally on the former monarch being subject to the national laws.

LISBON, Nov. 6 (Associated Press).—The Portuguese Government has granted permission for the deportation of ex-Emperor Charles of Austria, the former Empress and their children, to Funchal, Madeira Island, where they will take up their residence.

Their home hereafter will probably be in the wing of an enormous building at Fun hal, which was intended as a sanatorium when it was constructed some years ago by a group of German financiers. The building never was finished because of a disagreement between the Portuguese Government and the Germans and the place has been without occupants.

ALEXANDER MOUNTS JUGOSLAVIA THRONE

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, Nov. 6 (Associated Press).—King Alexander, who has just returned here from Paris, assumed the throne of Jugoslavia today, taking the oath before Parliament.

No untoward incident marked the ceremonies. Extraordinary precautions had been taken to guard the King. The streets contiguous to the Parliament Building were cleared of people and no one was permitted to occupy balconies or roofs.

King Alexander, who wore a General's uniform, rode to the Parliament Building in an open automobile, accompanied by Premier Pachitch, and was cheered all along the route. He had an affectionate reception at the hands of the Deputies.

On mounting the rostrum he declared in firm voice:

"I swear to maintain the national unity and independence of the State and the integrity of its territory, and govern according to the Constitution and the laws. I will always have before me and in all my aspirations the good of my people."

The chamber presented a brilliant spectacle. All the members of the diplomatic corps, headed by H. Percival Dodge, the American Minister to the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, were present, together with Deputies from all sections of the kingdom in the picturesque costumes of the country.

SEAMEN AWARDED MEDALS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Life saving medals have been awarded to Chief Machinist Mate Theodore Baumann, of Pittsburgh, former fireman Edwin Ray Elting, of Macomb, Ill., and Cook Edgar Arthur Kneebone, of Judith Gap, Mont., on the recommendation of Secretary Denby.

Baumann rescued Seaman G. M. Lumbattis, of the destroyer Hogan, when a motor boat was swamped in San Francisco harbor last April. Elting and Kneebone while in the crew of submarine chaser 277 rescued Seaman Foulke when he fell overboard at sea.

Secretary Denby announced that Seaman Claud E. Peterson, of Schenectady, N. Y., and Painter Alfred Racine, of Portsmouth, N. H., had been officially commended for rescuing Engineman C. Lovel, who fell overboard from the gunboat Dolphin at Port Limon, Costa Rica last August.

OLD VIOLINS LOSE IN TEST WITH MODERN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—Before a very critical audience of music students and musicians a new trial has just been completed at the Paris Conservatoire of the comparative merits of old and new violins. Let it be said at once that the victory was to the moderns.

Six old Italian violins and six of modern make were selected for the trial, among the former being instruments by Amati, Stradivarius and Guadagnini. All twelve were numbered, and lots were cast for the order in which they should be played. Then in the darkened Conservatoire, before an audience of critics the player performed on each violin in succession. He, like the audience, was in the dark and could not know what violin he had in his hands; but he played on all twelve in succession the same piece of music.

Each member of the audience had a voting card on which to mark the number of the violin which seemed to him or her the finest in tone and general musical quality, and an easy victory went to the moderns.

The first selection was a violin of Mirecourt, the second a violin of Nantes. The famous Stradivarius was only third, with ninety votes fewer than the winner. Two Guadagnini came next, and the sixth selection was a violin of Montreal.

This was not the first time the test had been made, but it was the first time in Paris that modern violins had scored such a success over makes which were supposed to be unrivalled.

SOPHIE BRASLAU WELCOMED

Sophie Braslau's name is missed from Metropolitan Opera lists this season, and her admirers, eager to welcome the contralto in her home town, "said it with flowers" in profusion at her matinee song recital in Carnegie Hall yesterday. Miss Braslau might well have been overwhelmed by her reception. She sang, in her serious and resonant fashion, a rare "cantata" for one voice on the woes of "Dido," by old Benedetto Marcello, and preceded a Moussorgsky group with the so-called "vocalize" or song without words, subtitled, "The Cry of Russia," by Rachmaninoff.

Werner Josten and Hugo Wolf were two composers out of the hackneyed order, at least of recent years, and among present novelties were Max Pilzer's "Fairyland" and Jennie Prince Black's "My Birdeen." Mrs. Ethel Cave Cole played the accompaniments, Miss Braslau at one point adding for encore Beethoven's sonorous and hymnlike "Praaise of God in Nature," and making in Cesar Franck's "La Procession" perhaps the finest impression of the day.

FIX ATOMIC WEIGHTS IN HARVARD TESTS

TWO VARIETIES OF LEAD

Iron and Nickel Falling From the Sky the Same as Those on Earth.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 6.—The atomic weights of nearly forty of the ninety or more chemical elements out of which everything in the universe is built have been definitely determined by Harvard chemists in the course of investigations begun thirty-five years ago and extending up to the present time.

Attention was called to this prolonged research today by the announcement that largely on account of his work in this field Professor Theodore W. Richards, Nobel Prize winner in 1914 and Director of the Wolcott Gibbs Memorial Laboratory at Harvard, had been appointed a member of the international committee of scientists on elements, while Professor Gregory P. Baxter, formerly a pupil of Professor Richards and now an independent investigator at Harvard, had been chosen for the international committee on atomic weights.

The Harvard research is said to have thrown new light on the perplexing problem of the nature of the matter, while data obtained are being used daily by thousands of chemists throughout the world.

The atomic weights of the elements are described as the relative weights in which these elements combine with each other to form the countless substances of which the universe is constructed. These weights have usually been found to be amazingly constant.

Silver from all parts of the world and from many different ores has always the same atomic weight. Copper from Europe is identical in this respect with that mined under the bottom of Lake Superior.

Professor Baxter's work long since proved that iron and nickel which fall from the sky in meteorites, coming from the spaces far beyond the earth's orbit, have exactly the same atomic weights as iron and nickel from the earth, a fact cited as indicating in one respect, at least, the unity of the universe.

The most important single result of the Harvard study of atomic weights is said to be the discovery, first proved definitely some years ago by Professor Richards and still holding good through recent careful tests, that there exists at least two kinds of lead instead of one. It was found that lead from radium minerals, while it possesses properties exactly similar to those of ordinary lead, has a smaller atomic weight, 206.1, as against 207.2.

The lead from radium minerals is supposed to come from the decomposition of radium. Why its atomic weight is different from that of ordinary lead; whether ordinary lead may not itself prove to be a mixture of lighter lead with a heavier variety, perhaps due to the disintegration of the element thorium, and whether other elements, hitherto supposed to be final and indivisible, may not also prove to be mixtures and thus open up a whole series of new problems as to the composition of matter, are open questions.

Professor W. D. Harkins of Chicago has evidence that ordinary chlorine is a mixture, and F. W. Aston of Cambridge, England, by an entirely different method, indicates that many other elements are probably likewise composed of atoms of different weights.

Harvard chemists are working at present to try to find out more about these two kinds of lead, but they are hampered by the fact that, once mixed, the two kinds cannot by any ordinary chemical methods be separated.

Beginning with the study of the atomic weights of oxygen and hydrogen, in which he assisted the late Professor Josiah Cooke of Harvard, Professor Richards undertook a systematic investigation of atomic weights, being inspired by an intense philosophic desire to know more about the fundamental nature of matter.

In 1887 he publisred his figures for copper, showing that the accepted atomic weight of copper was much too low. He followed with barium and strontium. Since then he and Professor Baxter have determined the atomic weights of calcium, magnesium, zinc, nickel, cobalt, iron, meteoric iron and nickel, uranium, caesium, sodium, potassium, chlorine, nitrogen, silver, sulphur, carbon, lithium, lead, radioactive lead, aluminum, mercury, silicon, boron, lanthanum, arsenic, bromine, cadmium, chromium, iodine, manganese, neodymium, praseodymium and phosphorus.

SECOND SYMPHONY CONCERT

The Symphony Society held the second of its crowded Sunday afternoon concerts in Aeolian Hall yesterday, when Mr. Damrosch brought forward the fourth symphony of Brahms, music restful and refined, if also melodiously enriched like Corinthian capitals, concealing strength amid beauty. From the orchestra's newer productions of recent years there was also revived Ravel's "Tomb of Couperin," which in antique guise lays a bouquet of Elysian dances to the memory of friends fallen in the war. In place of another such, Roger-Ducasse's "Marche Française," there was played in closing the "Rumanian Rhapsody" of Enesco.

Mme. Sembrich was among those who heard with pleasure the soloist of the day, Hulda Lashanska, a young soprano who appears infrequently, but who recalls something of the art of Sembrich to concert-goers of earlier days. While Mme. Lashanska's singing lacks the agile ease of more constant use, the suggestion of distant bell-tones in the voice is matched by delicacy of style rare in modern interpreters. She, too, omitted a program number, the "Loreley" of Liszt, substituting an air from an opera, "Hamlet," by Franco Faccio, who with Boito fought in Garibaldi's army, and adding later Debussy's air from "L'Enfant Prodigue."

John Corigliano at Carnegie Hall.

John Corigliano had the distinguished help of a fellow countryman and artist, Gino Nastrucci, first violin at the Metropolitan Opera, as one of a string quintet that accompanied Mozart's concerto in E flat, with which the young player opened his violin recital at Carnegie Hall last evening, and in which, indeed, there was realized some of that intimacy of effect that marked Mozart's own simpler age. Mr. Corigliano is a Brooklyn youth of twenty, who has twice before appeared here. He gave, with Francis Moore at the piano, a concerto, op. 25, by Burleigh, and pieces by Burmester, Israel Joseph, Dirk Foch and Kreisler.

Russian 'Cellist Fills Town Hall.

Yasha Bunchuk, a Russian 'cellist, said to be a protégé of the composer, Glazounov, made his first appearance here last evening at the Town Hall, before one of the largest audiences that has filled that auditorium this season. It was thronged as if the Mishas and Sashas and Toshas of Russian fiddledom were playing, instead of a solo 'cello, the less favored instrumental "tenor" rather than "prima donna" of the string choir. The newcomer showed himself a player of powerful tone and good technical equipment in Saint Saëns's concerto and a 300-year-old sonata of Eccles. He was assisted in two Jewish song-melodies by their composer, B. Levenson, and by Gregory Ashman also in pieces by Rachmaninoff and Glazounov, Bruch's "Kol Nidrei" and his own arrangement of Zimbalist's "Orientale."

MUSIC

The Friends of Music.

The Friends of Music gave their first subscription concert yesterday afternoon in the Town Hall, which was found by a large audience to be a most admirable place for a concert employing a small orchestra. It was the first time that an orchestra had been heard in the new hall, and its acoustics are such as to give a remarkable mellowness, smoothness and cohesion to orchestral tone. It was an important factor in the enjoyment given by the concert, which was great.

The program was another: it included the overture to Schumann's opera of "Genoveva"; Bach's cantata, "Gott soll allein mein Herze haben"; Handel's concerto grosso No. 7, in C major and a group of five songs with orchestral accompaniment, settings of verses from the collection called "Des Knaben Wunderhorn," Gustav Mahler. Mr. Bodanzky conducted, and the soloist was Mme. Edna Gerdhardt.

Bach's cantata, one of the many that he wrote for particular Sundays in the church calendar as a part of his regular duties as organist and choirmaster, as he would be called today, of St. Thomas's Church in Leipsic, is for a solo voice with the accompaniment of the orchestra, organ and harpsichord, an invariable member of the orchestra of his time. It is set down as for alto voice; but the "tessitura" is such that only in a few measures did Mme. Gerhardt, who is not an alto, find the part uncomfortably low for her.

There is a long orchestral introduction, which Bach felt no embarrassment in "lifting" bodily from one of his harpsichord concertos, a course which he not infrequently pursued; nor did he feel any more in doing the same thing for the second of the two solo airs that follow, the orchestral part of which he took from the slow movement, a "Siciliano," of the same concerto.

The only part the chorus has in the cantata is the final chorale, with which Bach always ended these services. The two solo airs are preceeded and followed by recitatives.

There is no reason why the orchestral introduction, considering its origin, should show any uplifting religious significance; nor does it show more than the nobility and deep musical beauty that are stamped upon it by Bach's genius. The airs have a tender expressiveness, more than some of Bach's airs for solo voice which he treats in a way that offers great difficulty to the singer. Mme. Gerhardt delivered them and the recitatives in a beautifully artistic and expressive manner, with a clear diction and (except for one slight slip in an entrance) without signs of distress in managing the difficult phrasing. And the final chorale, harmonized with the supreme loveliness of the master magic, was sung by the chorus with much beauty and homogeneity of tone—with a quality, indeed, that prompted the wish to hear it in some of the cantatas wherein Bach made more use of the chorus.

Mme. Gerhardt also sang with much variety of expression and mood the settings by Mahler. With all the persuasiveness and ingenuity, both in the melodic time and the elaborate orchestral effects with which he has sought to follow the simplicity and naiveté of the verses, there is a haunting feeling that his pursuit of the waif is at times somewhat labored, and suggestive rather of sophistication.

There is a superb vigor in Handel's concerto grasso, that was played with a weight and sonority that hardly seemed possible from the limited orchestral forces; and the "concertino" for two violins and 'cello was excellently represented by the first players of those instruments, not named on the program.

The chorus was trained by Stephen Townsend; the harpsichord—a modified piano representing the tone of the obsolete instrument—was played by Paul Eisler; the organ, a portable instrument that not unsuccessfully took the place of what in the Town Hall is represented only by gilded wooden cylinders, by Wilfrid Pelletier.

ECONOMISTS OPPOSE TARIFF VALUATION

In view of the prevalence of biased opinion on the subject of the American valuation plan of the Fordney Tariff bill, the New York University Bureau of Business Research sent a questionnaire to 300 economists and all but one of the seventy-one who replied condemned the plan, it was announced yesterday.

The economists believe that the plan is based on an unsound conception of foreign trade and that the United States, now being a creditor nation, would be seriously injured if it becomes law.

The questions, it was said, were carefully framed to avoid any suggestion of bias. The replies represent twenty-three States, eight of which are in the Middle West, with Ohio, Wisconsin and Nebraska furnishing the largest quotas. Virtually all were of the opinion that the American valuation plan would decrease our foreign trade and increase the difficulty of administering the tariff.

"I have just returned from a three months' tour of Central and Eastern Europe," wrote Professor J. H. Rogers of Cornell University. "While there I came in touch with a great many of the economists, and almost without exception they commented upon this clause in our tariff bill. Especially in Germany, where the Government is making such strenuous efforts to meet the reparation payments, they cannot understand why we should so hamper them, alike in selling their products and in buying our raw materials."

The statement in part follows:

"A common word among the replies is 'subterfuge.' The writers point out that politicians representing special interests are trying to conceal a large increase in tariff duties by raising the basis to which the rate is applied rather than the rate itself. A professor of the University of Akron, Ohio, writes: 'A precipitate and undisguised increase in tariff rates would be tremendously unpopular with the public at this time; but the same gullible public, doubtless, will serenely accept this measure with the belief that it is merely a revision of the method of administration. The average person blithely accepts a 40 or 50 per cent rate at its face value, with no thought of the basis of application.'

"Another notable characteristic is the frequent appearance of such words as 'radical,' 'revolutionary' and 'reactionary.' Professor E. L. Bogart of Illinois says: 'The plan is a reactionary move and entirely loses sight of the fact that the United States is a creditor nation.' Edwin F. Gay remarks that 'The evils which the American valuation method is ostensibly designed to correct are temporary. It seems hardly expedient to bring on a revolutionary change in the customs system to meet a transient condition.'"

ASK WOODFILL PROMOTION.

Veterans Want Hero Honored Before Armistice Day.

Members of the New York Camp of the Society of the Fifth Division have sent to the Secretary of War, Senator Wadsworth, Congressman Kahn and Congressman Ernst telegrams asking that immediate action be taken to promote Sergeant Samuel Woodfill, the former Sixtieth Infantry captain whom General Pershing selected as the first hero of the war, to his former rank. The camp asks that the action be taken before the Armistice Day ceremonies, in which Sergeant Woodfill will represent the American infantry.

"Plans are being made to turn the campfire rally and boxing show of the local Fifth Division Society, to be held Armistice night in Grupp's Gymnasium, 252 West 116th Street, into an indignation meeting, in case Woodfill does not get his captain's bars back before that date," says a statement from the camp.

The telegram said America would be "parading her injustice and ingratitude before the eyes of the assembled Allies" unless Sergeant Woodfill were reinstated in his former grade.

BOSTON, Nov. 6.—The Boston & Maine system federation of the Brotherhoods of Locomotive Engineers and of Firemen and Engine Men hereafter will work as a unit on all subjects relating to wages and working conditions, according to a new agreement announced tonight by the publicity committees of the two bodies.

The announcement followed a joint meeting of the two brotherhoods, at which the relations now existing between the country's railroad executives and employes were outlined by brotherhood chieftains who attended recent union conferences at Chicago.

The meeting was said to be one of a series on all the railroad systems of the country, held to gather the sectional opinions of engineers and firemen and engine men as to what joint action might be reported at a joint brotherhood grand lodge conference at Chicago on Nov. 14.

FREED, BACK FOR OPERATION

Man Released From Sing Sing to Have Tumor Taken From Brain.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, Nov. 6.—Sing Sing physicians announced today that they were waiting for the condition of John Amishosky, a voluntary prisoner, "to get worse" so a specialist could remove a tumor from his brain. It is said to be seldom that doctors wait for a patient to get worse before operating, but conditions in Amishosky's case make delay necessary.

"We have got to wait for the tumor to grow and get nearer the surface, so it will be easier to operate," Dr. Amos O. Squires, chief prison physician, said. Dr. King, a specialist on the staff of Bellevue Hospital in Manhattan, will operate. Dr. Squire said Amishosky would not be ready for the operation for several more days.

Amishosky, who is 30 years old, had been sent to prison on Aug. 5, 1919, for grand larceny, in Brooklyn. He was released recently, but returned voluntarily five weeks ago to receive further treatment in the prison hospital.

Shipping the Millionth New Improved Gillette
Patented January 13th, 1920

When men put themselves on record a million strong in seven months—

For a shaving instrument that cannot fully be described in print—

That cannot be adequately demonstrated except on one's own personal face—

What is it then that makes people so spontaneously partisan toward the New Improved Gillette?

Briefly this—

Sales figures show that 57,263 men bought the New Improved Gillette the first day, on faith in the Gillette word and record of achievement.

Within 24 hours, these men had demonstrated to themselves beyond question the 75% improvement in shaving quality brought by the New Improved Gillette.

The news spread from man to man.

Thousands more bought—tried—and told about the New Improved Gillette.

500,000 produced by August 1st—and still orders so outran production that a night shift became necessary in the Gillette Factories.

But magnitude does not say everything.

No one can forget the peculiar tribute expressed in the way so many loyal followers of the old-type Gillette affectionately laid it aside for the New.

Because they believed Gillette when Gillette said that the New Improved instrument is better.

Important about the New Improved Gillette—A Word about the Blades

Gillette deems it proper to ask the public to use Gillette Blades only in genuine Gillette Razors.

FOCH MADE MEMBER OF K. OF C. ORDER

ON HIS WAY TO DETROIT

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Marshal Foch left here late tonight for Detroit, after two days of banqueting, parading, speechmaking and other public functions the like of which Chicago has accorded to no other visitor. Throughout the day, in which every hour was devoted to an expression of tribute to the French Generalissimo, the reception accorded him was even more enthusiastic, more triumphant than that which marked the day of his arrival as the guest of the city.

After the receipt of an honorary degree from Loyola University and attending mass at Holy Name Cathedral, Marshal Foch was virtually kidnapped from his American Legion hosts by the Knights of Columbus, who made him an honorary member of their order, paraded 25,000 strong before him, and gave a dinner in his honor before he boarded his train.

Late in the afternoon Marshal Foch paid his first visit in this country to a hospital where wounded men he led in France are patients. This was the recently opened Edward Hines Jr. Memorial Hospital, erected at Maywood by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hines in memory of their son, killed in action in France. The Marshal was accompanied by Colonel Hanford MacNider, National Commander of the American Legion, and a guard of honor of former members of the Second Division, of which Colonel MacNider was Adjutant, wearing the fourragere bestowed on their unit by the French Government, met the Marshal at the entrance to the hospital.

Comforts Wounded Soldiers.

Marshal Foch unveiled a portrait of young Hines, and when the curtain fell away Margaret Anglin recited in French a poem written by Jules Bois in honor of the occasion. With Colonel MacNider, Marshal Foch then paid a visit to the wards. He walked between the beds where the helpless veterans were lying, patted them on the head or shook their hands, and spoke a few words in comfort in Frenc, translated by an interpreter.

As he entered one ward the patients were propped up in bed with their right arms, some of them bandaged, at salute, and tears came to Marshal Foch's eyes.

"Tell them," he said to his interpreter, "that I am glad to be with them and that I remember the days when I was with them on the other side. When I called upon them for something they did it, and if there is anything I can do for them now, tell them that I shall do it."

The Marshal asked today that he might attend mass at Holy Name Cathedral. During the mass he demonstrated that he was unusually long-sighted by reading his prayer book while holding it at least three feet from his eyes. He dropped his cane once, during the Archbishop's pontifical blessing and picked it up and placed it under his seat blushing like a schoolboy.

The Rev. Harris Darche, former overseas chaplain with the Knights of Columbus, delivered the sermon, speaking first in English and then in French.

"Illustrious Marshal," he said in part, "you are welcome near this holy of holies, for often in such churches have you sought through silence and prayer the inspiration that would decide the fate of battles.

"You are deserving of the honors conferred upon you, for you are as humble as you are great. Did you not say that the prayer of the children more than your conquering strategies brought victory to the allied cause? We look upon you as a brother and proclaim to unbelievers that faith still works miracles."

So great was the crowd outside the Cathedral that police reserves were called out to keep the Marshal's admirers in check. Hundreds made vain efforts to reach his side when he left the Cathedral.

Leads Big Parade.

Long before noon Michigan Boulevard was jammed by men and women seeking vantage places for the Knights of Columbus parade, which was headed by Marshal Foch, bearing the diamond-studded marshal's baton presented to him a year ago at Metz by K. of C. pilgrims. An hour before the head of the column was scheduled to appear the reviewing stand opposite Grant Park was packed.

Marshal Foch was flanked on one side by Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty and on the other by Major Generals George Bell Jr. and Milton C. Foreman and Mayor Thompson. Frequently he smiled and waved aloft his jeweled baton. Police, firemen, regulars from Fort Sheridan and sailors and marines from the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, Knights of Columbus councils from Illinois, Indiana and Iowa and members of French and Polish societies took part in the march down the boulevard.

Marshal Foch was initiated as a member of the Knights of Columbus just before a dinner given by that order in his honor at the Congress Hotel at which John McCormack sang the American and French national anthems. At the request of Marshal Foch he also sang "Le Maison Grise," the favorite song of Madame Foch, to whom in Paris he sent a cablegram just before dinner.

Sends Greeting to Michigan.

On reaching his train Marshal Foch dictated the following telegram to be sent to Detroit newspapers:

On Board Pennsylvania Special Train, en route to Detroit.—Please convey to the officials of Michigan and the City of Detroit the great pleasure it will give me to be their guest on Monday.

The name of Detroit has been heralded throughout the civilized world because of its immense automobile industries. France, too, takes pride in the workmanship and quality of her automobiles, and it is with particular interest that I shall visit the prosperous and energetic City of Detroit.

The people of Michigan showed rare patriotism and a spirit of self-sacrifice during the war—that spirit which made brothers of the Allies. I greet them as our brothers and sisters who put their shoulders to the wheel of necessity and brought the vehicle of right to the goal of victory. FOCH.

Alton T. Roberts, Chairman of the American Legion National Reception Committee, is being besieged with letters and telegrams from all parts of the country congratulating him on the manner in which the legion is handling the entertainment of Marshal Foch, General Diaz, Lord Beatty and General Jacques.

Regrets He Cannot Go Everywhere.

Mr. Roberts issued tonight the following statement:

"The one regret of Marshal Foch and the other distinguished guests is that they cannot visit every place to which they have been invited. They are delighted with the reception they are receiving, and every loayal American is more than delighted to have these war heroes in this country.

"Marshal Foch is heartily pleased with the receptions, both as to size and enthusiasm, for the French people, whom he represents. Asked recently as to whether the various programs fatigued him, he replied that, to the contrary, their enthusiasm seemed to give him added strength.

"The American Legion Reception Committee, however, is seeing to it that Marshal Foch shall not be overexerted, but shall return to France as though he had been here on a vacation. His itinerary remains, as it has always been announced, up to Nov. 20 under the auspices of the American Legion. A further announcement will be made later."

Michigan Eager to Welcome Foch.

DETROIT, Nov. 6.—Michigan is tonight eagerly awaiting the coming of Marshal Foch, who will be the guest of the State tomorrow at Camp Custer, near Battle Creek, at Ann Arbor and at Detroit, where a series of ceremonies are planned in his honor. He is due to reach Camp Custer, training ground of the Eighty-fifth Division, from Chicago early tomorrow morning. At 8 o'clock he is to dedicate the new Roosevelt Memorial Hospital, formerly the camp's community house, which in future will be used in treatment of Michigan former service men suffering from tuberculosis. He will be escorted by Governor Alex J. Groesbeck, Members of the State Supreme Court and other State officials.

An hour after the dedication the Marshal will leave for Ann Arbor, where he is to give a five-minute address to University of Michigan students from a platform near the railroad station.

When he reaches this city he will be greeted by thousands of former soldiers, war nurses and Red Cross workers in uniform. Half a hundred veterans of the French service will take part in brief ceremonies at the railroad station.

The parade to follow, with the Marshal and National American Legion Officers in line, will pass through the chief streets of Detroit to the City Hall, where Mayor James Couzens will welcome the Allied leader to the city.

Following the parade the visitor will make a tour of Detroit automobile plants. In the evening he will be the guest of honor at a dinner given by Detroit citizens. After the dinner he will be the chief speaker at a mass meeting here.

The Marshal plans to leave Detroit late tomorrow night or early Tuesday for Cleveland.

TO GIVE FOCH GOLD MEDAL.

Massachusetts and 104th Veterans' Association Will Honor Marshal.

BOSTON, Nov. 6.—The presentation by the State of a gold medal to Marshal Foch and a gift by the 104th Veterans' Association of a miniature replica of the monumental tablet erected by them at Westfield, commemorating the decoration of the regiment's colors with the Croix de Guerre, will feature the visit of the allied Generalissimo to this city on Nov. 14.

The association will present its gift from a box car drawn up in front of the V. D. (Yankee Division) Club on Huntington Avenue. On the car will be inscribed "40 Hommes, 8 Chevaux," and other markings familiar to overseas veterans. The tablet and replica were designed by E. Bruce Wilder from a photograph of the Decoration of the Colors at St. Bouc, France, showing Generals Pershing and Edwards with French staff officers saluting the regimental flags.

Governor Cox will present the State medal to Marshal Foch at his reception in the Hall of Flags at the State House. The Marshal will visit Harvard University during the day to receive an honorary degree.

WILSON'S VICTORY AT BALTIMORE

WOODROW WILSON AS I KNOW HIM

By JOSEPH P. TUMULTY

[Ninth Instalment]

Yesterday's instalment told the story of factional manoeuvres within the Democratic Party prior to the convention which nominated Wilson for the Presidency in 1912.

CHAPTER XVI.

THE BALTIMORE CONVENTION.

At Sea Girt we kept in close touch with our friends at Baltimore, so that after each ballot the New Jersey candidate was apprised of the result. During the trying days and nights of the convention the only eager and anxious ones in the family group, besides myself, were Mrs. Wilson and the Wilson girls. The candidate himself, indeed, seemed to take only perfunctory interest in what was happening at Baltimore. He never allowed a single ballot or the changes those ballots reflected to ruffle or disturb him. Never before was the equable disposition of the man better manifested than during these trying days. Only once did he show evidences of irritation. It was upon the receipt of word from Baltimore, carried through the daily press, that his manager, Mr. McCombs, was indulging in patronage deals to secure blocks of delegates. Upon considering this news he immediately issued a public statement saying that no one was authorized to make any offer of a Cabinet post for him and that those who had done so were acting without authority from him. This caused a flurry in the ranks of our friends in Baltimore, and the statement was the subject of heated discussion between the Governor and Mr. McCombs over the telephone. Of course, I did not hear what was said at the other end of the wire, but I remember that the Governor said, "I am sorry, McCombs, but my statement must stand as I have issued it. There must be no conditions whatever attached to the nomination." And there the conversation ended. While this colloquy took place I was seated just outside of the telephone booth. When the Governor came out he told me of the talk he had had with McCombs, and that their principal discussion was the attempt by McCombs and his friends at Baltimore to exact from him a promise that in case of his nomination William Jennings Bryan should not be named for the post of Secretary of State; that a great deal in the way of delegates' votes from the Eastern States depended upon his giving this promise. The Governor then said to me, "I will not bargain for this office. It would be foolish for me at this time to decide upon a Cabinet officer, and it would be outrageous to eliminate anybody from consideration now, particularly Mr. Bryan, who has rendered such fine service to the party in all seasons."

Crisis in the Balloting.

The candidacy of the New Jersey Governor gained with each ballot—only slightly, however—but he was the only candidate who showed an increased vote at each stage of the convention proceedings. The critical period was reached on Thursday night. In the early afternoon we had received intimations from Baltimore that on that night the New York delegation would throw its support to Champ Clark and our friends at Baltimore were afraid that if this purpose was carried out, it would result in a stampede to Clark. We discussed the possibilities of the situation that night after dinner, but up to 10 o'clock, when the Governor retired for the night, New York was still voting for Harmon. I left the Sea Girt cottage and went out to the newspaper men's tent to await word from Baltimore. The telegrapher in charge of The Associated Press wire was a devoted friend and admirer of the New Jersey candidate. There was no one in the tent but the telegrapher and myself. Everything was quiet. Suddenly the telegraph instrument began to register. The operator looked up from the instrument and I could tell from his expression that something big was coming. He took his pad and quickly began to record the message. In a tone of voice that indicated its seriousness, he read to me the following message: "New York casts its seventy-six votes for Champ Clark. Great demonstration on." And then the instrument stopped recording. It looked as if the "jig was up." Frankly, I almost collapsed at the news. I had been up for many nights and had had only a few hours' sleep. I left the tent, almost in despair, about 11 o'clock, and returned to the Sea Girt cottage, preparatory to going to my home at Avon, New Jersey. As I was leaving the cottage the Governor appeared at one of the upper windows, clad in his pajamas and, looking at me in the most serious way, said: "Tumulty, is there any news from Baltimore?" I replied: "Nothing new, Governor." When we were breakfasting together the next morning, he laughingly said to me: "You thought you could fool me last night when I asked if there was any word from Baltimore; but I could tell from the serious expression on your face that something had gone wrong." This was about the first evidence of real interest he had shown in the Baltimore proceedings.

As will be recalled, the thing that prevented Champ Clark from gathering the full benefit which would have come to him from the casting of the New York vote in his favor was a question by "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, a delegate from Oklahoma. He said: "Is this convention going to surrender its leadership to the Tammany Tiger?" This stemmed the tide toward Mr. Clark and changed the whole face of the convention.

In a Deadlock.

It was evident that on Friday night the deadlock stage of the convention had been finally reached. The Wilson vote had risen to 354 and there remained without perceptible change. It began to look as if the candidacy of the New Jersey Governor had reached its full strength. The frantic efforts of the Wilson men to win additional votes were unavailing. Indeed, Wilson's case appeared to be hopeless. On Saturday morning, McCombs telephoned Sea Girt and asked for the Governor. The Governor took up the telephone and for a long time listened intently to what was being said at the other end. I afterward learned that McCombs had conveyed word to the Governor that his case was hopeless and that it was useless to continue the fight, and asked for instructions. Whereupon, the following conversation took place in my presence: "So, McCombs, you feel it is hopeless to make further endeavors?" When McCombs asked the Governor if he would instruct his friends to support Mr. Underwood, Mr. Wilson said: "No, that would not be fair. I ought not to try to influence my friends in behalf of another candidate. They have been mighty loyal and kind to me. Please say to them how greatly I appreciate their generous support and that they are now free to support any candidate they choose."

In the room at the time of this conversation between McCombs and the New Jersey Governor sat Mrs. Wilson and myself. When the Governor said to McCombs, "So you think it is hopeless?" great tears stood in the eyes of Mrs. Wilson, and as the Governor put down the telephone she walked over to him and in the most tender way put her arms around his neck, saying "My dear Woodrow, I am sorry, indeed, that you have failed." Looking at her, with a smile that carried no evidence of the disappointment or chagrin he felt at the news he had just received, he said: "My dear, of course I am disappointed, but we must not complain. We must be sportsmen. After all, it is God's will, and I feel that a great load has been lifted from my shoulders." With a smile he remarked that this failure would make it possible for them, when his term as Governor of New Jersey was completed, to go for a vacation to the English lake country—a region loved by them both, where they had previously spent happy Summers. Turning to me, he asked for a pencil and pad and informed me that he would prepare a message of congratulation to Champ Clark, saying as he left the room, "Champ Clark will be nominated and I will give you the message in a few minutes."

I afterward learned that McCombs was about to release the delegates when Roger Sullivan, who had been informed of McCombs's message to the New Jersey Governor, rushed over to McCombs and said to him, "Damn you, don't you do that. Sit steady in the boat."

This is the true story of the occurrence so strangely distorted by Mr. McCombs in the book he left for publication after his death, wherein he would make it appear that Governor Wilson had got in a panic and tried to withdraw from the race; whereas the panic was all in the troubled breast of Mr. McCombs, a physically frail, morally timid person, constitutionally unfit for the task of conducting such a fight as was being waged in Baltimore. More sturdy friends of Governor Wilson at the convention were busy trying to brace up the halting manager and persuade him to continue the fight, even against the desperate odds that faced them. But for these stronger natures, among whom were old Roger Sullivan of Illinois and W. G. McAdoo, the battle would have been lost.

McCOMBS'S FAMOUS TELEGRAM

Form 2280 B.

RECEIVED AT Baltimore June 21/1912

Hon Woodrow Wilson Sea Girt

I quite agree with you that the temporary Chairman of the Convention should voice the sentiments of the Democracy of the nation which I am convinced is distinctly progressive, however before receiving your telegram, I had given the following statement for publication in the Baltimore Evening Sun— My friends in Baltimore who are on the peoples cause in everything that effects the organization of the convention they are certain not to forget their standards as they have already shown it is not necessary that I should remind them of these standards from New Jersey and I have neither the right nor the desire to direct the organization of a convention of which I am not even a member

McCombs

The message of congratulation to Champ Clark was prepared and ready to be put on the wire for transmission to him when the Baltimore Convention assembled again on Saturday, June 29, 1912. I had argued with the Governor that despite what McCombs had said to him over the phone on the previous day, I felt that there was still a great deal of latent strength in the Wilson forces in the convention, which was ready to jump into action as soon as it appeared that Champ Clark's case was hopeless. The first ballot on Saturday gave weight to my view, for upon that ballot Wilson gained fifteen or twenty votes, which injected new hope into our forces in the convention. From that time on Wilson steadily moved forward and then came Bryan's resolutions opposing any candidates who received the support of the "privilege hunting" class, and attempting the expulsion of a certain Eastern group from the convention. Pandemonium reigned in the convention hall, but the vote upon the resolutions themselves showed the temper of the delegates. This made the Clark nomination hopeless. Bryan's rôle as an exponent of outraged public opinion and as a master of great conventions was superbly played. When he finally threw his tremendous influence to Wilson the struggle was over. Indiana jumped to Wilson; then Illinois, and the fight was won. Wilson received the necessary two-thirds vote and was proclaimed the candidate.

The progressive element of the Democratic Party had triumphed after a long, stubborn fight by what at first was a minority in the convention for enlightened progressivism, with Woodrow Wilson as the standard bearer. To those like myself far away from the convention there was the sense of a great issue at stake at Baltimore. One old gentleman who visited Sea Girt after the convention compared the stand of the liberals in the convention to the handful at Thermopylae; others compared their heroic determination to the struggle of Garibaldi and his troops. To the outside world it was plain that a great battle for the right was being waged at Baltimore, under the inspiration of a new leadership. At times it appeared that the raw Wilson recruits would have to surrender, that they could not withstand the smashing blows delivered by the trained army which the conservatives had mobilized. But they stood firm, for there was, in the ranks of the liberal group in the Baltimore Convention an unconquerable spirit, akin to that of the Crusaders, and a leadership of ardent men who were convinced that they were fighting not merely for a man but for the principle which this man symbolized. Among these were men like W. G. McAdoo of New York, A. Mitchell Palmer, Vance McCormick and Joseph Guffey of Pennsylvania, Senator "Billy" Hughes of New Jersey, and Angus McLean of North Carolina.

Although the Wilson forces were largely made up of "new" men, some of whom had never before been actively interested in politics, comparatively young men like McAdoo, Palmer, McCormick and McLean, and old men like Judge Wescott of New Jersey, yet they were drawn to the light that had dawned in New Jersey and were eager and anxious to have that light of inspired leadership given to the nation. Judge Wescott of Camden, N. J., fired the convention with his eloquence and brought showers of applause when he quoted at length from the speech Mr. Wilson had made when President of Princeton, and for which he was hissed, lampooned and derided by the Princeton opposition:

> Men are known by what they say and do. Men are known by those who hate them and those who oppose them. Many years ago the great Executive of New Jersey said, "No man is great who thinks himself so, and no man is good who does not strive to secure the happiness and comfort of others." This is the secret of his life. This is, in the last analysis, the explanation of his power. Later, in his memorable effort to retain high scholarship and simple democracy in Princeton University, he declared: "The great voice of America does not come from seats of learning. It comes in a murmur from the hills and woods, and the farms and factories and the mills, rolling on and gaining volume until it comes to us from the homes of common men. Do these murmurs echo in the corridors of our universities? I have not heard them." A clarion call to the spirit that now moves America. Still later he shouted: "I will not cry peace so long as social injustice and political wrong exist in the State of New Jersey." Here is the very soul of the silent revolution now solidifying sentiment and purpose in our common country.

Men, overwhelmed with the emotion of the great hour and the vindication of the bold liberal, Woodrow Wilson, bowed their heads and sobbed aloud. The "amateurs" of that convention had met the onslaughts of the "Old Guard" and had won, and thus was brought about, through their efforts, their courage, and their devotion, the dawn of a new day in the politics of the nation.

The next instalment of Mr. Tumulty's narrative, tomorrow, finds Woodrow Wilson in the White House. The first great question facing his administration is the Mexican problem, which reaches a climax as the German steamship Ypiranga approaches Vera Cruz with ammunition and guns for Huerta.

AFTER WILSON ENTERED THE WHITE HOUSE.

Woodrow Wilson's early problems as President of the United States are dealt with in tomorrow's instalment of Mr. Tumulty's story.

The Mexican crisis was the outstanding obstacle for the new Administration. The former secretary tells how it developed, and explains Wilson's adoption of the policy of "watchful waiting." A climax was reached when the German steamship Ypiranga approaches Vera Cruz with a cargo of munitions for Huerta, whom Wilson had refused to recognize as President of Mexico.

Then comes the story of the Vera Cruz incident—in Wednesday's instalment.

RED ANNIVERSARY TO BE TAME AFFAIR

Lenin Is Opposed to Spectacular Demonstrations Either in Russia or Abroad.

RIGA, Nov. 6 (Associated Press).—Modest celebrations of the fourth anniversary of the coup d'état of Nikolai Lenin, which took place Nov. 7, 1917, began in Petrograd yesterday, according to the Rosta News Agency, and will continue today and tomorrow throughout Russia.

Spectacular demonstrations, either in Russia or among communists abroad, will be distasteful to the Moscow Government, it is declared in Soviet sources here. Instead of vast manifestations the waving of red flags and an outflow of world revolution propaganda, which has characterized previous anniversaries, the Moscow Government is declared to be endeavoring to demonstrate by means of notes to foreign powers, such as that recently sent out by M. Tchitcherin, the Foreign Minister, concerning the recognition by Russia of her debts and by the partial reopening of Russia to traders and newspaper correspondents, that the revolution is over and a new economic policy is well under way.

This campaign, falling on the eve of the Washington conference, is admitted by the Moscow press as designed to influence the readmission of Russia to the official councils of the great nations.

The celebrations in Petrograd began with meetings throughout the city, designed, according to the program, to emphasize the need of a new economic policy, rather than to glorify the past. According to the program there was to be a solemn session of the newly elected Petrograd Soviet today, while tomorrow there will be a memorial meeting on the field of Mars for prominent persons who were assassinated during what the Bolsheviki term the "white terror" preceding their own "red terror."

The final count in the elections for members of the Petrograd Soviet shows the following alignment: Total, 1,430 members; Non-Partisans, 267; Communists, 1,100; Mensheviki, 21; Social Revolutionary, 1.

In Bolshevist circles in Riga it is claimed that some foreign representatives in border States are advising their Governments that the Lenin régime, regardless of the economic ruin and devastation, seems firmly established, and that it is seeking by the temporary abandonment of most of the principles of communism and acknowledging old debts to rehabilitate itself. Though some of the representatives are declared to be recommending trade agreements with Russia, it is understood that none has expressed favor of full recognition and all prefer to wait before approving credits.

MOSCOW, Nov. 6.—On the occasion of the fourth anniversary of the Soviet, general amnesty has been declared for all private soldiers abroad who fought against the Soviet Government.

The ninth session of the Congress of All-Russian Soviets has been called for Dec. 20. Changes resulting from the new economic policy and foreign relations will have a prominent place on the agenda.

Japan, through the insistence of the Far Eastern Republic, has consented to Soviet participation in the negotiations at Dairen respecting Siberian questions, M. Tchitcherin, Bolshevist Foreign Minister, announced today in reviewing the progress of the Soviet Government's diplomatic negotiations in the Near and Far East. M. Markhlevsky, a prominent leader of the Polish Communist Party, has been designated to represent the Moscow Government and has left for Dairen, he said.

On Oct. 26, the Foreign Minister announced negotiations had been opened in Moscow between the Soviet Government and a representative of the new Mongolian Government for the establishment of formal diplomatic relations with the Urga Revolutionary Government, which co-operates with the Far Eastern Republic.

General Fraounze, commander of the Ukrainian Red Army, has been designated by the Ukrainian Government to negotiate with Mustapha Kemal Pasha, and is now on his wa yto Angora with the object of establishing relations along the lines followed by the Moscow Government in its treaty of March 16.

Treaties also have been completed this year, M. Chitcherin announced, with Persia, Afghanistan, Bokhara and Khiva.

The Russo-Turkish treaty signed at Moscow on March 16 provided, among other things, for the evacuation of Batum by the Turkish, giving the port to Georgia, and recognition of the autonomy of Georgia; division of Armenia among Georgia, Azerbaijan and Turkey, and recognition by the Russians of Constantinople as the capital of Turkey.

Corn Cheaper Fuel Than Coal at 32 Cents, Says Wallace.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Corn at 32 cents a bushel is equal in value to coal at $16 a ton, Secretary Wallace said today, commenting on reports that some farmers were burning corn for fuel. At 20 cents a bushel, he said, corn would be equivalent to fuel coal at $10 a ton.

"In districts where corn is very cheap now, the coal is of a rather poor grade and is selling at high prices," he continued. "Under such conditions it will pay both farmers and people in country towns to use corn instead of coal. Undoubtedly large quantities of corn will be burned on Western farms this Winter unless the prices should materially advance."

Mr. Wallace said the use of surplus grain as fuel in times of low markets was not an uncommon occurrence in other cereal raising countries, corn having been burned in Argentina under such conditions "not only on the farms but in power plants."

DREAR PETROGRAD NOW A CITY OF RUST

BUT RED ARMY DRILLS ON Food Shops Reopened Under New Free Trade Regine Have Little to Sell.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 4, (Associated Press).—Russia's former capital today resembles a Nevada mining town after the mines had become exhausted. It does not revive under free trade, as Moscow is doing.

The Soviet Government has estimated Petrograd's population at only 600,000, but this figure seems large to observers who knew Petrograd in the pre-war days, when it had within it more than 1,500,000 persons.

The visitor, looking over the city from the Tower of St. Isaac's Cathedral, sees only a city of rust. Virtually all the Russian roofs are of tin and were painted green or brown, but there has been no painting done for years, and consequently the extremes of weather have worn away the roofs, a large percentage of which no longer are waterproof. Many buildings have been abandoned.

The Red Army is drilling daily in the square between St. Isaac's Cathedral and the Mariensky Palace, where there now is so little traffic that part of it is used as a storage place for peat, which soldiers guard day and night to keep fuel hunters from stealing it.

The German Embassy, which the Russians wrecked at the beginning of the war, stands boarded up and abandoned. The Astoria Hotel, and most of the other large buildings about the square, are being used by the Soviet.

The Hotel d'Angleterre has been rechristened the "International." It is a Government guest house and the sole place in Petrograd which really is warm and comfortable. The old hotel staff has been retained, and is keeping the building clean and supplying the rooms with fresh linen. The service is excellent. The hotel is marvellously quiet and a comfortable oasis in the general Bolshevist disorganization in Russia, dominated by untrained Red Army men. Foreigners are required to pay their hotel bills in pounds or at the dollar rate. The charge is about one pound daily.

The Nevsky Prospect is more deserted and shabbier than it was three years ago. There are more holes in the pavements and the buildings are scaling off. The canals are utterly devoid of the wood barges which ordinarily supply the Winter's fuel.

Many food shops have opened, but they have little to sell except bread, butter and vegetables. The correspondent made inquiries at twenty shops before he found real tea and coffee. This sold for 110,000 rubles per Russian pound of twelve ounces. The exchange rate on the dollar is about 100,000 rubles. Sugar is scarce and sells for 46,000 rubles for twelve ounces. All the shopkeepers said they had hopes that they would receive tea, coffee and sugar within a few weeks. They did not seem to know, however, whence it would come.

There are no big street markets in Petrograd, such as those in Moscow. The people of the city apparently without money or goods to exchange for food, and are much perturbed over the general discontinuance by the Government of the bread allowance and the abandonment of the communal kitchens.

Children to the number of 200,000, which it is estimated comprises nearly all those in the city, registered and were examined for feeding by the Americans. More than 40,000 of them were found to be subnormal physically and now daily have their dinner given to them by the American Relief Administration.

Smoke is issuing from the stacks of few factories, and ships that are arriving are so few in number and of such light tonnage that they impart little activity to the general situation. There are miles of deserted docks along the shipping canal and the various channels of the Neva River.

The visitor gets the impression that the once proud capital of Peter the Great will never return to normal. Many prominent Russians express the belief that never again will Petrograd be a really great commercial and industrial centre because of its isolation from the ore mines, the coal fields and the oil supply centres of Russia and also by reason of its ice-bound port. Rumors always are current in Moscow that the capital may again be removed to Petrograd, but these apparently are without foundation and probably inspired by former real estate owners who are selling to speculators their rights, or possible rights, in confiscated property.

The desolation in Petrograd has been intensified by the destruction of the central telephone station by fire and the indefinite suspension of the telephone service. The Government has strung temporary wires between the various departments here, but the indication is that it will not be possible to restore the private phones for many months because of lack of material and organization.

Only Government motor cars are to be seen on the streets, and these infrequently. Generally they are badly dilapidated. The street cars are carrying on a spasmodic service. They have no crowds on them during hours when fares are charged.

The opera, ballet and theatres are running regularly, but their receipts are disappointing because of the large number of free tickets still being issued to members of labor organizations and Government employes and because of the poverty of the city's reduced population.

ANTI-RED GENERALS GIVE UP.

Several of Wrangel's Leaders Return to Russia With Slaschoff.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 5.—Several generals of the White Army followed General Slashchoff, one of General Wrangel's ablest officers in the anti-Bolshevist campaign, when Slaschoff went into the Crimea after amnesty had been granted to him by the Soviet Government in Moscow last week. When Slaschoff was permitted to return to Russia he proceeded immediately to Sebastopol, where he reviewed the Red troops and delivered an address, during which there was much enthusiastic cheering.

M. Tchitcherin, the Soviet Foreign Minister, has issued an appeal to the remainder of Wrangel's troops to join the Red army, promising them amnesty

SAVINGS INCREASE DESPITE BAD TIMES

NEW YORK TAKES THE LEAD

NEW JERSEY FALLS BEHIND

But Decrease There Was Slight—Ohio and Wisconsin Also Showed Small Declines.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Returns from more than 600 mutual savings banks in the country for the year ended June 30 "reveal unanticipated conditions," according to a statement issued tonight by Controller of the Currency Crissinger.

"Notwithstanding the unfavorable conditions existing throughout the country," Mr. Crissinger said, "these savings institutions gained both in number of depositors and volume of deposits during the last year.

"Of the 623 reporting banks," he continued, "all except twenty-six are located in the New England and Eastern States, and the deposits in the banks of these two geographical divisions amount to nearl 96 per cent. of the total in all banks of that class. The deposits in these institutions upon the date in question amounted to $5,375,181,000, credited to 9,619,260 depositors, showing an average deposit account of $579.59.

"In June, 1920, deposits in these institutions totaled $5,186,345,000, the number of depositors 9,445,327 and the average deposit $549.14. The increase in number of depositors was 173,933 (1.84 per cent.) and the gain in deposits was $388,336,000 (7.49 per cent.). It thus appears that there was a gain in the average deposit of $30.45.

"In the New England States the deposits in these savings institutions increased $63,000,000, of which $47,000,000 were in the banks in Massachusetts and the balance of the increase is shown in the remaining States, ranging from about $1,400,000 in New Hampshire to nearly $5,000,000 in Rhode Island. The average deposit in banks in this geographical division was $500.91.

"Deposits in the savings banks in the Eastern States increased from $3,025,000,000 to $3,284,000,000, showing a net increase of $259,000,000, approximately. This increase was mainly in the banks in the State of New York, wherein the increase was $250,000,000. With the exception of New Jersey banks, which lost approximately $10,000,000, there was an increase in deposits in the savings banks of each State in this geographical division.

"There is but a limited number of mutual savings banks in other States—one in West Virginia and one in California, three in Ohio, five in Indiana, seven in Wisconsin and nine in Minnesota. It appears that there was a general increase in deposits of savings banks in the States named, with the exception of a decrease of $100,000 in the banks in Ohio and less than $50,000 in the banks in Wisconsin."

FINDS WARS COST US $52,607,489,927 TO DATE

Peace Foundation Says They Account for Three-fourths of Government Expenditures Since 1789.

BOSTON, Nov. 6.—The World Peace Foundation in a statement tonight gave figures compiled from reports of the Secretary of the Treasury which showed that the United States Government in the 131 years of its existence under the Constitution had spent nearly four-fifths of its total ordinary disbursements on war or things relating to war. Tables prepared by the foundation showed total ordinary disbursements from 1789 to 1920 of $66,728,209,409, of which the war items amounted to $52,607,489,927 or 78.5 per cent.

The war items were classified as follows: War Department, $24,294,476,572; Navy Department, $7,653,866,815; pensions, $5,876,021,640; interest on public debts, $5,232,615,199; special disbursements 1917-1920, $9,550,509,399.

The totals were taken from the annual report of the Secretary of the Treasury for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1920, in which was given a table showing disbursements in each year since 1789.

"This table," the statement continued, "has always been totaled horizontally to show the annual cost of Government. It has never been totaled vertically to get a comparison between the items of expenditure. That table was handed to an adding machine operator with instructions to get the vertical totals."

Official figures were given to show that the cost of the Civil War, including interest on the public debt from 1861 to 1893 and pension to date, had run to $12,322,186,601, or more than the Government had spent in all its previous existence. The cost to the United States of the World War is put at more than $33,000,000,000.

JAPAN HEARS OUR RADIO.

Australia Also Gets Harding Message From New Station.

TOKIO, Nov. 6.—President Harding's message sent from the Radio Corporation's new station in Long Island for world circulation was received at the Iwaki station at 7 o'clock this morning, Tokio time. The Department of Communications has published the message for distribution throughout Japan.

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 6.—President Harding's message, sent by wireless from the radio central at Rocky Point, N. Y., was received direct yesterday at Sydney, Melborune and Hobart by special receiving instruments installed on vessels. At the Sydney station, the message was ticked off as distinctly as if it had come only 100 miles instead of 10,000 miles.

It is believed here that this successful communication will hasten the plans for a high-power wireless station in Australia, capable of transmitting messages direct to America and Great Britain.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Ambassador Harvey when told today of Joseph P. Tumulty's statement in regard to the offer of the French Ambassadorship to him in 1914, smiled but declined to talk on the subject.

"Tumulty is having his say," was the Ambassador's only comment.

SEVEN TEAMS UNBEATEN

Situation Continues Complicated Among Eastern Elevens—Lafayette's Fine Achievement.

There were many things behind the fine victory which Princeton scored over Harvard on Saturday, but no fact stands out more than this—it was the triumph of individual brilliancy over an exact football system. It is nothing new for Harvard to play scientific football. The Crimson has been doing this thing since Percy Haughton first led the Cambridge eleven out of the gridiron wilderness. But for the first time since 1911 the Crimson discovered that even a perfect system cannot always avail against supermen such as Coach Bill Roper had at his command this year.

For two successive years up to last Saturday Harvard had tied the Tigers after trailing until well into the final period. In 1919, with Princeton in the van and the minutes flying fast, Eddie Casey caught a forward pass and slipped across the goal line with the tying touchdown. Again last season the Tigers were leading, 14 to 7, with only a few minutes to play, but it is now an old story how Coach Fisher sent Buell and Macomber into the fray, turned on a forward pass game that hitherto had been kept under cover, and used the scientific Harvard system as the lever with which to overturn the Tigers' hopes of victory.

It is now two years since Eddie Casey departed from the Cambridge campus. He was then the latest in a brilliant string of Harvard stars dating far back in the years and coming down to the days of Brickley and Mahan, who had been the immediate predecessors of the nimble Casey. But since 1919, no figure has stepped forward to carry on the burden of leadership, and, with the possible exception of the youthful Gehrke, there is no Casey or Mahan on the Crimson squad today.

Individual Stars Decided It.

On Saturday, then, they had no Lourie or Keck or Garrity around whom to build an attack. But, although Princeton excelled in individual stars, Harvard was the superior in the exact science of its football. Its attack was a thing of beauty in its deception, variety and the carefully thought-out principles that lay beneath it all. The Crimson forward pass is the best in the East, if such a sweeping statement may be allowed, and it was not only excellent in manual execution but, even more rare, had been made an integral part of Harvard's offensive campaign. Behind the kind of football that Harvard played there were many hours and days and weeks of painstaking thought and preparation. It failed because there was no Mahan or Casey to supply the vital punch and because the right side of the line was weaker than the system.

To praise Harvard, of course, is to laud Princeton even more, for the Tigers won the game, which is really the important thing. And they were the better team—stronger in man power and individual talent, directed by a smarter field general, quicker and more alert, faster afoot, less sluggish when the big moments came, better opportunists. This describes Princeton as it was on Saturday. True, the Tiger is not so good this year as last, but he is still strong enough to beat Harvard, system or no system.

After all, it is men that make a football team—the Louries, the Kecks, the Wittmers and, Harvard will add, the Gilroys, who see their opportunities and come through with the vital punch, doing greater things than any coach ever taught them. In one flash of Tiger alertness and speed all the dull, drab, precise perfection of the Harvard system had been nullified.

The Western Situation.

Leaving the highly absorbing events in the Palmer Stadium, the observer finds an interesting situation in intercollegiate football in the Western Conference. Chicago, which came East and beat Princeton, was finally forced out of the conference struggle on Saturday, leaving the decision still resting among Ohio State, Iowa and Wisconsin. The Far West championship seems fairly well decided, with California standing out, and little Centre has a clear field in the South, now that the Golden Tornado has been revealed as only a mild breeze.

But the Eastern situation is tied up into a series of pretty bowknots. Seven leading teams remain undefeated—Yale, Cornell, Lafayette, Navy, Penn State, Washington and Jefferson and Georgetown. There were no further erasures from the list on Saturday, each one of the leaders coming through in handsome shape. Next Saturday, however, may see a shrunken list, for Penn State and the Navy, two of the unbeaten, clash at Philadelphia, and Yale stacks up against the fighting Princeton eleven in the Bowl. Furthermore, Washington and Jefferson faces the not pleasant task of playing Pitt in the Panthers' lair, and Georgetown will have to travel down to Atlanta to joust with Georgia Tech, which is no mean opponent on its home field.

Lafayette should have no trouble with Delaware, and Cornell is preparing for an easy game with Springfield, which is strong but not strong enough to override the powerful machine that Gilmour Dobie has welded together at Ithaca. Cornell and Lafayette, then, are the only members of the unbeaten galaxy which seem free from danger this week.

Lafayette's Strong Showing.

Of the seven leaders, Lafayette's showing on Saturday looms greatest in the public eye. It was the first time since 1915 that the Maroon and White had been able to cross the Pennsylvania goal line, not to speak of winning a game. But Lafayette finally achieved the ambition of six years and will gain much additional satisfaction from the fact that it rolled up a bigger score than Pitt did against John Heisman's outfit. The Panthers won by 28 to 0, whereas Lafayette registered a 38 to 6 triumph, better performance on the whole than that of the team which Lafayette conquered earlier in the season to the tune of 6 to 0.

Cornell went into the Polo Grounds game with Columbia a 1 to 20 favorite and lived up to this flattering forecast, flattening the Blue and White under the same irresistible attack that defeated Dartmouth, 59 to 7, and that has rolled up the greatest scoring total of the season in the East. Columbia may find some consolation in the fact that she was beaten by a smaller score than Dartmouth—18 points less—but there the Morningside celebration ends, for its football team showed none of the earmarks of even a second-class eleven. To point out Columbia's defects and Cornell's virtues would be to rake over facts that were obvious many days before the game was played.

There is no great mystery in Columbia's failure to win, despite the great amount of wondering that has been indulged in by the campus critics. Football teams are not measured according to standards of weight and height, and a heavy, formidable-looking team that lacks quickness, football instinct, alertness and mental balance, among other things, can be no mystery if it does not win.

Triumph for Dawson.

Columbians probably shrugged their shoulders helplessly when they read that Fred Dawson's Nebraska eleven came East to Pittsburgh and trimmed the Warner machine by 10 to 0, excelling even the 6-0 defeat that Lafayette administered to the Panthers. For Dawson was coach at Columbia until the end of the 1919 season, when he resigned to go West for his health. This season he took the reins at Nebraska and has turned out a team which, in addition beating Pitt, held Notre Dame to a single touchdown.

Pittsburgh's downfall is a serious blow to the team's hopes for the mythical Eastern championship. It may recover, of course, if it is able to trounce Penn State and the latter succeeds in taking the measure of the Navy next Saturday. This turn of events would take the Panthers back near the top again, but for the present its cause is shrouded in gloom.

Yale, playing Maryland, and Notre Dame, opposed to the Army, did the expected and turned in easy victories. The soldiers showed, incidentally, that they still have a long road ahead before they are ready to grapple with the midshipmen on Nov. 26. Penn State found Carnegie Tech an easy victim, winning by 28 to 0, and Georgetown displayed its strength at the expense of Fordham, which was roundly defeated in the clash at Washington.

In the nature of an upset was Muhlenberg's 14 to 13 success over Lehigh. Stevens did well to hold Swarthmore 13 to 0, and both Syracuse, which beat McGill in an international game at Montreal, and Boston College, victor over Marietta, got back on the right road after disastrous defeats in previous games.

Borotra Wins French Indoor Tennis Title, Beating Gobert

PARIS, Nov. 6.—M. Borotra today won the French covered court tennis championship by defeating André H. Gobert in the final round, 6—1, 3—6, 6—3, 6—4. This was the first defeat at indoor tennis that Gobert has met with during the past six years.

Borotra is a newcomer in tennis. He gained prominence during the outdoor season this year by twice defeating Manuel Alonso, the Spanish player.

CONFERENCE RACE NARROWS TO THREE

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—While Saturday's Western Conference football games reduced the number of championship contenders from four to three, the scramble for first honors has become more complicated than ever, with three teams undefeated and their schedules so arranged that there is a strong possibility that they will remain that way the rest of the season, leaving the race in a triple tie.

Ohio State, Iowa and Wisconsin are at the top, with three victories each. Iowa and Ohio State face easy teams the rest of the season; Wisconsin has the hardest schedule of the three, but will be the favorite in each of its remaining contests.

The standing of the teams tonight, with only Conference contests being included, follows:

Wisconsin	3	0	Purdue	1	2
Iowa	3	0	Indiana	0	1
Chicago	2	1	Illinois	0	3
Michigan	1	1	Northwestern	0	4

Conference interest on Saturday centered in the Ohio State-Chicago game, and those who had predicted superfootball for this contest were not disappointed, for the two teams played what is admitted by all to have been the greatest battle staged on Stagg Field in many years.

Ohio State, outplayed completely for two and a half periods, rallied at the end, and in a spectacular finish, about which there was absolutely nothing flukey, put over a touchdown for a 7 to 0 victory. It was Chicago's first defeat this year and the first time the goal line of the team which beat Princeton had been crossed.

The game was the old story of the eleven with the punch winning. Chicago gave its all right at the start, but lost several opportunities for scores through lack of punch. Ohio played on the defense for three-quarters, then the Buckeye came out of its shell and routed the Maroons.

The Ohio players tackled cleanly, blocked well, made great interference and worked the aerial play perfectly. There was no tendency on Chicago's part to deny the contention that the best team won in Saturday's game.

Wisconsin, idle Saturday, and Iowa, beating Minnesota, 41 to 7, rank with Ohio State at the top at present.

The only comparison among the three teams—neither of which plays the other—that can be found thus far is that Ohio State beat Minnesota, 27 to 0, while Wisconsin and Iowa made virtually the same showing against Illinois, Wisconsin scoring 20 points and Iowa 14 against the Illini.

Ohio State plays only Purdue and Illinois and both games should be easy for the Buckeyes. Iowa meets Indiana and Northwestern and apparently has little chance of losing either game. Wisconsin, with a powerful eleven, must defeat Michigan and Chicago, both strong teams. Each has been defeated, however, and Wisconsin will be the favorite in both contests.

The schedule brings forth a strong chance for an undecided championship, for post-season games are not allowed.

Iowa, in beating Minnesota, showed even more than had been expected in the way of strength. Purdue won its first conference game in five years by defeating Northwestern, 3 to 0. The other teams were idle.

Ohio State was the sentimental favorite in Saturday's game because of Chicago's victory over Princeton. It was thought that an Ohio State victory—especially as Princeton beat Harvard—would tend toward eliminating any feeling that it was a "super" Western team which beat the member of the Eastern Big Three.

The big Middle Western schools outside the conference were victorious in their intersectional clashes, Nebraska defeating Pittsburgh and Notre Dame finding the army rather easy.

BROWN PLAYERS IN SHAPE.

All the Regulars Will Be Available for Game With Harvard.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 6.—Brown will begin a hard week's work tomorrow in preparation for the Harvard game at Cambridge next Saturday. The team is now in the best shape of the season, having come through the St. Bonaventure game without an injury. For the first time this season every man on the squad is in condition to play.

Head Coach Robinson is planning to send the varsity against a second team thoroughly drilled in plays which Harvard used against Princeton. Brown's showing Saturday has inspired the team and its coaches with confidence. Barrett and Sayward, who were shifted in order to strengthen the team on the wings, provided outstanding features of the game. Captain Shupert was unable to play Saturday on account of an injury to his wrist, but will be able to lead the team against the Crimson.

TENNIS STAR TO LEAVE.

Watson M. Washburn, for years one of the foremost lawn tennis players in metropolitan and national circles, will probably be missing from local tournaments next Spring. Washburn leaves this week to make his home in Washington, where he has received the appointment of assistant to the Under-Secretary of the Treasury. He will serve as adviser in legal and financial matters. Washburn has long been ranked among the first ten players of the land and was a member of the U. S. Davis Cup teams of 1920 and 1921. He is a member of the West Side Tennis Club and of the Executive Committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

YALE'S PROBABLE LINE-UP ANNOUNCED

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 6.—Yale's plans for the week of the Princeton game were outlined tonight. They include a rugged scrimmage drill on Tuesday, lighter and shorter scrimmaging on Wednesday and signal rehearsals Thursday and Friday. Tomorrow the squad will be given a blackboard talk and a lecture on plays which may be expected as well as on individual shortcomings of the members of the team. Because of minor injuries from which Ted Blair, "Nemo" Into and Charlie O'Hearn are still suffering, it is impossible to assert definitely whether they will be started against the Tigers. None of the three will probably be able to remain in the game through more than one half.

Although Quaile has returned to scrimmaging, he has been out of the game practically all season and can be used only as an emergency tackle. Norris is too susceptible to injury to be used for more than relief work, and the veteran Cutler is out of the game for the year. Harry Cross was tried out throughout the Maryland match yesterday and is likely to replace Guernsey at right tackle this week. No changes whatever are contemplated aside from the uncertainties created by the injuries to the players mentioned. The coaches hope to be able to line up the eleven as follows against Princeton:

HARVARD INJURIES FEW.

All Gridiron Regulars Expected to Resume Work This Week.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 6.—Harvard's beaten football players began to straggle home today, tired but by no means discouraged over the task that confronts them of getting into shape for the Yale game in the stadium on Nov. 14. Fitts was pretty much used up, but he always recovers quickly and two weeks will make a lot of difference. Owen showed in the third quarter at Princeton that his injury was not serious, but he was all in at the finish. Gratwick was hurt again but not seriously.

Whether Harvard will use the regulars or the substitutes against Brown next Saturday is something to be determined later. Also, there will be a question whether Tierney will be started at centre when he gets back into the going. Ladd, who replaced Tierney at tackle, was very active and there is more than a passing chance that he may become a regular before the Yale game. Gehrke will possibly be able to start work again this week. He will be equipped with a special head harness similar to that worn by Tierney at Princeton. Fitts is the only Harvard player likely to remain out of the practice for more than a day or two.

CORNELL IN GOOD TRIM.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 6.—Cornell's big Red squad reached home late this afternoon, after an all-day trip from New York, a little wearied after its defeat of Columbia, but in good shape for the final drive of the season. Two games remain for the Ithacans, one with the Springfield Training School, a doughty opponent, next Saturday, and the all-important Thanksgiving Day game with Penn, which for sentimental reasons the Ithacans would rather win than any other game on the card.

The only Red regular to be at all used up in the Columbia game was Hanson, left tackle, who was sent home by Coach Dobie last night in care of Trainer Frank Cheehan. The big tackle was not badly hurt, however, suffering no broken bones, and it is hoped that he will be in the line-up by the middle of the week.

The showing of the Cornellians fully met undergraduate expectations. Praise for Columbia's gameness and fine spirit, particularly in the second half, was heard in Cornell's camp, as well as satisfaction that certain phases of Cornell's play, in punting and the work of the ends in getting down the field under kicks, had shown improvement. Coach Dobie gave the boys a long talk on the train on the way from New York, suggesting, among other things, that they must not overlook the importance of the Springfield game. He thinks the training school eleven will make the Ithacans hustle.

Baseball President Resigns.

HAMILTON, Ont., Nov. 6.—The Board of Directors of the Michigan-Ontario Baseball League in their annual meeting today accepted the resignation of President George H. Maines, to take effect Dec. 1. The Directors voted their appreciation of the efforts of President Maines in behalf of the league during the three years he has been connected with it.

PRINCETON POINTS FOR YALE CONTEST

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 6.—Princeton today is feeling a whole lot better than it did on Oct. 22, after defeats by the Navy and Chicago, and better also than it did at about 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, at which time George Owen kicked a field goal that sent Harvard into a three-point lead.

With the Crimson beaten, the battle with Yale at New Haven next Saturday is the one and only object of the sons of Nassau, who are looking forward to it with a good bit of trepidation. The Tigers showed some good football yesterday against the red-hosed warriors of John Harvard, but they also showed some poor football that might prove disastrous in a skirmish with the Blue.

Just as the Tigers went into the battle yesterday with a determined idea that the two-year tie that had existed between them and the Crimson should be broken, so Yale will enter the fray next Saturday. The orange and black of old Nassau has waved triumphant over the blue of Yale for two years.

But Princeton has by no means conceded the palm. It still has eleven good men to fall back upon, the same eleven that answered every Harvard challenge yesterday for sixty minutes with not a single substitution. This feat naturally surprised even the scoutest of Tiger supporters, who even feared that Lourie and Garrity might not last a half. It also more than justifies the action of Keene Fitzpatrick, the veteran trainer, in keeping these two stars from the Navy and Chicago games, for, after all, Princeton would rather beat Yale and Harvard and lose to all the other opponents than to lose to the old rivals and win from every one else.

Garrity had not been in the game, even for scrimmage in practice, since Oct. 1, with the exception of a few minutes against Chicago, and Lourie had not played since Oct. 8. Whoops Snively, left end, and the man who was at the throwing end of most of Princeton's passes, has also been on the sidelines from injury, and played his first game in a month against Virginia.

In fact, the stamina of the entire team was truly remarkable. To beat Harvard the men had to be on their toes and working every minute, for it was a bitterly fought contest.

Every man on the team emerged from the encounter in fine physical shape. It was thought that Al Wittmer, centre, who hurt his leg in the first quarter, might be rather seriously injured in spite of his heroic refusal to leave his post, but the injury is not severe, and he will be in condition to start against the Elis.

Last week the Bengals staged but one scrimmage in practice, and will depart again from the usual formula this week. Keene Fitzpatrick says that it is probable that there will be no scrimmage whatever, the four days preliminary to the Yale game being devoted to signal drill and the perfection of new plays. The scrubs have been coached in the formations that Yale has shown this season, and will use them in dummy scrimmage against the varsity.

Princeton has taken a large section of seats for the New Haven skirmish, and most of the undergraduates will witness the encounter.

NAVY'S PLAY DISAPPOINTS.

Showing on Saturday Sobers Middies as Penn State Looms Up.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 6.—Facing the hardest task of its schedule, the Naval Academy team begins tomorrow serious preparation for the game against Penn State in Philadelphia next Saturday. The score of 6 to 0 made against Bucknell on Saturday has served as a warning and showed that much is yet to be done before the Midshipmen will be fit for such a terrific fight as is promised by Penn State.

The Navy made an almost total failure of its forward passes on Saturday and much attention will be given to this phase of playing during the practice of the week.

Two valuable players, King and Taylor, tackle and end, respectively, on the right side are on the hospital list. It is doubtful if King, one of the most valuable men on the team, will play. He hurt his leg against Bethany and has been out of the game since. It is possible that he will face the Army. Taylor was slightly hurt in practice, but it is almost sure that he will play against Penn State. He takes the forward pass well and is very fast.

WRITERS TO PLAY GOLF.

Newspaper Club to Hold Gymkhana Day at Van Cortlandt Today.

The New York Newspaper Golf Club will hold its annual gymkhana day and election of officers at Van Cortlandt Park today. Each contestant will play over one round. The scores will be divided to make nine different events, in each of which a prize will be awarded. There will also be two prizes for the women players.

The election of officers will take place between 3 and 4 o'clock. It will be followed by a luncheon for the players.

Title for Billiard Players Over Seventy Is at Stake

Thomas J. Gallagher, veteran professional billiard player of this city, feels that his preserves are being encroached upon by Louis A. Servatius, veteran amateur. Tom has learned that Louis recently celebrated his seventy-third birthday. Tom celebrated his last April. "Now that I realize that I haven't any advantage in age or experience over Servatius I hereby wish to challenge him for the septuagenarian championship of New York and all points west, north and south," said Gallagher yesterday. "I have hesitated to do this until now, believing I was somewhat older than Servatius, and, therefore, had had more experience. I realize that I am a professional and he is an amateur. If he fears to risk his amateur status I will play him an exhibition. That will answer the same purpose." Boy, page Mr. Servatius.

KELLY LOSES RACE BUT WINS TROPHY

Has Best Point Total in Series of Events on N. Y. A. C. Track—Brown Takes Final.

Willie Kelly, sturdy little Knights of St. Antony distance runner, yesterday captured the William C. Poertner Trophy, offered by the Vice President of the New York A. C. for the athlete finishing with the lowest score in a series of four races conducted under the auspices of the Mercury Foot Club. Kelly insured his victory yesterday when he raced home in second position in the final race of the series at Travers Island. The wiry little Brooklyn club runner, competing from scratch, trailed Newton Brown, New York A. C. by a matter of about sixty yards. Kelly, in turn, was more than 100 yards in front of Edward Hahn, an unattached distancer.

Brown covered the distance in 16:03 1-5 from the 100-yard mark. Kelly's time was 16:17 2-5, two and two-fifth seconds slower than his best time for the series. Hahn, who also was allowed a handicap of 100 yards, was timed 16:56 4-5, for third position.

Kelly finished the series with the low score of seven points. He started with victories in the first and second races, which were scratch events. With the running of the third race, however, the Mercury Foot officials instituted the handicap system, under which Kelly was called on to concede marks to his rivals. The Knights of St. Antony star finished third in the third race, but his superb running yesterday gave him second position and possession of the cup. Brown was second in the final point standing with eight tallies, and Hahn finished the series with nine markers.

The race attracted four starters, but from the outset the chase developed into a struggle between the three contenders for the Poertner award. Kelly, from the back mark, raced as if his life depended on the result. In this he was unsuccessful, but only because Brown, to his handicap of 100 yards, added a surprisingly strong race. Kelly early engaged Hahn in battle and, triumphant, set sail for Brown. Kelly drew on even terms with Hahn in the first mile, and for another half mile the pair struggled in a spirited duel. Kelly was the stronger and vanquished his rival, who thereafter receded and gradually dropped back out of the contention entirely.

In his effort to overhaul Brown, however, Kelly experienced quite another sort of competition. The Mercury Footer was out in front breezing along from the time the gun's bark started the runners on their journey, and he set a sizzling pace. Kelly eventually gave up the attempt to beat Brown to the tape and conserved his strength for emergency should Hahn close with a threat. The danger never came, however, and Kelly in a last lap burst of speed cut down the lead of Brown to 60 yards.

It was announced after the race that Kelly will be presented with the Poertner trophy this week. The presentation will be made personally by the donor at the club's city house. No special date has been arranged, but preparations are under way to have Kelly as the club's guest at dinner some night this week when Vice President Poertner will formally make the presentation.

The summary:

Three-Mile Run, Handicap (open only to runners who have never won a prize in a race at a distance exceeding one mile)—Won by Newton Brown, New York A. C. (100 yards), time, 16:03 1-5; William F. Kelly, Knights of St. Antony (scratch), 16:17 2-5, second; Edward Hahn, unattached (100 yards), 16:56 4-5, third.

MOORE WINS SKATING RACE.

Joe Moore, international sprint champion, won a one-mile handicap speed skating race at the Iceland Rink yesterday, starting from scratch and overtaking the field after fourteen laps had been covered. With only ten laps to go, Moore, who represented the 181st Street Ice Palace, caught the leading skater, and then sprinted out into a clear lead, winning finally by half a lap. N. Goldberg, unattached with a sixty-yard handicap, was second, and Paul Forsman of the Tremont Skating Club was third. The time was 3:39.

A half-mile novice race was won by C. Schroner, unattached, who led A. Leverch and J. Engel, both unattached, to the tape in the winning time of 1:36. Raymond Murray, juvenile star, gave an exhibition of speed skating and covered a quarter mile in 47 seconds.

HERBERT AU VICTOR IN TEN-MILE WALK

Herbert Au of the home club led the field of seventy-four walkers which finished yesterday in the second annual ten-mile handicap walk of the Long Island City Athletics, held over a course starting and finishing in Astoria, Long Island. Au, who was allowed a handicap of 26 minutes, was the victor by a margin of about 150 yards over H. Swanson, a clubmate, who started off the 16-minute mark. Swanson, in turn, led J. Hausmann, another Long Island C. A. competitor, by about fifty yards. The victor's time was 1:53:52 3-5.

A field of seventy-nine hardy "peds" started in the ten-mile jaunt and all but five completed the full course. In the early competition Mike McInerney of the Walkers Club set the pace. Allowed the limit handicap of 33 minutes, McInerney broke the trail for the heel and-toe athletes for the first mile and a half. In the following half mile Thomas Hickey, veteran Pastime A. C. pedestrian, who started off the 28-minute mark, engaged McInerney in a struggle for the lead. The battle ended with Hickey in front after passing the two-mile mark, and for the next four miles the Pastime veteran showed the way. Au, moving up rapidly through the field, overhauled Hickey soon after passing the sixth mile mark, and the Long Island C. A. walker retained the lead to the finish.

Willie Plant of the Morningside A. C., national seven-mile champion, captured the fast time prize. Plant started from scratch and finished twenty-fourth, in 1 14:02. The team prize went to the Pastime A. C., with the Long Island C. A. second and the Morningside A. C. third.

Daniel Lynch, 48-year-old veteran of the Pastime A. C., captured the "old boys'" prize, an award made to the first walker over 40 years of age to finish. This triumph marked the fifth successive "old boy" prize for Lynch in as many distance walking events. The Pastime walker finished seventh. D. Dunne of the Walkers' Club, who also is 48 years old, finished fourteenth and received second "old boys'" prize; while Tom Hickey, admitting to 58 years, finished nineteenth and captured the third award. First novice prize went to Swanson, who had the choice between second prize and the novice award. He selected the latter.

1	H. Au, L. I. C. A.	26:00	1:32:52 3-5

TWELVE MEN ON THE LIST

National Title Holders Included in Personnel of Team—Lyon to Contest With Three Weapons.

As strong an American fencing team as ever wielded the blades will represent Uncle Sam in the international fencing bouts against British performers in Washington and this city Nov. 18, 19 and 21. The American team was selected yesterday at a meeting of the Amateur Fencers' League of America at the New York A. C. The international committee in charge of the forthcoming matches selected twelve of the greatest fencers available for the team which is to test the skill of the English with foils, epée and sabres. This conforms with the numerical strength of the English selections.

Whether both countries will send a dozen men into actual competition is undecided. The original challenge stipulated teams of ten members each, but two additional selections were allowed the English fencers upon request, and the American officials, in order to provide against emergency, selected an equal number.

Arthur S. Lyon, veteran blade-wielder of the Fencers' Club, stands at the top of the American selections. Regarded as the foremost three-weapon fencer in the country, Lyon has been nominated to contest for America in foils, epée and sabre. Lyon's specialty is the sabre, but he is also admirably adept with the foil and epée. He held the sabre championship on three occasions, in 1917, 1918 and 1919, but it was as a member of the American Olympic team last year that he furnished his greatest exhibition of skill. The Fencers' Club star competed with the three weapons and his work was a material factor in the greatest American fencing success in the history of Olympic competitions.

Allaire Announces List.

Ensign E. G. Fullenweider, U. S. N.
Sherman Hall, New York A. C.
Chauncey McPherson, New York A. C.
J. Brooks B. Parker, Philadelphia.
Major Harold Rayner, Washington Fencers' Club.
William H. Russell, Boston A. A.
Major Robert Sears, Washington Fencers' Club.
Reserve—Sergeant John W. Dimond, U. S. A. Mounted Service School, Leavenworth, Kan., and Ray W. Dutcher, New York A. C.

In the selection of competitors with the various weapons, the officials named, tentatively, six for foils, six regulars and two reserve for epée and five first string men and one reserve for sabres. In the list are five fencers in addition to Lyon, who have been tentatively selected for more than one weapon. Breckinridge has been nominated for foils and epée, Hall for foils and sabres, Honeycutt for foils and epée, Rayner for foils and epée and Sears for foils and epée. Dimond, as reserve, is selected for epée and sabres.

National Titleholders Included.

The team includes the present American titleholders for foil, epée and sabre with two exceptions, and every man named was a member of the American Olympic team last year. Hall and McPherson were not included in the pilgrimage to Antwerp, but they are fencers of recognized ability and are expected to prove mainstays for America in the international battle for the Colonel Robert M. Thompson trophy. McPherson is the present epée and sabre champion. Hall five times has held the foils title and has been sabre champion three times. Major Honeycutt is the present foils titleholder.

Bouts in sabres and epée were conducted Saturday night and yesterday morning at the New York A. C. in completing the qualification trials, but it was found necessary to force the team members through their full schedule of bouts.

J. Brooks B. Parker—Captain University of Pennsylvania fencing team, 1911; runner-up for the three-weapon cup in 1912; runner-up for sabre title in 1920; member of Olympic team, 1920.

Comment on Current Events in Sports.

It was in the eastern section of the country that intercollegiate football was cradled and developed, but no longer can the East regard its football as superior to that of other sections. The West and the South are clamoring for a place in the front ranks of the gridiron group, and they are saying it with touchdowns and field goals—the most convincing arguments that could be offered.

The current season has provided no more intersectional clashes to date than has been customary in recent years, but it has shown far greater success for the invading forces. Whereas it has been the exceptional in the past for an eleven from a distant section to score a victory over one of the leaders of the Eastern group, it has been the rule this year. There have been failures, it is true, the rout of Georgia Tech by Penn State being the most notable, but against this setback—have been numerous triumphs by teams from the West or South.

Centre's victory over Harvard, unquestionably the biggest surprise that has developed so far this season, is but one instance of the new era in football. It is true that Harvard is not represented by one of its greatest teams, yet it had gone undefeated through six games before the Kentuckians, representing a college with an enrollment of 275 students, arrived at the Stadium. A Harvard team had not tasted defeat on the gridiron over a stretch of five years until Centre scored its victory. The Crimson previously played two intersectional games and had won both—by a comfortable score against Indiana, but by a slim margin of three points against Georgia University. Neither team had been expected to hold the Crimson to such low scores as 19—0 and 10—7.

Princeton's defeat by Chicago was another case of a Western team traveling into the abode of a strong Eastern representative and handing the home aggregation a shock. There had been no disposition to underrate Chicago in this section, yet the belief was general that the Tigers would prevail. The players from the Middle West proved their case most convincingly.

The success of Fred Dawson's Nebraska Cornhuskers over Glenn Warner's Pittsburgh machine on Saturday last was another convincing argument that the East has no monopoly on Grade A football. That rout of the Army eleven by Notre Dame on the reservation up the Hudson tended still further to prove the contention. No season of the past has produced a series of setbacks for four such prominent members of the Eastern group by rivals from other sections as have been registered this year against Harvard, Princeton, Pittsburgh and West Point. Many of the lesser lights of the Eastern group have also been defeated, but only the top-notchers are considered as proving anything by their victories or defeats.

Football will profit under the new conditions. Keen competition is the life of sport as well as of trade, and now the East has a real fight on its hands to retain prestige of years' standing, while the West will try to add new laurels and hold what already has been gained. The East long displayed a decided superiority over all other sections in the brand of its football, but that condition no longer prevails.

TURF

Are Man o' War's honors in danger? Will that great Runnymede colt, Morvich, the pride of Benjamin Block, continue to be invincible in his three-year-old form next year and duplicate or excel the great record made by Man o' War as a three-year-old last year? These are questions that today are being asked by lovers of the thoroughbred. But, regardless of what Morvich accomplishes as a three-year-old, certainly his record as a two-year-old this season speaks for itself. He is a true champion.

Morvich has competed in eleven races and has won them all. He has done everything that has been asked of him. Distance, track condition, or the boy that has the mount have made no difference to this pleasant tempered animal. He seems to know that his business is racing, and he is all business. In this respect he is much like the great Man o' War. After Morvich's victory in the rich Pimlico Futurity on Saturday not a few qualified judges openly declared him to be a greater racer than Man o' War. Certain it is that Morvich's two-year-old record is a more impressive one than that of Man o' War. The latter was beaten once as a two-year-old by Upset, but because of the fact that he was almost left at the post and got a bad ride in that race, many have been inclined to throw it out of consideration.

A brief comparison of what these two splendid horses accomplished as two-year-olds is interesting. Morvich has won all eleven of his starts this season and his winnings total the magnificent sum of $116,584. As a two-year-old, Man O' War started ten times and won nine races. His winnings totalled $83,325. Thus has Morvich won $33,259 more than did Man O' War as a two-year-old.

Man O' War holds the distinction of having won more money than any other horse in the history of the American turf. His total earnings were $249,465. To equal this mark, Morvich must win $132,881, which is considerably less than Man O' War won as a three-year-old. Morvich certainly has got away to a flying start in his quest for greater laurels than were won by Man O' War.

There is quite a bit of romance attached to Morvich. When he made his first start of the season at Jamaica, he was entered in a selling race to be sold for $3,000. There were no bidders. He was quoted at the luscious odds of 50 to 1. His price on Saturday was thirty cents to a dollar. Shortly after Morvich began to show impressive form he was purchased by Block and Burlew for a price said to be $5,500. Toward the middle of the Summer Block purchased Burlew's share in the colt for $40,000, and thus acquired sole ownership.

Whether Morvich ever accomplishes another thing or not his name will go down in the annals of the American turf among the really great.

TRAPSHOOTING

No action that has been taken by the American Trapshooting Association in recent years has met with more popular acclaim than the recently announced decision of Stoney McLinn, the secretary-manager, to rank the women shooters of this country this season. For the last several seasons women have been playing more prominent rôles with each succeeding year and they now have finally succeeded in getting the recognition that their performances have entitled them to.

Trapshooting is the one sport where the woman contestant must take the same chances as man and the one sport in which she has proved that she can hold her own. This statement is made in a general sense. Of course, in other sports, such as golf and tennis, some women players have flashed their way across the links or courts to such purpose that they have been conceded a place alongside of some of the best in the ranks of the men, but in a majority of cases woman cannot hope to hold her own with man in sports, except in trapshooting.

Not so long ago women trapshooters were rare indeed. There were a few scattered over the broad reaches of this country, but they were so few that their very existence was almost lost to sight. As in other sporting pursuits, however, women have been progressing until now their number in trapdom, and the general excellent ability that has been shown by them, has compelled the officials of the American Trapshooting Association to give them the recognition that accompanies a national ranking. Because they are not yet as numerous as the men trapshooters it has been decided that instead of ranking the first fifty, the first twenty-five will be ranked. This is an auspicious start—far more auspicious than many believed possible. The fact that there are a sufficient number actively engaged in the sport to permit of a ranking list of twenty-five is proof conclusive that the women of this country are a big factor in trapshooting.

A glance at what has been accomplished by some of the women who are well up in the race for national recognition suffices to show that they can hold their own with many of the leading male nimrods of the land. At this time Mrs. C. E. Groat of Long Beach, Cal., is setting a merry pace for her rivals. She has an average of .9183 for 1,225 registered targets. In other words, she has missed only 100 clays out of this big total. This is a record that many a male gunner would be proud to possess. Mrs. G. M. Buchanan of Mitchell, S. D., is second, having broken 1,635 of the 1,800 targets she has shot at, for an average of .9083. Mrs. Toots Randall of New York, who won the women's national championship in the Grand American Handicap tournament in Chicago, is third. She has broken 2,815 out of 3,115 targets, and her average is .9036. These performances are but a few of the best that have thus far been turned in by the women of the country, and the season has until the last day of December to run.

There is little doubt that the world's professional 18.2 balkline billiard championship tournament, which will begin in Chicago one week from today and continue through Nov. 22, will be productive of playing on a part with the best that has been seen in a titular event. Seven of the world's leading players will compete, and their known ability, coupled with what they have accomplished in their preparatory work to date, assures not only a keenly contested tournament, but one that is sure to be replete with signal performances.

With such a galaxy of stars as Willie Hoppe, Jake Schaefer, Edouard Horemans, Welker Cochran, Ora Morningstar, George Sutton and Roger Conti entered, there is sure to be a battle royal. And the ultimate winner's claim to the 18.2 balkline billiard championship of the world will be beyond dispute. A more representative field could not be gathered together. Those who are promoting the event combed the far reaches of the billiard world in an effort to find the best players extant, and it seems that they succeeded.

In the coming event Willie Hoppe will defend the title that he won from George Sutton in 1906 and has held ever since. A striking coincidence in connection with this tournament is the fact that Sutton and Hoppe will again meet. These two, as well as Ora Morningstar, competed in the last world's championship tournament held in 1906. It was not in that tournament, however, that Hoppe acquired possession of the crown he has so successfully and commendably defended. George Sutton, who now makes his home in Boston, was the winner of that tournament fifteen years ago. Sutton then took the title away from Slosson in a subsequent challenge match, and Hoppe, in turn, took the crown from Sutton.

Another coincidence is the fact that the name of Schaefer again appears among the list of entrants. And by many Young Jake is believed to have the best chance of stripping Hoppe of his laurels. He has been playing masterful billiards since the middle of last season. For a time the promise that Young Jake gave as a youth dwindled and almost flickered out, but since he has conscientiously applied himself to perfecting his game he has come to the fore with a rush.

The world's championship aspect of this tournament is accentuated by the fact that among those who will compete are Edouard Horemans, the Belgian who holds the championship of Europe, and Roger Conti, the 20-year-old professional champion of France. Undoubtedly these two players are the best Europe has today. Such being the case, it means that Europe and the United States, the leading balkline centres of the world, are represented by their best.

The seven players are now on the scene and putting in their final practice sessions for the tournament. Reports from the Windy City indicate that all of them are in excellent stroke. Conti has been doing his practicing in private, so that little has been learned recently of the speed of his game. Those who have seen him in action, however, declare that the young Frenchman, far from being a false alarm, is a player of marked ability.

SWIMMING

A 12-year-old water sprite, Virginia Whitnach, of the New York Women's Swimming Association, swam 212 2-3 yards in 3 minutes 18 seconds recently, using the newly introduced eight-beat crawl, and the performance, claimed to represent the best middle-distance speed ever attained by a girl of her age, draws attention once more to the latest stroke developed in this country. While the time has been too short to reach any definite conclusion concerning the value of the eight-beat crawl, for it was taken up about one year ago, results attained with it are decidedly interesting.

Leeming Jelliffe of Yale and the New York A. C. swam it with marked success in college competition last Winter; Braisted, a Brooklyn schoolboy, did well with it in scholastic meets; Miss Frances Cooney, a 14-year-old star of the New York Women's S. A., figured prominently with it in the junior national 880-yard championship for women; other devotees of both sexes reaped laurels. Significant, too, of the fact that a faster leg drive than the now standard six-beat can be held effectively is the swimming of Steward Damon of Amherst, intercollegiate champion at fifty yards, who affects the ten-beat action for all distances and goes the mile comfortably with it.

The theory upon which experimenters are working with the eight-beat crawl is that by making the leg drive very fast and narrow it is possible to develop as much propelling power as with a slower, wilder thrash, and at the same time reduce water resistance. They point out that since the discovery of the trudgeon stroke progress in the art of natation has been marked chiefly by a gradual narrowing and quickening of the leg action, passing from the trudgeon to the two-beat Australian crawl, then in turn to the four-beat single trudgeon crawl and four and six-beat double trudgeon crawl. They realize that there is a limit to the speed of thrash which can be maintained efficiently, but they doubt that this limit is the six-beat, and their efforts are now directed at testing the eight-beat, preparatory, perhaps, to approaching the ten-beat in good time.

Richard Nelligan, the Amherst coach, who brought out our foremost ten-beater, Damon, writes of his experiments: "I cannot say that my work has proved the eight-beat superior to the six, but a number of my pupils, young men and women, have fallen naturally into an eight or ten thrash on learning to swim, which indicates that the action is not abnormal. And it does not seem to me at all unlikely that a narrow thrash, rapid within reason and rhythmic, eventually will furnish greater propulsion and less resistance than a slower, wider leg drive. It is early to venture predictions, yet results are most encouraging."

The teachers at the New York Women's S. A. seem equally confident that developments will justify the time devoted to the eight-beat. Said one of them: "It would be absurd to expect a new stroke to demonstrate superiority within a few months of its inception. Nevertheless, we have succeeded in dispelling the once-prevalent belief that a thrash faster than the six-beat was untenable for distances greater than 100 yards. Quite a few of our girls are swimming the quarter and half mile with the eight-beat, and one of them used it to excellent purpose in the senior national three-and-one-half-mile championship for women. In view of the fact that competent authorities think swift leg movements are advantageous, provided they do not require disproportionate expenditure of energy, it seems reasonable to look for the eight-beat to prove its worth presently.

TODD SOCCER TEAM TROUNCES YONKERS

National Champions Beat Thistles, 6 to 1, in Association Cup Match.

Todd Shipyards soccers gave short shrift to the Yonkers Thistles in the second round of the annual cup competition of the United States Football Association at Todd Field in Brooklyn yesterday, the national champions winning by a score of 6 goals to 1. The latter took no chances and from the start waged a whirlwind campaign which brought in five goals in the first half to none for their opponents.

Hosie, from a centre by Sweeney, opened the scoring, and within the next fifteen minutes three goals in succession by McKenna, the Todd centre, practically settled the issue. Sweeney added another before half-time.

McDonald converted a penalty kick for the Thistles in the second half, but this was offset by the champions' sixth goal, shot by McGuire.

THE SCREEN

Of course, there's no denying that Norma Talmadge is one of the American screen actresses who can really act and that Herbert Brenon is a director who can make vividly expressive moving pictures, so it is readily admitted that any production to which they jointly devote their efforts can hardly be without something to recommend it, but—

How do such competent persons come as close to concealing their talents as they do in "The Wonderful Thing," the photoplay at the Strand this week? Except for a few scenes, and, perhaps, its consistently good photographic quality, it might be the work of almost any of the many mediocre actresses and directors in the numerous studios between the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts.

For instance, the picture is excessively talky. There is almost no scene in it which means anything without its accompanying, and interruptive, subtitles. In fact, the story is told in words. If all of the pictures were taken out of it, it would still be fairly complete and intelligible. Yet Mr. Brenon has shown in other productions that he can make expressive moving pictures that do not need the verbal crutch. Why hasn't he done so here? When it is reported that his scenes are well composed, except those in which the frame is allowed to clip off the tops of the players' heads, and that the photography, as a rule, is soft yet clear, the most that may be said by way of recommendation for his work has been put down. Of expressive kinetic photography there is practically nothing in the picture.

Miss Talmadge is a pantomimist. In other pictures she has shown that she can make her thoughts and feelings known by silent acting, by facial expressions, gestures, postures and movements of her body. Yet, in this picture she does little besides talk. In a few scenes there are flashes of pantomime, but most of the time she just moves her lips as if, when she was making the photoplay, she thought the motion picture camera was a phonograph. And she's no better at moving her lips on the screen than hundreds of other actresses. But she's a far better pantomimist when she chooses to be.

Nor do the others in the cast do anything special. Most conspicuous among them, because of her social prominence and the publicity that attended her entrance into motion picture work, is Mrs. Lydig Hoyt, who is programmed as Julia Hoyt and has a minor rôle in the photoplay. Whether Mrs. Hoyt is a screen actress of the first rank remains to be seen. She hasn't much chance in "The Wonderful Thing," and, with the others, does little besides talk.

The story of the production can be accepted only as a fairy tale. It is billed as an adaptation of the play of the same name by Lillian Trimble Bradley, but how closely it follows its original the present writer cannot say. In its screen form it makes free use of the "Peg o' My Heart" idea, with the Frenchified daughter of a wealthy American hog raiser playing the rôle of despised benefactor in a snobbish English home. The story is kept going by all sorts of complications, any one of which would have been straightened out in two minutes by the exercise of a little common sense by any of the persons involved; but, then, the story would not have been kept going.

The Strand commemorates Armistice Week and the opening of the Washington conference with a Kineto picture of the victory pageants held in the various allied countries and a prologue on "Peace." "The Love Egg," a Punch comedy, is also on the bill.

Edith M. Hull's novel, "The Sheik," which seems to have provided some kind of entertainment for numerous readers and no little amusement for the book reviewers, has followed the path of all popular fiction and may be seen on the screens of the Rivoli and Rialto Theatres this week, that is, a photoplay calling itself "The Sheik" and acknowledging Mrs. Hull's story as its parent is being offered. Again the writer must confess that he has not read the novel from which a photoplay under review has been derived. He knew he would have to see the picture sooner or later. Isn't that enough?

Anyhow, the photoplay tells the story of an unusually spiritless English girl who is abducted by an exceedingly gentle desert sheik, but will not admit that she loves him until she is captured by a really rough Arab and realizes how perfectly safe she is with her tamer admirer. Somehow, this doesn't seem to be exactly the idea of Mrs. Hull's novel as reported in the book reviews, but never mind; here's the picture tale of a nice sheik and his agreeable English girl. And you won't be offended by having a white girl marry an Arab, either, for the sheik isn't really a native of the desert at all. Oh, no; he's the son of a Spanish father and an English mother who were killed when he was a baby so the old sheik could raise him as his son. These romantic Arabian movies, you know, never have the courage of their romantics.

Agnes Ayres is the girl and Rudolph Valentino is the sheik. Both of them can make the characters they impersonate seem real in a picture, which gives any character a chance to seem real.

George Melford directed the production and, although he has given it no cinematographic quality, he has made many elaborate scenes, using the desert effectively a number of times. The only trouble in this connection is that he has used the desert too much, and especially too much in the sun. If realism was his object he has certainly accomplished it. By the time half a dozen of these glaring white desert scenes have followed each other on the screen your eyes are ready to give up. Those who go to see the picture would do well to take their amber glasses with them.

The Rivoli and Rialto programs are enlivened by one of those ingenious and amusing doll comedies periodically issued as "Funny Face" productions without credit to the person or persons who make them. The magazines at these two theatres also emphasize Armistice Week and the Washington conference with pictures of the men prominent during the war and since.

"The Ropin' Fool," with Will Rogers, and "Never Weaken," with Harold Lloyd, are the main features of a bill of short subjects at the Capitol. As in other theatres the week is observed in various pictorial and musical numbers.

Mrs. Herz Weds Everett Butterfield.

Mrs. Leah May Herz, at one time the wife of the late Ralph Herz, was married in Boston yesterday to Everett Butterfield, the actor. Mr. Butterfield, who rose to the rank of Captain during the war, is at present appearing in "Main Street."

Opportunities in the Bond Market

The trend of bond prices is now upward in response to the gradual easing of the money situation and the consequent lowering of interest rates and many years will probably elapse before money will again have such a high purchasing power in the investment security markets as it has today.

Our circular No. 1364, "Present Opportunities in the Bond Market — How Long Will They Last?" offers suggestions that should help investors to take advantage of present opportunities in the bond market

FINANCIAL MARKETS

A week which comprised such diverse incidents as the reduction of Federal Reserve and Bank of England rates practically to the minimum since 1914, the fall of wheat prices nearly to the lowest since 1914 and the decline of German marks to less than half a cent would have been noteworthy in any case. But the manner in which the markets greeted the Treasury's cut in its own interest rate from 5 per cent. to 4¼, with the consequent lowering of Reserve Bank rates, made last week something of a landmark. The rapid and at times spectacular rise in the price of investment bonds and the great increase of business were rather notable evidence of the drift of things. Their significance is the greater because last week's lower Reserve Bank rate did not, as it did in wartime, precede the Treasury's borrowings and therefore in a large degree create the market for 4¼ per cent. Treasury borrowings; it was this time not announced until after the Treasury had made its own cut in rates and until the new loan at the lower rate had been largely oversubscribed.

The fall in the price of capital, both for open market discounts and for six months' investment in high-grade securities, is unmistakable evidence of a change in the whole field of investment values. Decline of the cost of money in this larger sense has always been a peculiarly interesting study in the sequel to great wars of the past. Our own particular experience is derived from the period following the Civil War. On that occasion, interest rates both for merchants' loans and for investment securities remained at a very high level during at least seven years after the war was over.

They came down to the rates familiar to the past generation only after the panic of 1873. As a general rule in economic history, such fall in the price of capital and such rise of prices on the market for fixed investments accompanied similar reduction in prices of commodities. The two processes were not entirely simultaneous in the period following the war of secession, but that may have been because such reduction as occurred in the price of goods was mostly a consequence of appreciation of our own paper currency in gold value.

After 1873 the decline in money and the advance in bonds proceeded, first very rapidly, then very gradually, until the price of capital and of commodities reached its lowest mark in 1897 and the price of investment bonds its highest. That was the year when British 2¾ per cent. consols sold at 114, when the Bank of England rate was maintained during many months at 2 per cent., when United States 4 per cents touched 129 and when 4 per cent. bonds of strong American railways sold substantially above par. We are still a very long distance away from any such investment markets, for we still have to face the world's economic waste of capital in war and the large requirements of economic reconstruction. Demand for capital will constantly exceed the immediately available supply. Nevertheless, present indications certainly seem to be that the process of readjusting the cost of capital from its recent abnormal rate is going forward with much the same suddenness and persistence as the recent readjustment of prices for commodities.

Several inferences might be drawn from such a movement as last week's. As a general rule, continuous rise in price of investment bonds does not occur simultaneously with a continuous rise in stocks; probably for the reason that rapidly advancing prices for merchandise and rapidly increasing profits for business enterprise will usually draw capital away from fixed investments, on account of the relatively higher yield for its use in partnerships or shares. There have been notable exceptions, however, and they are not unfamiliar in periods of recovery from trade depression.

In the present case one other sequel to the fall in the price of capital will be important in its bearing on both branches of the market. If, as is probable, the rise in prices of outstanding high-grade bonds foreshadows distinctly lower interest rates on new loans placed in the American market, it means great relief to borrowing foreign States and enterprises. It was inconceivable that the full process of rehabilitation should be conducted by European countries, for instance, on the basis of new loans placed abroad at an 8 per cent. rate. Eventually many of those countries will have to float loans for reform of their paper currencies and for restoration of the gold standard. But it would have been folly to do so at the interest rates prevalent during the past year.

That England's United Kingdom 5½s were lately selling on a 7 or 7½ per cent. basis meant that even England could not afford to raise new credits on a large scale in America to stabilize exchange. Such loans would have had to conform to the rating of bonds already on the market. In the case of these first-class States, the recent low prices of their bonds did not indicate doubt over a nation's credit any more than last January's price of 86 or lower for United States Liberty bonds meant distrust of our Government's good faith.

Those prices merely measured the scarcity of available capital when compared with demand for it; a disturbance of equilibrium which has now been corrected. But a result more important even than recovery of their standing by loans of high-grade Governments will be the opportunity presently offered for the less favored nations to place foreign loans, which they could not float at all under lately prevalent conditions. This, in turn, points the way to the opportunities of American capital in the large field of European reconstruction—a task as clearly indicated by our immense accumulation of gold and our unprecedented ratio of bank reserves to liabilities as by the rise in the investment market.

LOWER BANK RATE AND ENGLISH MARKET

THE NEW FALL IN THE MARK

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The general comment here on last week's reduction of the Bank of England's rate is that abnormal times call for abnormal measures and that the reduction, while contrary to the usual practice at this period of a year, is designed to ease the financial situation as much as possible. The way for London's reduction was made easier by the lowering of your Reserve Bank's rediscount rate the day before; but the recent widening of the difference between the official money rates at London and New York points to a lessening influence of your monetary conditions upon ours.

In business circles throughout England the lightening of interest charges is welcomed. Yet there is no disposition to expect a resultant immediate forward movement in trade. Industrial activity has fallen so low in this country that something more than reduction of the bank rate would be required to give the necessary stimulus.

Easier Money and Trade.

At the same time, opportunities for cheaper borrowing will help to reduce costs of business, will stimulate the spending power of markets and will assist in liquidating commodities still held back through frozen credit. In reaching their decision the Directors of the bank were also influenced by the extreme ease of money on Lombard Street itself. They naturally desired to "regularize" the position by reducing the gap between bank and market rates, a margin which a week ago amounted to nearly 2 per cent. Indeed, notwithstanding the lowering of the official standard, open market discount rates are still out of touch with the bank minimum. On Lombard Street, however, a gradual hardening of rates seems probable.

The immediate money market outlook is obscure. The attractiveness of certain gilt-edged securities, especially the Government's 5½ per cent. Treasury bonds, is draining money away with some rapidity, and now the floating of new high-class capital issues will receive a stimulus from the cheaper money rates. No immediate decrease in the interest rates asked on these new loans is likely, but the price at which they are offered will probably be advanced and the actual interest yield lowered in that way.

Aspects of German Exchange.

New depths of depreciation are being daily reached by exchange rates on Central Europe. The fresh collapse of the mark last week was brought about through resumption of heavy Continental selling. Apparently, Germany has been realizing marks through other money centres, thus creating reparations credits with her Government's usual disregard for the effect on the external value of the German currency. There appears in fact to be no desire on Germany's part to prevent collapse in the mark. On the contrary, an effort seems to have been made to force a crisis. Leading bankers here are always buyers of marks for legitimate trading purposes, and if Germany wished she could, by careful handling of the market, do much to check the fall in values.

No such discrimination appears to be exercised and London bankers may be excused if they read an unfavorable meaning into the present tactics. Certainly, this week's heavy break in the mark scarcely squares with statements made here a week or two ago that Germany was abundantly able to provide the Nov. 15 instalment on the reparations by means of deliveries in kind and duties levied in allied countries.

Currency notes outstanding last week were £311,824,804 as against £309,787,597 a week ago, £355,985,000 a year ago and a high record of £368,231,000 on Dec. 22, 1920.

The New French Loan.

The new internal French loan just issued amounts to 3,000,000,000 francs. Its interest rate is 6 per cent., the issue price is 98½, and the interest on the bonds is to be tax free. The primary purpose of the loan is supposed to be to facilitate the work of reparation, but its proceeds will also probably be used to repay the Government's borrowings from the Bank of France and reduce the paper circulation.

FINANCIAL PARIS ON GERMANY'S SITUATION

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 6.—Last week's exceedingly violent fall in the German mark has naturally caused much anxiety here. The principal reason for the recent decline does not at the moment seem to be purchases of foreign currency by the German Government. What must not be forgotten, however, is that a little while ago heavy commitments for the rise in the mark were outstanding in every country in the world. On account of the subsequent decline in price huge losses were incurred by these purchasers. Many speculators have been absolutely forced to liquidate; others are liquidating voluntarily; some are even turning to "bear operations" on the market, relying on the ever-increasing financial difficulties of Germany.

Whatever may be the facts in that direction, the present extreme depreciation strengthens opinion here that the Allies ought to insist on Germany's adopting a different policy from that which her Government has followed up to the present time. In other words, it is felt that the Reparations Commission should compel Germany to obtain foreign currency direct from German exporters instead of buying exchange on the open market. On the other hand, the French public now realizes that the best way to obtain payment from Germany is to accept deliveries in kind.

French Opinion on Paying in Kind.

It is characteristic that the plan of partial reconstruction by employment of actual German labor is strongly supported by reconstruction committees who only a short time ago were opposed to the use of German labor under any circumstances. The Loucheur-Rathenau agreement for payment in kind is not very far-reaching, and will probably have to be developed further. It is impossible to foretell the amount of deliveries which will be made during its first year of operation in fulfillment of that agreement; indeed, the practical working of the arrangement has not yet been quite settled.

In any case, the French expenditure on the 1922 budget will not be affected by Germany's deliveries in kind. The French Government, in fact, no longer provides the necessary funds for reconstruction, but merely guarantees loans issued for that purpose by the Crédit National, the municipal authorities or the industrial groups.

The future budget will henceforth have to provide only for interest and amortization on these loans; but the budget still includes payment of war pensions and of expenses incident to administration of the reconstruction work, the outlay for which is considerable.

Russia and the "Pre-War Debt."

Nobody in this country takes seriously the Soviet's proposal to recognize the prewar debt of Russia. To begin with, it is pointed out that the proposal is subject to certain restrictions, and that, even if the present Russian Government were sincere, it would be in fact quite unable to carry out the promises. Therefore, in any case the offer would remain platonic.

The Washington conference will be followed with sympathy here, but French financial circles scarcely hope for any result of great practical interest. It is assumed that naval disarmament will be the chief subject of discussion, and France has already reduced her battle fleet to a minimum. Should there one day be cause to believe an understanding possible for reduction of army expenditure while at the same time giving France sufficient guarantees against aggression by Germany, it would be quite another thing. But France, as even financial circles see it, suffered too many disillusions since the war not to remain skeptical.

SUGAR CONCERN GAINS.

The annual report of the South Porto Rico Sugar Company for the year ended Sept. 30, 1921, notwithstanding the drastic decline in the price of raw sugar, shows a profit of $446,448. This was earned, says William Schall, Chairman of the Board of Directors, in face of the impossibility of the company to readjust wages and other costs to correspond with the rapid decline in the price of sugar. Costs, he points out, have been reduced to a point where it is believed the company can successfully meet competition and earn a satisfactory profit, even with the price of raw sugar as low as it is today.

Gross income for the year was $10,525,128, compared with $10,690,741. The net profit of $446,448, however, was not sufficient to cover the 4½ per cent. paid on the common stock in dividends. The difference, consequently, was drawn from the profit and loss surplus, reducing that item from $1,411,559 at the close of the fiscal year 1920 to $953,755 at the close of the last fiscal year.

Mr. Schall, in his remarks to stockholders, says that at a meeting to be held on Nov. 10 stockholders will be asked to authorize an issue of mortgage bonds to provide funds for paying off the company's current indebtedness, which largely represents additions and improvements. An issue of $6,000,000 is contemplated, running for about twenty years, the interest rate and selling price to be determined by market conditions at the time of the issue.

WILD MOVEMENT ON GERMAN MARKETS

IMPORTS ABOVE EXPORTS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 6.—The past week's financial and industrial history in Germany was only an exaggerated repetition of the preceding month, with wildly rising prices for stocks and commodities, accompanying the growing trade boom. That the victims of this outward prosperity are the State and the fixed-income classes was shown by Finance Minister Hermes yesterday in a speech to the Reichstag, wherein he announced that the deficit for 1921 would be 110,000,000,000 marks, of which 53,000,000,000 would be on account of reparation liabilities. But even this estimate was optimistic, because based on the calculation that the mark had depreciated to one-twentieth of its nominal value, whereas last week's depreciation was about one-sixtieth.

Naturally, the Government's budget is disorganized by the resultant rise of prices. Owing to this uninterrupted rise, the "index" at the end of October having reached 1146 as against a low point of 880 in the Spring, the Government has been obliged to concede an average 30 per cent. advance in salaries, which imposes a new burden of more than seven billions. For the same reason, Hermes was compelled to promise to exempt the rentier class from property taxes.

Inflation and Reparations.

The Finance Minister's statement makes it clear that unless exchange recovers or a foreign loan is concluded, future reparation payments in cash will be impossible. Meantime it is officially denied that President Havenstein of the Reichsbank has negotiated a loan with the London Rothschilds. The Government's only present plan for reparations cash payments is the creation of a so-called credit association from owners of industrial property and real estate, who are compelled to pledge their property against the loan.

The Prussian Trade Minister's monthly report gives an amazing picture of the industrial boom, the minister repeatedly describing home and foreign demand for goods as monstrous. The labor unions' report as of Oct. 1 shows only thirteen per thousand unemployed among 6,000,000 members, which is far below the average of pre-war boom years. Commodities are rising again; wheat, corn, coffee and rice very violently. Chemicals recovered last week from the temporary setback of the preceding week under a big foreign demand for pharmaceuticals.

Cotton fully midland at Bremen on Friday made a new high record of 104 marks per kilo, against 79 two weeks ago. Under a big demand at Hamburg, electrolytic copper last week touched 6,720 marks per 100 kilos, as compared with a low point this year of 1,926.

Wild Week on the Boerse.

On the Stock Exchange the week's boom quite exceeded records. Even professional speculators are beginning to show doubt, declaring that the rise of the preceding week outran the depreciation in mark exchange.

This is confirmed by the Frankfurter Zeitung's "boerse index," for dividend-paying stocks from 28, 199 to 36, 105; the latter being nearly seven times the figure of September, 1919. Speculators are further frightened by the new law sharply increasing the stock transfer tax.

But the market is entirely in the hands of outsiders, who are buying wildly. Foreigners again purchased federal 3 per cents., which reached a new high point of 84.75. There was activity in the Upper Silesians, ascribed to French buying.

On Nov. 3, the last open boerse day, General Electricity sold at 1070, against 674 two weeks ago. Badische Anilin had risen during the week from 825 to 970, Siemens-Halske from 929 to 1050, Deutsche Bank from 640 to 695. Meantime the activity of trade has caused great increase in the emission of new securities. In October the new capital raised was 2,889,000,000 marks, against 1,534,000,000 in September. From January to October, inclusive, 19,000,000,000 of new capital was issued, which exceeds by 4,000,000,000 the aggregate capital of all German corporations before the war. The Commerz Privat Bank has lately increased its capital from 200,000,000 to 350,000,000.

Imports into Germany in August were 9,418,000,000 marks against 6,683,000,000 exports. In July imports were valued at 7,580,000,000, against 6,212,000,000 exports. It will be seen that the surplus of imports had increased enormously; that has been caused by the utterly disproportionate increase in prices of imported goods.

The extent to which the foreign trade balance is accumulating against Germany may be seen from the fact that in May the excess of imports was 928,000,000 marks; in June 977,000,000; in July 1,368,000,000, and in August 2,735,000,000.

STEEL BUYING DROPS, PRODUCTION RISES

PRICE TENDENCY IS TO SAG

But There Is No Room for Drop in Keeping With Those Coming in Rail Rates.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 6.—The slightly decreased demand noticed in the case of most steel products is frequently attributed to buyers being disposed to await the freight rate reductions. The explanation is hardly adequate, since it is altogether problematical when important reductions will occur and how much influence they will have upon prices. Last Spring, when steel prices were much higher than now, an exaggerated impression was given of the part played by freight rates in accounting for the prices. Now, with prices much lower, there is no room for much decline on account of rate reductions. At best the reductions would take off only one-fourth to one-half of the advances since 1913. They could not possibly take off all the advance. A more practical explanation of the quieter turn taken in the steel market is that it reflects the usual year-end slackening.

Steel prices are showing no important change in either direction. The great decline, representing a very thorough liquidation, was ended by Aug. 1. Since then there has been occasional sagging, interspersed by slight stiffening now and then in one product or another. Just now, except for the advance being attempted in wire products, the sagging tendency predominates. Plates have been weakening slightly, while shapes and bars are fairly steady.

Production Rates Grow.

Production of pig iron increased by 22 per cent. from September to October, the merchant furnaces and the steel works furnaces showing practically the same proportionate increase. If the production of steel ingots increased in similar ratio the production in October was nearly 40 per cent. of capacity, against rates of about 32 per cent. in September, 30 per cent. in August and 21 per cent. in July. The question now is whether the latest increase may not have been a trifle too strong, for, in the last two or three weeks, the buying of steel has tended to decrease instead of continuing the increase that was so pronounced for three months.

In wire products the large independent that had not followed the advance of Sept. 12 announced the advance early this week, while the leading interest has been canvassing the trade for contracts at present prices on the ground that another advance is to be made shortly, although the 60-day period for which contracts were made in September has not expired.

The second advance of $5 a ton in sheets undertaken by independent mills three weeks ago, following the September advance, recently fell flat, and this week the former prices have been shaded by not a few mills. The September advance was from $2.75 to $3 in black sheets, and the second advance, if effective, would have put the market at $3.25. Sales at $2.90 have not been uncommon, and in some instances $2.75, the old low price, has been quoted.

Thursday afternoon the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company reduced its price on tin plate from $5.25 to $4.75 for 100-pound coke plates. The action was evidently in response to continued shading by independent producers. The delay in reducing tin plate represented a departure from what the trade has understood since last April or May to be the general price policy of the United States Steel Corporation, to meet independent competition when important.

The pig iron market, long quiet, has been almost entirely stagnant in the past week. As consumers have been buying only from hand to mouth, their lack of interest in the market can hardly be ascribed entirely to expectation of lower prices when freight rates are reduced, as they could hardly wait so long, and conservative furnace interests are inclined to suspect that the rate of consumption by foundries is decreasing. Prices are not quotably changed, being at $20 for Bessemer, $19 for basic, and $21 for foundry, f. o. b. valley furnaces.

Connellsville Coke Weaker.

Connellsville coke shows a slightly weaker tone as to prices, ascribed to the blowing in of ovens at a slightly greater rate than the increase in consumption. Several blast furnaces that were expected recently to go into operation have deferred the action. The market is quotable at $2.25 to $2.35 for spot furnace, $2.35 to $2.40 for contract furnace, and $4.25 to $4.75 for spot foundry.

The local scrap market shows a slightly firmer tone in the week, and a little tonnage of heavy melting steel has gone into consumption at $15, delivered. The sales indicate that when scrap is really wanted better prices can be secured than was thought possible a week or two ago. While there has been a little buying of No. 1 cast scrap, it has been impossible to secure any higher prices thus far.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The feature of the London Economist's monthly index number of average commodity prices is the unexpected scope of the 7¼ per cent. reaction from the average for the end of September. The present average is not only at the lowest point since September of 1916, but all groups of commodities show an average decline in prices compared with a month ago.

This is notably so of foreign wheat; a fact ascribed not only to disclosure of larger reserves than had been expected in the United States, but to favorable crop prospects in the southern hemisphere. Cereals and meat are now down to a level only 66 per cent. above the pre-war prices, but other foods are still nearly 100 per cent. higher than in the middle of 1914.

Germany's Rules for Money.

The British Government is calling attention of travelers in Germany to the fact that the German Government forbids the taking out of Germany, except through banks, of foreign currency, or securities and negotiable instruments. A single traveler may take abroad within one month the sum of 3,000 marks or its equivalent in foreign currency calculated at the exchange rate of the day, but he is absolutely prohibited from carrying out German or foreign gold or silver. The traveler who has brought money into the country may take it out again in addition to the 3,000 marks limitation, but only on condition of having procured a certificate from the customs office on entering the frontier to the effect that he had possession of such money.

Sales Executives

The Vacuum Oil Company would like to add to its staff of domestic sales executives a few men of outstanding ability. We want men with proven sales record, who can quickly take an important place in this organization and then grow into an even larger place.

Primary qualifications are—good education, considerable experience in selling and directing others in selling, some experience in shaping sales policies; age 30-44.

The positions are varied but each calls for a high type of sales executive ability.

WEST'S TRADE VIEW MORE OPTIMISTIC

Pace of Business, as She Sees It, Is Accelerated in a Variety of Directions.

STILL GRAIN'S THE FACTOR

"Market Shaken if Anything Happens to Crops in Argentina or Australia."

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—The outcome of the wheat crop in Argentina and Australia will to a great extent determine the future of the North American markets. Should anything happen to the Southern Hemisphere crops, the entire world's wheat situation would change almost over night, as theoretically there are only a few millions of bushels more in surplus countries than required by the importers, even at the present low rates of exchange. There is no scarcity, however, except in countries like Russia, whose imports will be determined by the charity of the world.

The breakdown in the world's finances, combined with the fact that Europe bought as much wheat in the United States in two months as she usually buys in four and the extraordinarily large yields there when a scarcity was feared, has simply swamped the markets for the time being. If Argentina is forced to sell as freely as were farmers in the United States, due to financial conditions, another spill in prices would not be surprising, despite the fact that prices are now at the lowest level since 1915.

Statistics hardly give a correct understanding, as they compare with a pre-war world as well as pre-war financial conditions. From an economic standpoint it is highly important that Europe secure its supplies of grain at the lowest possible price, and $1 in the grain trade now goes as far as $3 or $4 did last year, as far as financing the crops is concerned. One dollar will buy four or five bushels of oats at country stations in the West and three or four bushels of corn, but the loans of country banks last season were made on a reverse ratio, which accounts for the slowness of their liquidation in some sections and is the prime factor in forcing some of the smaller interior institutions to close their doors of late.

The Slump in Grain Prices.

Closing trades Saturday were at net losses of 6⅝ to 7⅛ cents on wheat for the week, while corn was off 2⅛@2⅝ cents and oats 1⅝@1¾ cents. The grain trade generally believes that liquidation has been very thorough in wheat and oats, but the big hedging sales of corn are still to come, and until the situation is more clearly defined a majority of operators are inclined to work on the bear side.

Business conditions in the West are much better than the action of the grain markets would suggest. One of the largest manufacturers of clothing says that sales of late have been the best in two years for Spring delivery, although the mild weather has been against a large retail trade in Winter goods. In some instances department stores have been able to move a large amount by cutting prices.

The shoe trade is better, and many factories are running close to capacity on medium and low priced shoes, while the higher prices sell rather slowly. Hides, which sold early in the year around 6 cents a pound, are now quoted at 11½ cents, and a firm market is noted in leather. General jobbing business for Spring delivery is running ahead of last year, as it was late in getting started, but buyers are expressing optimistic views regarding the future. Retail stocks in general are small and there is constant buying only for immediate requirements. Gray goods are quoted as slightly easier.

A 12,000-Car Order in the Wind.

The entrance of the railroads as buyers of cars and other equipment has stimulated the steel trade to some extent and inquiries are out for 12,000 cars. Some roads are after supplies but have made no announcement as to their requirements. October traffic was ahead of that in September, but there has been a little let-up this month, due mainly to the rushing of shipments in October ahead of the threatened rail strike. The coal tonnage was swelled by the threatened strike and now the prospect of a coal miners' strike has revived the demand. But on the whole traffic is a little less than last year.

One of the outstanding features is the persistent increase in miscellaneous freight loadings, which are almost up to those of last year. Grain traffic the last week was the smallest at this season in over five years, and the lightest since late in May. This was due partly to low prices and to the fact that much grain is being held back in the West to await reduced freight rates, which go into effect Nov. 20.

BRITISH REVENUE DEFICIT.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Looking at the money market prospect here, say after the end of the year, the consideration of paramount importance is the state of England's national finances. A deficit in the fiscal year's revenue appears unavoidable; which means that the adverse balance must be covered by loans.

The natural effect of temporary borrowing would be to create easy money, but against this must be set the usual acceleration of revenue collections during the final quarter of the fiscal year and a possible revival of activity in trade. It is not, therefore, probable that easier conditions will exist than those which now prevail; but anything like stringency is unlikely.

SOVIET'S GOLD RESERVE.

London Opinion on the Report of Its Exhaustion.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The report, ascribed to your Commerce Department at Washington, that the Russian Soviet's holdings of gold are practically exhausted, causes no surprise in London. No means seem to be available for verifying the statement, yet it may be said that London's only wonder has been that the gold taken from the old Imperial Bank lasted so long.

As for the consequence of its exhaustion, trading on a gold basis or on any other basis with Russia has been of trifling magnitude, and even if the Soviet's gold is actually exhausted, it will make no material difference from the commercial standpoint.

SAYS PANAMA HAS $4,000,000 SURPLUS

HAS LAND FOR IMMIGRANTS

Dr. Morales Here to Discuss Financial Questions With Government and Banking Officials.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Dr. Eusebio A. Morales, Minister of Finance of Panama, who has come to Washington to discuss banking and currency questions with Government and banking officials, said in an interview today that Panama is in sound financial condition and that the low tax rate, amounting to $6.40 per capita, should be an inducement for immigration from the United States. Dr. Morales stated that Panama had accumulated a surplus of nearly $4,000,000 in the last two years and that this money is now being used for road construction work. Panama is increasing her wealth as a result of the Panama Canal, he said, and its future prospects are bright. The country needs immigrants, he added, and is willing to give to them the lands they need.

Dr. Morales, who was formerly Minister of his country here, and who was its representative at the recent Mexican centenary of independence, asserted that the present Mexican Government "seems to be sound, reliable and capable of solving all her problems in peace and in a patriotic way."

"I found President Obregon and his principal adviser, Secretary of State Pani," he said, "to be men of constructive ideas and strong enough to establish in Mexico a new and permanent social order.

"The main purpose of my mission is to discuss with your Government and with the banking institutions doing business in Panama some important currency and banking questions which require consideration and settlement for our common benefit.

"We have had in operation in Panama since 1904 a monetary agreement with the United States which has been very beneficial to our commerce and consequently to our industries. When in almost every country of the world today the dollar is at a premium, we can transfer money from Panama to this country at the nominal rate of one-quarter of 1 per cent. But our silver currency disappeared on account of the high price of the metal during the war, and we have been using your silver currency and your notes which, according to the agreement, are not legal tender in Panama. That situation requires some changes in our arrangements, and this is one of the several questions that I will try to settle during my short stay in this country.

"Panama is in a very sound economic and financial condition. The country is gradually increasing her wealth as a consequence of the opening and successful operation of the Canal, and her native industries receive a new impulse every day.

"Financially, Panama is in an exceptionally good condition. During the last three years of the able administration of President Porras the Treasury has accumulated a surplus of nearly $4,000,000, which is being used now for the construction of roads. We have also a fund of $6,000,000 invested in New York in first-class mortgages which pay an average of 5 per cent. interest, to which we must add the annuity of $250,000 paid by this Government according to the Canal Treaty.

"And at the same time taxation is very low in Panama. Estimating at $4,500,000 the average yearly expenses of the Government, and deducting what the Treasury receives from its investments and the annuity of the Canal and other resources, the balance to be obtained from taxation is only $3,200,000, or $6.40 per capital. This low per capita taxation is now one of the great inducements for the immigration of Europeans and Americans to Panama.

"The prospects of Panama are very bright. With the full assurance that we are not liable to be involved in wars and revolutions, the country is growing steadily, property is becoming every day more secure, credit is used more and more, and values are rising.

"We have lands of every description, from sea level, where the climate is hot and damp, up to 5,000 and 6,000 feet above sea level, where we enjoy a perpetual Spring. But we need immigration. We need agriculturists, cattle growers, fruit growers, and we are willing to give them the lands they need. We hope that the construction of roads now begun will open the way for good, hard-working white immigrants."

WARNS INVESTORS HERE ON SOME FOREIGN BONDS

Commerce Department Notes Disparity in Price Asked and Value in Home Market.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—American investors were warned tonight by the Commerce Department to exercise care in purchasing foreign bonds payable in depreciated currencies in the expectation of realizing enormous profits when exchange values return to normal. Certain concerns in this country, the department said, are offering for sale, national, municipal and industrial issues expressed in depreciated currencies which represent only a small fraction of their normal exchange value. This, the department added, is the case with the currencies of Germany, Austria, Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Rumania, Jugo-Slavia and Hungary.

In some cases, the department said, the prices at which these securities are offered are unduly high in view of the actual exchange rate of the given currency. There have been instances, the department asserted, where there has been great disparity between the sale price of the advertised securities in terms of dollars, and the price at which they could be purchased with American money in the foreign country.

Oil Field in Northern Siam.

A very promising but undeveloped oil field is thought to exist in the extreme north of Siam, across from one of the Burma oil fields, which is similar topographically. Seepages have been found and it is understood that some shallow borings have yielded petroleum of a good quality, with an asphalt base, but accurate information is not available, as the field has not been explored. The Government has not yet decided whether it will operate the oil fields as Government enterprises or will give concessions to private concerns.

122 Years of Economic Development & the Bank of the Manhattan Company

The Canal System

COMMERCIAL development in the United States took its first real swing forward with the advent of canals. The Erie Canal in 1825 proved immediately its essential practicability, and canal building was the order of the day throughout the East. Thriving towns grew up along the banks, freight rates were reduced, traffic began to move, and the business of the nation was knit closer together. Commerce for the first time began to take on a modern aspect.

Ever since its founding in 1799, the Bank of the Manhattan Company has drawn to its Directorate men of outstanding position in the community. The present Board is composed of men who have made notable successes in varied capacities in a score of different fields. Their expert and first-hand knowledge on problems of wholesaling, manufacturing, retailing is often of far-reaching value to the customer.

CREDIT MEN REPORT FOREIGN ORDER GAIN

MEXICO IS LARGEST BUYER

Encouraging improvement in the number of orders received from foreign countries during recent weeks is reported in a statement issued by the Foreign Credit Executive Committee of the National Association of Credit Men. In the opinion of H. F. Beebe, Chairman of the committee, stocks abroad are now becoming depleted and the financial situation is clearing.

"According to statistics compiled by the Foreign Credit Interchange Bureau of the National Association of Credit Men, 55 per cent. of the inquiries made for reports on firms abroad were regarding new orders placed in this country," says the statement. "The number of inquiries has increased since the middle of last month. Eighteen per cent. of the inquiries made were on old accounts, bearing out the belief that stocks are becoming depleted. Of the requests made for information on foreign buyers, 15 per cent. were on inquiries from abroad.

"During the past few weeks indications pointed to the majority of new orders as coming from Mexico. This was the same situation in September, when Porto Rico was second and Cuba showed indications of a revival. Recent developments show that Porto Rico is still in the same place and that Cuba is picking up. The Central American market has shown some life and it looks as though the South American market is brighter."

Wilbert Ward, Chairman of a subcommittee on the proposed uniform bill of lading, has just been authorized to draw up a declaration placing the Foreign Credits Executive Committee on record as being in favor of the principle of uniformity as adopted by the International Law Association and the International Chamber of Commerce.

CENTRAL AMERICANS TO EXPLAIN FEDERATION

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Dr. Francisco Lima of Salvador, one of the delegates being sent to the United States by the member States of the Central American Union, has already arrived in Washington. The delegates from Guatemala and Honduras are on their way and will be here by the middle of the month.

Their purpose is to explain to the American Government the objects and workings of the federation which will come into full existence with the inauguration on Feb. 1, next, of the Federal Council, which has just been elected, one of whose number will be chosen chairman of the council and President for one year.

Announcement has just been received here that Dr. Julio Bianchi has been elected to the council. Dr. Bianchi was nominated by the Unionist Party, the organization which brought about the union of the three nations in Central America. Dr. Bianchi has been Minister from Guatemala to the United States during the past year.

The other members elected to the Federal Council are as follows:

Principal, Francisco Martinez Suarez.

Principal, Dr. Policarpo Bonilla.
Substitute, Mariano Vasquez.

GET $22,663,000 IN LOANS.

Farmers and Stockmen Aided by War Finance Corporation.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—More than $22,600,000 in credit has been extended to farmers and stockmen during the two and one-half months since Congress authorized the War Finance Corporation to make advances for agricultural and live stock purposes, according to figures made available tonight by that agency.

Reports of the corporation's activities since Aug. 24, when the agricultural and live stock authority became operative, showed a total credit in excess of $22,663,000 established with about eighty-two financial institutions located in nineteen States to make loans to farmers and stock raisers.

The States in which corporation advances for these purposes have been made are Montana, Minnesota, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota, Georgia, Texas, North Carolina, South Carolina, Arizona, Kansas, New York, Virginia, Indiana, Idaho, Nevada, Iowa, Nebraska and Wyoming. Most of the advances, according to corporation officials, have been made in the last month and a half.

The eighty-two advances made so far range from a few thousand dollars up to one of $15,000,000 to a co-operative association in Minnesota and North and South Dakota, to assist in the marketing of grain. Where advances are made to a co-operative association, officials explained, a credit is set up which it can draw against as the need arises, but where the advance is made to a bank or financial institution the loan is made at once.

Funds for the advances, officials said, are obtained from the corporation's balance with the Treasury, which at the time these operations were begun amounted to about $430,000,000. There has been some discussion, it was said, of a bond issue by the corporation to provide funds for its operations, but it is understood that it would be left to Secretary Mellon to decide whether the Treasury would prefer to do the financing itself and meet the needs of the corporation as desired, or let that agency go into the investment market itself to provide for its advances.

COMMODITY PRICES.

Grains Weakest as a Group—Other Changes About Even, With Metals Up.

There was little to choose from a numerical survey of the price changes in the following staples in the trading on last week's wholesale market, for aside from the abrupt declines in the grains, in which wheat went to a record low, recessions in other parts of the list were about the same as those which advanced, and those which were firm and unchanged. All the grains—wheat, corn, oats and flour—felt the effect which was exerted against the contract grades in Chicago, the December option there selling at 98 cents per bushel. In other departments of subjoined list eggs and butter declined, also lard, while the price advances were found in the metals, and one grocery—coffee, which made a new high. Of those which were unchanged pork, beef and several of the metals were included.

Following are the cash prices for the principal commodities in the wholesale market at the close of business Saturday, a week before and a year ago:

NO LIMIT TO CRUDE OIL SUPPLY, HE SAYS

Manager of Western Refiners' Association Asserts Wells Will Never Be Exhausted.

MARKETS WORRY INDUSTRY

The oil industry can continue to meet all demands made upon it, according to H. G. James, Secretary and General Manager of the Western Petroleum Refiners' Association. It was probably true, said Mr. James, that never before in the sixty-two years of the petroleum industry in this country had there been such demand for petroleum for fuel purposes. This was due to three things: A realization that petroleum was not a fleeting commodity; an unquestioned supply of oil, and its convenience, and safety.

"Until recently alleged authorities have insisted that within a given period crude oil would become exhausted," said Mr. James in the current issue of the Mining Congress Journal. "During the war it seemed necessary, in order to spur the wildcatter to go forth and drill, to carry the impression that oil was likely to become exhausted and that every effort should be made to produce enough to win the war.

"Nothing more forcibly illustrates the adequate supply of oil as a fuel than the luminous story told by the record of stocks. In 1914, when the famous Cushing pool was at its height, stocks of crude oil in the United States amounted to 141,500,000 barrels. Since then we have passed through the greatest war the world has ever known, and today we find in excess of 160,000,000 barrels of crude oil in storage, with more great fields in course of development and greater production in prospect than ever before in the history of the industry."

Mr. James pointed out the industry has grown so rapidly that even those in it were unable to appreciate its progress.

"It is true," he adds, "people by the thousands are turning to oil as fuel in the home, public buildings and in the shops and factory; the railroads are using oil generally, more battleships are being built to use it. But I am afraid there is more likelihood of a limit to consumption that to the supply.

"The thing the oil industry is worrying over is a market, not a supply. The oil fraternity is afraid of imports from countries where the potential supply of oil is almost unlimited. For a third of a century I have been 'playing' with oil statistics and never have I been more convinced of the ability of the industry to meet every and all demands made upon it than now."

Oil Prospecting in New Guinea.

The Anglo-Persian Oil Company, which has been prospecting for oil in Papua, New Guinea, under the auspices of the Australian Commonwealth Government, is about to search in the mandated territory at its own expense. The grant of £50,000 made by the Australian and British Governments to defray the cost of prospecting in Papua will only suffice to carry on the work for two or three months longer.

COST OF DOING BUSINESS.

Increase in It This Year Due to Decrease in Sales Volume.

Due to a decrease in sales volume without a corresponding drop in expenses, executives of more than one retail store have found quite a marked increase in the cost of doing business this year, as compared with the average cost of several years past. This is particularly true of the Summer months, and especially of July. The records of one of the best known stores in the country show that its cost of doing business in July of this year reached about 43 per cent. of its sales volume, or 11 per cent. more than the average cost in the corresponding same month during the last five years.

The figures further show an interesting thing in that, while about 5 per cent. higher than in the corresponding month during the last five years, this store's cost of doing business dropped to 37 per cent. in August. In the five-year period the cost of operation was the same for both July and August—32 per cent. The lowest average cost of operation of the store in question during the five years was registered in January, when the percentage dropped to 23. So far, in 1921, January also holds the palm for low operating cost, which then amounted to about 25 per cent.

TOO MANY MIDDLEMEN.

This Is a Cause Which Has Raised Prices Greatly in Japan.

The Japanese hope to increase foreign trade by working out plans for reductions in the prices of commodities, involving lower costs of production, lower wage scales and a lower cost of living. The Department of Agriculture and Commerce has charge of the project. Trade Commissioner H. A. Butts explains that officials have advocated the establishment of consumers' leagues, to be organized by the prefectural and other local authorities and to act as a check upon the producer and merchant, and for the purpose of bringing the producers and consumers closer together.

It is stated that in some transactions in Japan there are as many as eight or nine middlemen, their individual profits often running as high as 50 or 60 per cent. The authorities further announce that a full research investigation is necessary, and to this end have organized a household economic investigation society with the object of arousing public opinion, giving lectures, holding exhibits, issuing publications and maintaining contact between government offices and economic organizations.

BY-PRODUCTS FROM RICE.

Useful Things to Be Made of the Hulls Hitherto Wasted.

An Italian factory will soon be using a German invention for the recovery of useful products from the hulls of rice which have been burned or destroyed as waste material in the past. One-third of the rice crops consists of these hulls and waste. Tests of the processes have been made in Berlin, but the first commercial use of the invention will be made at Cremona.

A simple chemical reaction is used for deriving products from rice hulls. According to the inventor, the application of high temperature after washing and boiling the raw material produces cellulose for the manufacture of paper, linoleum, coke filter material, such as is used in sugar manufacturing, paraffin, phenolin, carbonic acid gas, carbon monoxide, hydrogen and acetic acid. The recovery of these materials calls for a relatively cheap installation.

By one of the processes involving steam application, it is said that 1,000 kilos of waste rice hulls can be made to produce 750 kilos of cellulose. By a dry distillation process the same quantity of rice waste can be made to produce about 400 kilos of coke filter material.

SAYS AMERICA MUST BUILD EXPORT TRADE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—R. T. Merrill of the staff of Vice President Small of the Emergency Fleet Corporation declared today, as the result of a study made by the Shipping Board into basic facts affecting and underlying world trade conditions, and especially the economic position of the United States, that it was apparent that the commercial future of the United States depends upon a development of a permanent export trade and that the wartime foreign trade of this country was artificial and is being rapidly lost.

Mr. Merrill explained that he was principally concerned with the weight and volume of the commodities carried by water, rather than their value. To obtain these figures, he said, the Shipping Board has been obliged to gather original statistics which are now in such shape as to permit the accurate forecasting of tonnage needs on vessel routes and to maintain a sufficient number of Shipping Board vessels in operation adequately to supply those needs.

The position of the United States with regard to the essential raw materials such as coal, petroleum, cotton, iron, copper, wool and sulphur, and the marvelous variety of our natural resources, were such, he said, as to permit the country to be almost self-sustaining.

Even before the war the greater part of the bulk of our cargoes was outbound, he said, and since the war this condition has been aggravated. With the exception of the traffic of the Great Lakes and the importation of bulk oil from Mexico, only one quarter, he declared, furnished full cargoes in both directions, the West Indies. If the United States achieved its natural destiny as the coal merchant to Latin America, he said, it would be desirable that our ships adopt a triangular route in order to lessen the unproductive voyage home in ballast.

He also stressed the point that on account of our greatly increased capacity for production as a result of the war, it would be necessary for us to market abroad those manufactured articles which the domestic market was incapable of absorbing. As the European nations would be obliged, in order to improve exchange, to produce the market capacity, he said, there would ensue a keen struggle for the market in South America, China, Africa and India for manufactured articles.

Further, as the foreign nations, especially those that are essentially manufacturing countries, owe the United States large sums of money for war loans, he thought that they will endeavor to pay those loans by their products and avoid swamping the domestic market, and the United States would have to find foreign consumers not only for its own surplus but for its foreign imports as well. From this he drew the conclusion that the United States would be forced into setting up elaborate machinery for re-export, including large "free zones."

Mr. Merrill concluded with the recommendation that manufacturers turn to the foreign fields and that the Government take steps to support the manufacturer's hands in such an attempt, adding that the Shipping Board had done and was doing all that it could, by law, that is insuring adequate service, reasonable rates and freedom from unfair discrimination.

NEW MOVE AGAINST CROOKED DEBTORS

Furnishing Goods Men Agree Not to Sell, Even for Cash, to These Swindlers.

Not all the problems of the manufacturers of men's furnishings will be solved when members of the association in that trade agree not to sell the unscrupulous merchant who has engineered a "successful failure." A resolution of this sort was passed during the week by the Board of Directors of the National Wholesale Men's Furnishings Association. The sales embargo applies to both cash and credit purchases, and therefore strikes at the fraudulent retailer who in the past has been able to buy for cash what he was refused on credit. But the manufacturers realize that to make the plan completely effective they must exercise a very strict supervision of their customers so that their goods may not fall into the hands of dealers who cannot buy in the open but who arrange to buy from other retail customers. This is the important problem that the manufacturers foresee in carrying out the action they have taken.

The business of men's furnishings is peculiar in that, more than in other lines, standard merchandise is the mainstay of the retailer's trade. It is pointed out that the popularity of branded goods brings disadvantages as well as benefits, depending upon how these articles are used. The honest retailer takes every opportunity to gain the most he can from the advertising of well-known furnishings, and tries to keep all merchandise standards in his store up to the level set by the manufacturers of known qualities. On the other hand, the unscrupulous dealer tries to "cash in" on these same quality standards by offering other merchandise that is not good grade but which commands large profits. The "fly-by-night" stores come within this classification. They cut prices on known brands in order to draw customers for their highly profitable lines of inferior value. The question which comes into the mind of the legitimate merchant was described in the following manner by the representative of a store that has suffered through the depredations of some "shoe-string" operators.

"We have come to a point," he said, "where we are prepared to ask the manufacturers of branded lines why they allow such competition to be offered against the reputable house. It is within the power of the manufacturer to refuse goods to dealers who are in business on a 'shoe string' and for the express purpose of mulcting the public.

"In our own case, for instance, there has been a store opened a short distance away that is able to get every branded line that we possess. The owners not only get this merchandise, but they are allowed the same choice as we are. This competition has been particularly hurtful on one article, and we will probably discontinue the line. The other people are using it only as camouflage to cover doubtful values in goods of the same sort. The point I wish to impress on the manufacturers is that the established house deserves something better than the treatment it now receives. It should be protected against these merchandise marauders who now enjoy all the opportunities accorded the best trade."

A wholesale representative who took up this question described the bitter struggle which his house has made to hold customers to the terms of their contracts, and the equal effort put forth to protect legitimate trade against the practices of fraudulent competitors.

"For seventeen years," he said, "we have been insisting that customers live up to the terms of their contracts. When extra discounts and extra dating were taken, or the customer tried some way or other to avoid our price and make his, we stood pat and refused to accept any but our own conditions. The result has been that we got a hard name in the trade and, no doubt, we lost business; but the customers we have are convinced that we mean what we say, and our relations are therefore on a very satisfactory basis.

"At the same time that we compelled customers to abide by our terms, we have always looked after their interests, especially in preventing unfair competition from that class of trade which uses branded goods merely as a decoy. Sometimes it has not been easy to track down these cases, because we have never sold to dealers whose methods were the least bit suspicious. When we get wind of a case of the sort we send out a salesman to investigate. He usually finds out that the fake merchant has a friend in the same business who keeps him supplied with the necessary branded lines. We then stop this outlet or else shut down on the customer guilty of passing along our product. If the relationship cannot be established directly, we examine our books for customers who are buying more than we think they actually sell themselves. Investigation of these cases will show up the offender."

Willard B. Stevens, Secretary of the National Wholesale Men's Furnishings Association, who conceived and presented the plan for dealing with fraudulent failures, admitted the difficulties in the path of controlling the entire distribution of merchandise so as to prevent any chance of the desired lines falling into the hands of those to whom they are to be sold, but he is confident of effecting a great improvement in present conditions.

"We will have this resolution published in all trade mediums reaching customers," he said, "and all our representatives will be instructed to be on the lookout for any cases of fraud. This will be a great deterrent to the dealer who contemplates an easy settlement of his debts with the idea of continuing in business. Not only will we be informed of every suspicious failure that comes to the notice of our members and to that of the attorneys who look after our interests in other cities, but we will call upon honest merchants everywhere to submit any evidence of the sort that they may find.

"It has been our experience that the 'successful failure' must sooner or later boast of his exploit. It is almost possible to form an idea of whether a debtor's claims are honest or the contrary by his very manner. The fraud is usually a cocky individual, confident of his ability to put through his settlement.

"A committee is to be appointed to pass upon all information that we receive in regard to dishonest failures. Once their report is made, it goes out to all members for their guidance in refusing to make sales to the individuals concerned. The stipulation that even cash sales are not to be allowed is a very important one. Cash has been too frequently the reason why a manufacturer has permitted the fraudulent debtor to continue in business. More and more, the manufacturers in this line have come to realize that the dealer who is not good enough for credit is not good enough for even a cash transaction. It seems strange to advocate the advantage of credit over cash purchases but, in this business at least, the commercial fraud has cash to spend for standard merchandise because he knows the drawing power of such goods and realizes how indispensable they are to his trickery.

"In the old days, the merchant got the confidence of the buying public with good values and proper methods. His reputation took years to build. Now the time has come when the small store can win confidence immediately by means of the good will established for advertised products that have steadfastly maintained quality standards and correct prices. If the dealer gets this advantage from the manufacturer, the manufacturer should insist upon the dealer using proper methods. That is the principle back of our action against the fraudulent debtor and one we mean to enforce."

SPRING HOSIERY PRICES.

Prices on Spring lines of Durham hosiery, to become effective on Monday next and to cover December-March deliveries, will be announced to the jobbing trade today by the Durham Hosiery Mills, Inc. In many cases they will show no changes from the quotations contained in the list issued on July 1 last, and in only a few instances are the advances of any real consequence. The cotton hosiery in the new list makes a relatively stronger price showing than the silk goods, the only declines it contains being shown on two brands of men's silk hose.

Only three of the nine listed brands of men's cotton hosiery, one of them new, show change from the July prices. The advances range from 2½ cents a dozen on "Shoo Fly" to 30 cents a dozen on "Bull Durham." Four of the brands of women's hosiery are being offered for the first time, but of the sixteen brands shown in the July list only ten are advanced in the current one. In this case the increases run from 5 to 50 cents a dozen. The 50-cent rise took place in "Lady Ware," which is reported sold up and which is held "at value" for delivery after January. Only two brands of the children's hose are changed, each of which went up 10 cents. They are "Polly Prim" and "Pathfinder No. 1."

The heather mixtures in the list have been withdrawn for the Spring season. No advances were made in men's silk hose, but "Berkeleys" and "Promenades" are 25 and 50 cents a dozen, respectively, lower than in the July list. The only revision in the women's silk hosiery is an advance of 50 cents a dozen in "Arbutus" fibre silks. Under the designation of "Christmas packing," there is an advance of 75 cents a dozen indicated on "Mistletoe" women's stockings, which are marked "sold up."

All of the prices given in the new list are those which the jobber will pass on to the retailer. The usual trade discounts will apply for the benefit of the former. Styles priced for as much as $1.25 a dozen will carry a trade discount of 15 per cent. The discount on goods priced between $1.25 and $2 amounts to 17½ per cent. Goods valued at $2 and above carry a discount of 20 per cent. Full freight is allowed to all points in the United States, and a cash discount of 3½ per cent. is given for payment in fifteen days.

GOLD MINERS MAY STRIKE.

JOHANNESBURG, Union of South Africa, Nov. 5.—Threat of a general strike in the Rand gold fields, one of the richest mining districts of the Transvaal, if the Government puts into force its proposals providing for a slight increase in the percentage of native labor employed was made today during the negotiations between representatives of the Government and the white miners. The miners' Secretary, Mr. Hendricks, told Premier Jan C. Smuts that the white miners would leave the workings within forty-eight hours after the gazetting of the proposals.

Premier Smuts, after pointing out that the present prosperity of the industry was due entirely to the existing premium on gold, declared that the mines should be more thoroughly exploited, and that he was convinced the plan would, in the end, bring about an increase in the employment of white labor.

It is understood that another conference on the question will be held next week.

Rent reductions, representing the first fruits of the tax-exemption ordinance on habitation building construction, is bringing with it a new problem: that of maintaining the recent rate of dwelling space production, which alone can make housing relief permanent.

A vast quantity of dwelling space is being thrown on the market out of season. In the Bronx, for example, apartments built to rent for $25 to $27 a room are being offered at $20. This represents, roughly speaking, a return of from 10 to 15 per cent. on the investment. Even at 10 per cent. the owners say they can find investment incentive on habitation building speculation, but when the courts set up a limit of 8 per cent. the speculator quails, in the face of the ascending price of materials and the slight prospect of a marked reduction in labor wage scales, mainly because he has no assurance but that some other Judge in a still higher court will rule that 6 per cent. is the proper return upon a home-building project for the investor.

The question in the public mind today is: "What is making the price of building material higher?"

The case of common brick is fairly typical of the market. Banks in manufacturing centres are disturbed by constant utterances to the effect that a condition exists in the Hudson River brick industry of conspiracy, combination and illegal control of distributing markets in violation of the law. These allegations have never been judicially affirmed, yet the banks, acting conservatively, and being guided by natural business prudence, have, by their attitudes discouraged loans to operators of leased yards.

In the Hudson River district there were, ten years ago, 119 brick manufacturing plants, producing annually 1,200,000,000 common brick. About half of these plants were operated on leases. Today there are only fifty-five yards operating in the Hudson district, of which a majority are yards operated by owners. The greater quantity of leased yards in the Hudson district supplying this market with brick are now, and have been, idle since 1915, and the depreciation of the machinery and of the buildings that house them make it literally true that the shores of both sides of the Hudson River from Yonkers to Kingston are lined with plants that could not be operated again in the manufacture of brick without being practically equipped with new machinery, and the structures themselves being almost entirely rebuilt. The Hackensack district is sold out until March.

There is no way for this industry to be rehabilitated until the banks will once more make loans, as formerly, to enterprising brick makers, and this change of lending policy cannot be expected until either the charges of brick-making conspiracy in the Hudson River district are judicially sustained or thrown out of court.

Such a condition affects the law of supply and demand. On Saturday there were only two barges of brick available for the building industry of a city of 6,000,000 people, with construction activity greater than at any time since before the war in certain kinds of building work, and yet the wholesale price of $14.50 to $15 a thousand for common brick was firm, whereas, the price of this basic building commodity would not be anything like that figure if brick production could be raised to something like normal proportions.

In slightly different ways, but practically the same, other building materials have been under-produced, simply because the period of public accusation has so long lain upon the building material industry, as a whole, that manufacturing finances have been retarded, to say the least, and, in consequence, producers have been confined to the use of their own capital. In the face of an increasingly active building construction market, out of season at that, demand is already exceeding supply and prices are heading upward. Lumber, for instance, shows a production of 77,000,000 feet in the week ending Oct. 25, as against shipments of 89,000,000, and current orders of 92,000,000 feet.

"On top of the recently predicted 5 per cent. advance in rubber covered copper wire, another 5 per cent. advance is recorded, a 5 per cent advance has occurred in B-X cable, and a 5 per cent. advance is current in electrical cord. The electrical cord manufacturers have more orders on their books than the mills can produce working overtime. Electrical porcelains are now expected to advance. There will be an advance of from $2 to $3 a ton in wire lath on Monday or Tuesday. Before Spring Portland cement will be sold at a higher figure than the present quotations. Even second hand brick is higher. There is going to be an advance in structural steel prices. The price advances in lumber are not only well under way, but are fully sustained.

"Meanwhile building construction is proceeding with increasing momentum, and the industry is trying to do business with material supply far below what it should be. The result is that prices are rising. The present danger is that prices will again go too high. Then the small buyer will be outbid by the big buyer for the available building material supply.

"Building material supply can be maintained if loans to manufacturers can again be obtained as freely as in other days. This can be looked forward to only when the building investment atmosphere can be cleared of long smoldering charges, and this should be done as thoroughly and quickly as possible."

GENERAL BAKING COMPANY
Notice of Special Meeting of Stockholders

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a special meeting of the stockholders of General Baking Company has been called by the Board of Directors, to be held at the office of the Company, No. 45 East 17th Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 21st day of November, 1921, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, for the purpose of voting upon the following proposals:

First. That all of the shares of stock of this Company (which have a par value of $100 per share), including any authorized but unissued shares, be changed, under the authority conferred by Section 24 of the Stock Corporation Law of New York, into shares of no nominal or par value;

Second. That (in lieu of the shares with a par value of $100 per share which it is now authorized to issue) the number of shares with no nominal or par value that may henceforth be issued by the Company shall be 250,000 shares, of which 100,000 shares with no nominal or par value shall be preferred stock and 150,000 shares with no nominal or par value shall be common stock;

Third. That the preferred stock shall be entitled in preference to the common stock to dividends cumulative from January 1st, 1922 or, if issued thereafter, then from the date of issue, at the rate of $8 per share per annum when and as declared by the Board of Directors. In any distribution of assets other than by dividend from surplus or profits the preferred stock shall also have preference over the common stock until $100 per share and $8 per share per annum from the time of issue shall have been paid thereon by dividends or distribution. The preferred stock shall not receive any dividend in excess of $8 per share per annum nor any such distributions in excess of $100 per share and the amount of accumulated dividends unpaid thereon, but the common stock alone shall receive any further dividends and shares in distribution;

Fourth. That the terms upon which the new shares without nominal or par value shall be issued in place of the outstanding shares of stock shall be as follows:

One share of preferred stock without nominal or par value and one share of common stock without nominal or par value to be issued in place of each share of preferred stock with a par value of $100 outstanding;

Two shares of common stock without nominal or par value to be issued in place of each share of common stock with a par value of $100 outstanding;

Fifth. That the Company, having begun business with a capital of $500, shall carry on business with a stated capital which shall not be less than the aggregate amount of the preference to which all issued and outstanding stock having a preference as to principal is entitled and, in addition thereto, the amount of $5 in respect to every share of stock issued and outstanding other than stock having a preference as to principal and such additional amount as from time to time may by resolution of the Board of Directors of the corporation be transferred thereto;

Sixth. That any authorized shares without nominal or par value, which are not issued in place of the outstanding shares with a par value of $100 per share, may be issued and sold by the Board of Directors for such consideration as from time to time may be fixed by said Board;

Seventh. That the certificate of incorporation of the Company be amended so as to permit the issuance of shares without par value; so as to state the number of shares without par value that may henceforth be issued by the Company, the distinguishing preferences, rights, privileges and restrictions of each class of stock, the terms upon which the new shares without nominal or par value shall be issued in place of the outstanding shares of stock, and the stated capital with which the Company will carry on business; and so as to authorize the Board of Directors to issue shares which are not issued in exchange for outstanding shares; all as above provided;

Eighth. That the President or a Vice-President and the Secretary or Treasurer of the Company be authorized and directed to execute and file the certificate required by said Section 24 of the Stock Corporation Law of New York and designated therein "Certificate of Amendment pursuant to Section 24 of the Stock Corporation Law," which certificate shall recite (among other things) the several amendments to the certificate of incorporation above set forth; and for the transaction of any and all business in connection with said proposals, including any and all modifications or changes thereof that may be necessary or appropriate to accomplish the purpose, and any other business that may properly come before the meeting.

The books for the transfer of the stock of the Company will be closed at the close of business on the 1st day of November, 1921, and will be reopened at the opening of business on the 22nd day of November, 1921.

By order of the Board of Directors.
New York, October 28, 1921.

A SHORT CUT TO ACCOUNTANCY SUCCESS.

Five months will qualify you as a junior accountant and twelve months as a senior accountant if you have a grammar school education and ability with figures. This quick result can be accomplished by the LaSalle Problem Method, because the student is given enough theory and a great deal of practical work on problems lifted bodily from actual business, instead of being given much theory and little practical work. If you're big enough for a bigger position than you are holding, get the facts about this problem method by calling for a personal talk, or phone, or write Dept. T-33,

Come in and get the facts. Booklet "K" free. Merton Institute, 96 5th Av. (at 15th St.), N. Y. Tel. Watkins 9795.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Air pressure was low Sunday night over the Canadian maritime provinces, the region of the Great Lakes and the Ohio Valley, and over the Northern Rocky Mountain region. It is high, but falling in the Atlantic States, and high and rising, with much colder weather, over the Western Canadian provinces. A disturbance central Sunday night over Ohio has been attended by light rains and snows over the Great Lakes. Quite general but light snows have fallen over the Western Canadian provinces, and there have been rains on the North Pacific Coast.

Temperature has risen in the region of the Great Lakes and the Ohio Valley, and it has fallen over the Northwest. Temperature changes elsewhere were unimportant.

In the Atlantic States, north of Maryland, the weather will be unsettled, with light rains or snows in the interior, and rains on the coast Monday, and fair, with lower temperature, on Tuesday. In South Atlantic and East Gulf States the weather will be generally fair, with moderate temperature Monday and Tuesday. In the Ohio Valley and Tennessee the weather will be fair and colder Monday and Tuesday. In the region of the Great Lakes the weather will be unsettled and colder, with snow flurries, Monday and Tuesday.

Why we can't make comparisons

For instance, it doesn't get you anywhere to compare a diamond with paste, for one is genuine and the other an imitation.

Similarly, to compare a set of Krementz correct evening jewelry with an article sold for evening wear, but which is incorrect, is equally odious.

Full dress sets $7.50 to $17.50; tuxedo sets $4.50 to $11.00.

SLAYER BETRAYED BY UNKNOWING WIFE

Unaware that her husband of three months was sought for murder, Mrs. George C. Poeppel, 17 years old, yesterday led Jersey City policemen to the hiding place of Poeppel, former sailor and lifeguard, who on being arrested confessed that he killed Detective James Dinley in Jersey City on Saturday night.

With her husband's character further disclosed by a declaration from the police that he had not been divorced from his first wife, a Brooklyn girl, the bride whom Poeppel wedded last July in Scranton, Pa., was in a condition of collapse last night in a Jersey City hospital.

Adam Gruber, a clothier at 41 Newark Avenue, Jersey City, received word Saturday that two checks signed "John H. Walters Jr." were worthless. He notified the Jersey City police and Detective Dinley, identifying "Walters" as Poeppel, went to a furnished room at 108 Vroom Street and arrested him. A block away, according to Dinley's dying statement, Poeppel drew a ten-shot automatic. In struggling for its possession Dinley was mortally wounded and the prisoner escaped.

Several hours later John Mahoney, a Pennsylvania policeman, flashing a pocket searchlight as he made his way through the darkness of the Hudson Tube cut at Summit Avenue, was halted by a young man who displayed an automatic and what looked like a police shield. The stranger said he had chased three men into the cut and that he was a railroad detective from Scranton. After a few minutes' conversation the "railroad detective" departed, expressing regret that his men had got away.

Just outside the Summit Avenue Station he encountered Police Sergeants Tiffany and Sinnett. He told them a Pennsylvania "cop is being beaten to death down there," indicating the place he had just quit.

Then Poeppel, who later confessed that he had posed as the "railroad detective," again dropped out of sight.

Meanwhile detectives were waiting at the Vroom Street address for his wife. When she appeared she frankly answered all questions, informing the detectives that Poeppel could be found at the home of a relative at 313 Van Winkle Street.

At the moment of his bride's unwitting betrayal the fugitive actually was sitting in the kitchen of the flat in Van Winkle Street, reading a newspaper account of the sentencing of a man for manslaughter.

"He got just what was coming to him," declared Poeppel. "The cops have got to be on the job."

A few minutes later, however, when told that three policemen were in the back yard, he ran to an adjoining room and hid behind the door, where he was caught. The police said he confessed the killing, explaining that it was accidental.

Poeppel's wife said that her maiden name was Alice McCarthy, and that she had formerly lived with her parents at 152 Farr Street, Scranton. Her father, she said, was a railroad conductor. Last June she met Poeppel at Coney Island, where he was working as a life guard. They were married in Scranton on July 29.

A 500,000-Franc Gem Loss.

CHERBOURG, France, Nov. 6.—A pearl necklace, valued at 500,000 francs, was reported lost by Miss J. C. Stuart of New York and Paris when she boarded the Aquitania here yesterday.

Miss Stuart came from Paris by train and when leaving the tender which conveyed her to the steamer found that the pearls had disappeared. A search revealed no trace of the missing jewelry.

No money to pay the bills

These are the facts:

A New York family had been receiving steady income under a Trust Fund administered by an exceptionally fine type of business man as Trustee. In the course of time, the Trustee died.

Then, as there was no one legally empowered to continue paying out income from the Trust Fund, the payments ceased.

What happened?

First, a long wait occurred while the Executors of the Trustee's own estate made a formal accounting to the court.

Next, all the persons interested were obliged to petition the court, through legal counsel, for the appointment of a Substitute Trustee. Weeks and months dragged by. Meanwhile the family funds ran low. Money had to be borrowed under hard conditions at frequent intervals.

Lastly, the court when it had examined the accounts of the deceased Trustee, at length approved them. A Substitute Trustee was then appointed.

We know this case intimately, because the Columbia Trust Company was the Substitute Trustee appointed.

The actual distress suffered by the above family—more serious than the mere stated facts indicate—would have been avoided had we been appointed Trustee in the first instance, years ago.

Over and over again we must say this:

The Columbia Trust Company is a corporation whose work goes on continuously. There can be and is no interruption—no halting—no uncertainty.

If you have a mind that thinks through to final conclusions, we suggest that you let us explain in detail how this Company would unswervingly carry out your wishes when you are no longer here.
